Navy Task Force Moved Close To Port Au Prince

WHOLE FAMILIES PERISH

More Than 185 Drown In Nile As Ferry Sinks

MAGHAGHA, Upper Egypt (AP) — A motor launch jammed with 200 Moslem pilgrims sank swiftly in the Nile River on Saturday and police said only 15 persons survived. Whole families drowned in the sluggish, muddy waters.

Police said it was one of the worst disasters in the history of the Nile, Africa's longest river and lifeblood to Egyptian farmers for centuries.

The launch was equipped to handle only 80 passengers, police said, but the ferry launch's conductor reported that more than 200 persons had pushed aboard for the trip across the river.

Authorities ordered the conductor, the vessel's captain and its owner—all of whom were aboard the launch and survived—jailed pending an investigation.

SACRIFICE FEAST

Most of the passengers were Moslems returning from a nightlong vigil that traditionally launches the Moslem world's four-day Kurban Bairam — feast of sacrifice.

They had gathered on the Nile's eastern bank, about 200 miles downriver from Cairo, when the launch arrived from the western side with 30 passengers.

The conductor, Ahmed Abdel Hadi, said the waiting crowd seemed like "a multitude. There must have been more than 200 aboard."

He said he had collected only 32 fares by the time the launch went down. There was no time to use lifebelts aboard, he said.

Fireman Abdel Rehim Mohamed Hasson lost his wife, three children, two grandchildren and three brothers. He was at the fire station when the disaster signal sounded, and he rushed to the river to help in rescue operations.

"I knew then that I'd lost the rest of my family," he said.

Mohamed Reda, a metal foundryman was aboard the launch with his mother, sister, grandmother, aunt and a cousin.

Derby Day Gambling Is Hit By Raids

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal agents swooped down on Kentucky Derby day gamblers in more than a dozen states Saturday. They arrested more than 100 persons.

It was the first time in history, an Internal Revenue Service spokesman said, that gambling raids were timed to fall on a major racing day.

It was the 11th in a series of coordinated raids the IRS has conducted in recent months.

Special agents of the IRS Intelligence Division surprised gamblers in 43 cities in 13 states. They raided at least 88 gambling establishments. They confiscated $32,000 in cash and four autos. At least 12 more arrest warrants were issued, with arrests to be made later.

SURPRISE

"We've never hit the bookmakers on a big racing day before," an IRS spokesman said. "We seldom hit on Saturdays—usually on weekdays. But we don't want to fall into a pattern—and we figured we might surprise a few today."

The raids were pulled off in Massachusetts, Missouri, New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, California, Virginia, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan and New Jersey.

Among cities hit were Boston, St. Louis, New York, Syracuse, Hazleton, Pa., Philadelphia, Buffalo, Wilmington, Del., Baltimore, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Chicago, Detroit, Hoboken and Perth Amboy, N.J.

Those arrested were charged with failure to purchase the $50 wagering stamp before engaging in bookmaking. An undisclosed amount of gambling equipment was seized.

Thunderstorms Hit Parts Of South, Midwest

By United Press International

Thunderstorms swept hail, rain and cool air into parts of the Midwest and South Saturday. Breezes off the South Atlantic pushed warm air along the Eastern Coast and sent temperatures above 80 as far north as New England.

A small tornado touched down on a farm south of Homewood, Kan., and lifted quickly. One farm was damaged, but no injuries were reported.

Another tornado was sighted west of Borger, Texas, in the Texas panhandle. No damage was reported.

Golfball-size hail and winds up to 70 miles an hour stripped leaves from citrus trees, downed power lines, and damaged homes at the other end of Texas along the lower Rio Grande. Six inches of rain fell at Mission, Tex.

More than an inch of rain and hail hit Edwardsville, Kan., southwest of Kansas City, and severe thunderstorms dumped three inches of rain in parts of Missouri.

Thundershowers and high winds in Idaho forced cancellation of the search for a missing B47 SAC bomber. The weather grounded eight planes and helicopters which were searching for the bomber near the Wyoming border.

Children Home Razed By Fire

ROCKVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — An overloaded electrical circuit might have caused a fire which killed six youngsters and burned five others at a home for mentally retarded children, investigators said Saturday.

The fire leveled the two-story frame structure Friday night, trapping the children in their beds and cribs.

Firemen, sheriff's officers and Coroner Tom Mack investigated the tragedy. Firemen said the electrical circuit into which a clothes dryer was plugged may have been inadequate to handle the electrical load.

Mack said he had not yet talked with the couple who operated the home, housed in an aged frame structure. The couple, Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson, had walked down the street up to an American Legion post when the fire broke out.

Rockefeller's Remarriage Makes New 1964 Election

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's remarriage made a new ball game Saturday of the coming contest for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination.

There were doubts and uncertainties about voter reaction—whether his marriage would offend women voters, particularly of middle age and older, and whether it would offend Catholics, who do not recognize divorce.

"It's difficult to prophesy at this time," said Republican National Chairman William E. Miller. "I don't think it's going to have any important effect."

"I don't see how this could possibly help the governor's candidacy," said Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, chairman of the House GOP caucus. "It's difficult to assess the impact."

Although there are as yet no announced candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, Rockefeller was rated far in front of other potential contenders until rumors of a possible remarriage began to spread last month.

GOLDWATER SPURTS

The reports saw an immediate spurt in confidence among backers of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, long-shot conservative possibility against Rockefeller, who is classed as a liberal.

Gov. George Romney of Michigan became a center-stage attraction for Republicans who believe Goldwater cannot win and that remarriage could be a serious, or even fatal handicap to Rockefeller.

But Miller commented that the remarriage may be "an asset" and that "with the passage of time the governor's position may be enhanced." Noting that the Democrats twice nominated Adlai E. Stevenson for the presidency, Miller said he did not believe Stevenson's divorce had been a political factor.

The GOP chairman expressed the belief that Rockefeller would be judged by his record as governor and as a one-time federal official and by his position on national issues.

"The rest is secondary," Miller said. "It won't be a campaign issue. I don't think it will affect the nomination or the election."

Politicians generally develop jitters whenever they are confronted with an unknown factor influencing public opinion by its effect on the religious or moral

CANDY SPOTS THIRD

Chateaugay Wins At Churchill Downs

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Chateaugay, a $20.80 outsider, won the 89th running of the Kentucky Derby on Saturday in brilliant sunshine and 80-degree temperatures at Churchill Downs. The favorite, Candy Spots from California, was third.

Before a crowd estimated at more than 100,000, Chateaugay overhauled the pacesetting Never Bend in the home stretch and drew off to a 1¼ length victory. Never Bend was a neck ahead of Candy Spots.

The winner is owned by John W. Galbreath of Columbus, Ohio, who is also the owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team. At about the same moment his horse won the Derby, his Pirates pushed into first place in the National League.

It was the first Derby triumph for Galbreath, for jockey Braulio Baeza of Panama, and for trainer Jimmy Conway. The fifth choice in the betting, Chateaugay paid $7 to place and $3.60 to show. Never Bend paid $5 and $3.20, and Candy Spots $2.80 to show.

Back of the big three at the finish were On My Honor, No Robbery, Bonjour, Gray Pet, Investor and Royal Tower.

Time for the 1¼ miles was 2 minutes, 1 4-5 seconds, 1 2-5 seconds slower than the Derby and track record hung up by Decidedly a year ago. All the 3-year-olds in the race carried 126 pounds.

Chateaugay, named for a small Upstate New York town, is eligible for the Preakness and the Belmont, the other two legs of racing's triple crown. Owner Galbreath said he planned to start the horse in those two races.

SATURDAY CEREMONY

President At Tech Formally Installed

By JIMMY HATTEN
State Editor

RUSTON — Dr. Foster Jay Taylor, a native of nearby Gibsland, Saturday was formally inaugurated as Louisiana Polytechnic Institute's 12th president.

As representatives of many of the nation's most noted colleges and universities listened, Dr. Taylor accepted the "awesome weight of responsibility."

The inaugural speaker, U. S. Rep. Joe D. Waggonner Jr. of Plain Dealing, called attention to the future, which he said the new administrator and the college will serve.

The generations ahead, he said, "stand upon this earth as one stands on a footstool, and reach for the stars."

PREDICTS GROWTH

William J. Dodd, president of the Louisiana State Board of Education, said as he formally inducted Dr. Taylor, that he and the board believes Louisiana Tech will "grow greatest under your leadership in the coming years."

Representatives of 100 of America's colleges and universities marched into Howard Auditorium along with representatives of 57 educational and learned societies.

Waggonner impelled Louisiana Tech under Dr. Taylor's administration to "keep the door of educational opportunity" open in the face of the explosion that he said he considered a "blessing, not a problem."

He also asked the institution to build citizens that are products of "excellence, not mediocracy," to maintain leadership, to expand

Italy Confronts Caretaker Type Of Government

ROME (AP)—The election upset last week has confronted Italy with the prospect of a caretaker government until after President Kennedy's visit here next month to discuss the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Italian newspapers on all sides agreed Saturday that this would be the first solution to the big question mark which twisted up out of unexpected Christian Democrat losses and Communist gains.

They agreed, too, that Premier Amintore Fanfani, who launched the "opening to the left" experiment, would be picked to head the government again. But he probably could not hold the job after July.

Kennedy is due here at the end of June. If he has to talk with a caretaker government, the effectiveness of his visit may be weakened.

Weather Scene Remains Same

MILD

Temperatures, however, are expected to edge off slightly with high set at 84-88 degrees. High reached 89 degrees. Two more minutes of sunshine also are in store for the area today.

Low tonight is predicted at 62-66 degrees. Early morning low Saturday was 62 degrees. Southeasterly winds will flow through the area at 5 to 15 miles per hour. Outlook Monday is for partly cloudy and warm.

Rusk Talks With Tito On Relations

Yugoslav Head Given Personal Kennedy Letter

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) —Secretary of State Dean Rusk conferred with President Tito Saturday night on improving U.S.-Yugoslav relations and handed the Communist leader a personal letter from President Kennedy.

Contents of the letter were not disclosed immediately, but the message was believed to contain Kennedy's renewed assurances that his administration would seek to restore Yugoslavia's most-favored-nation trade status with the United States.

Over Kennedy's objections, Congress canceled Yugoslavia's most-favored-nation status last year when Tito's regime seemed to be swinging back toward the Soviet camp.

IRRITANT

The move became another irritant in U.S.-Yugoslav relations and is said to be one reason why U.S. Ambassador George F. Kennan reportedly plans to resign this summer.

Tito brought up the matter in a private letter he wrote to Kennedy recently.

Tito, 71, an independent Communist who would like to keep his fences repaired between both Washington and Moscow, was host to Rusk at his private residence in suburban Dedinje.

Rusk and 28 State and Defense Department aides arrived in Belgrade at noon from New Delhi. They will leave for Washington Sunday, ending a trip that took them to Ankara, Tehran, Karachi and the Indian capital.

AVIATION HISTORY

Solo Ocean Flight New For Woman

HONOLULU (AP) — Three months ago, Betty Miller had no aspirations to become the first woman to fly solo from California to Brisbane, Australia.

Then she received a telephone call from ferry pilot Max Conrad, a veteran of 10 such transpacific flights. He needed a pilot to fly a twin-engine Piper Apache to a Brisbane buyer and offered to pay her if she would take the job.

"Max thought it was about time a woman tried the flight," the tiny Santa Monica brunette said. She talked it over with her husband.

"He was excited about the idea, so I agreed," he said.

That flight never happened for her, but the idea was not forgotten. Australian authorities refused Mrs. Miller permission to deliver the plane because she lacked an Australian navigator's license. So Conrad made the flight himself.

He again approached her with the idea when a plane registered to an American needed ferrying to Australia. The plane was not subject to Australian navigation regulations because of its American registration.

She accepted the job, has established one aviation milestone and is on her way toward another.

At 37, Mrs. Miller is the first woman to fly alone from California to Hawaii. When she lands at Bribane, she will be the first woman to make the 7,100-mile flight between California and Australia.

Mrs. Miller has been around airplanes so much of her life and has spent so many hours in the air—more than 6,500—she is unemotional about the aviation history she's making.

Her interest in planes began when she was 7.

Algeria Hopes To Join Union

ALGIERS (UPI) — Premier Ahmed Ben Bella told United Arab Republic (U. A. R.) President Gamal Abdel Nasser today he wants Algeria to join Iraq, Syria and Egypt in their proposed union of Arab states.

Ben Bella made the statement after Nasser arrived for a four-day visit and received such a tumultuous welcome 50 persons fainted and 20 others suffered broken limbs in the crush to get near him. Police fired shots into the air to quiet things down.

Action Follows Invasion Threat From Dominican

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI)—A U.S. Navy task force carrying combat-ready Marines have moved to within 30 miles of the Haitian capital of Port au Prince as the threat of a Dominican invasion increased, informed sources reported Saturday.

The sources said the task force including the flagship aircraft carrier Boxer left its alert position at sea Friday night and sailed down the St. Marc Channel past the island of Gonave just off the west coast of Haiti.

Another sizable Naval amphibious force was available in nearby Puerto Rico should threatened disorders endanger the 1,000 American citizens living in Port au Prince. The Americans were warned to comply with the tough nine-hour curfew imposed by Haiti.

FORCES MASSED

The U.S. Naval action was reported as the Dominican Republic massed its armed forces along the Haitian border and at sea to invade the neighboring republic should Presidemt Juan Bosch give the word.

Bosch told United Press International he would move "at the slightest indication" that order had broken down in the neighboring republic, jeopardizing the lives of Dominican citizens, other foreigners and the population at large.

Other Dominican officials said they had received word—presumably from Washington — that United States Marines were stand-

Americans Warned To Obey Curfew

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI)—The United States Embassy Saturday warned more than 1,000 American residents here to comply strictly with a tough nine-hour curfew imposed by President Francois Duvalier under martial law.

Members of the American community were going about their business in a normal manner but many of the men said they were sending their wives and children back to the United States until the situation stabilized.

The government put the capital under martial law and announced the 8-to-5 curfew Friday night, apparently to curb the activities of night-prowling terror bombers seeking to overthrow the autocratic Duvalier regime.

Torrential rains combined with the curfew gave Port Au Prince an apparently quiet night Friday night, with no reported violence or nuisance bombing.

ADVISED

The U. S. Embassy had already advised Americans to store up food, stay off the streets and be ready for possible removal from Haiti.

A U. S. naval task force headed by the carrier Boxer was reported standing by in the Gulf of Gonaives off Haiti's western coast with a contingent of U. S. Marines to carry out an evacuation if the situation deteriorated to open violence.

Duvalier, replying through his government to UPI queries, Saturday denied charges by the neighboring Dominican Republic and made a series of accusations of his own.

Dr. Adrien Raymond, undersecretary of state for foreign affairs, issued a statement charging the Dominican government with "genocide."

"The frequent massacres of Haitians in the Dominican Republic with participation of the agents of public order indicate the firm purpose of the present Dominican government to exterminate the Haitian colony in the Dominican Republic," the statement said.

(Recent clashes have been reported in border areas of the Dominican Republic between Haitian and Dominican sugar cane cutters wielding machetes, with persons of both nationalities killed.)

Possible Hoffa Juror Reports Offer Of Bribe

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) —A one-time prospective juror in Teamsters President James R. Hoffa's recent $1-million conspiracy trial said a close acquaintance offered him a $10,000 bribe the day before the trial opened, federal court records revealed Saturday.

This new aspect of the case was revealed in a transcript of a conference in the office of Federal Judge William E. Miller, following a conversation between Miller and the prospective juror, James C. Tippens.

A mistrial was declared in the Hoffa case when the jury was unable to agree on a verdict after 17 hours of deliberation.

A grand jury investigation is under way into alleged attempts by persons identified by Miller as "close associates" of Hoffa to bribe Tippens and two jurors in the trial.

Miller called Hoffa, Hoffa's attorneys and prosecutors for the Justice Department into his chambers and told them Tippens claimed an attempt had been made to bribe him. It was a transcript of this conference that came to light Saturday.

Miller, recounting his talk with Tippens, told the conference:

"He (Tippens) said after he left court yesterday he went to his office and a person whom he has known for a long time...approached him and told him that he would like for him to go out in the car, that he wanted to talk with him.

'Testament Of Freedom' Climax Of 'American Day'

Observance Tuesday of I Am An American Day by citizens throughout this area will be climaxed by the Northeast State Choir's presentation of "Testament of Freedom" under direction of Davis Bingham, assistant professor of music and director of the college choirs.

The program, set for 8:15 p.m. at Neville Auditorium, "will inspire each one of us to be a better, prouder American," declared Garland Shell, Monroe Chamber of Commerce chairman of Americanism committee.

Chambers of the Twin Cities and Northeast State's Student Government Association are promoting the special day, officially proclaimed by Mayors W. L. Howard and J. Allen Norris.

Several Boy and Girl Scout troops and Northeast's Circle K Club are assisting in distributing notices and posters, and the Order of the Arrow and senior Girl Scouts will usher at Tuesday night's event.

MUSIC PLANNED

The 65 - voice choir of Northeast will be heard in "Testament of Freedom." A chorus of women's voices will present "The Blessed Damosel," followed by a men's chorus in "Testament of Freedom," then the two groups will combine for the third part of the program.

Myra McComb Porter of Bastrop will sing the principal role in "The Blessed Damosel," narrated by Charlotte Salley of West Monroe.

From "Westside Story" will be such numbers as "Tonight," "I Feel Pretty," and "One Hand, One Heart." Other popular songs will include "Far Away Places," "Autumn Leaves" and others.

Musical setting for the finale will be a high school student's prize winning essay in a United Nations contest, Bingham said. Barrett Fisher, Northeast graduate from Columbia, will be narrator.

Bob Oldenburg, former organist of the West Monroe First Baptist Church and presently of Fort Worth, will serve as organ accompanist. Piano accompanist will be Ronny Brothers, organist at the West Monroe First Baptist Church.

"YOU KNOW I wouldn't miss it," says Del Sawyer, director of the Northeast State Jazz Ensemble, as he buys a ticket to the "Testament of Freedom" program from Paula Lawrence, president of Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority, one of the campus organizations handling funds for Tuesday night's event at Neville auditorium.

EMERGES FROM SECLUSION

New Mrs. Rockefeller Is Placed In Limelight

NEW YORK (AP) — The marriage of vivacious Margaretta (Happy) Murphy to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller places her henceforth in the limelight she has shunned until now.

Although her name has been in headlines for two weeks since it became known that she had obtained a divorce April 1, she steadfastly remained in seclusion throughout.

Now her position will be that of first lady of New York, living in the Executive Mansion in Albany with all the activities that go with being the wife of a governor.

She won the nickname "Happy" for her bubbling personality and ebullient interest in sports—from bicycling to field hockey as a student to the exclusive Shipley School at Bryn Mawr, Pa.

She is now 36 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall, brown-haired and brown-eyed. She is the mother of four children by her recently terminated marriage to Dr. James Slater Murphy, a virologist at the Rockefeller Institute.

Mrs. Rockefeller is the former Margaretta Fitler, daughter of Mrs. George E. Bartol Jr. of Wynnewood, Pa., and the late William Fitler Jr.

She is a great-grandaughter of Gen. George Gordon Meade, who commanded the Union forces at the Battle of Gettysburg in 1863. Another of her ancestors was Jonathan Dickinson, founder and first president of Princeton University.

She is descended also from Joseph Harrison, a great-grandfather, who founded the Baldwin locomotive works in Philadelphia. Still another great-grandfather was Edwin H. Fitler, who was mayor of Philadelphia from 1887 to 1891.

Mrs. Rockefeller, born June 9, 1926, in Bryn Mawr, was graduated from Shipley in 1944. She was a driver for the women's Volunteer Service in Philadelphia and also served as a volunteer in the Pennsylvania Hospital.

She was married in 1948 to Dr. Murphy, a graduate of Princeton and of the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine. He joined the Rockefeller Institute here in 1958.

The same year she served as a volunteer worker in Rockefeller's successful campaign for the governorship. She served later on his office staff, resigning in 1961.

The Murphys were friends and neighbors of Rockefeller and his former wife. The Murphys lived in a palatial home near Rockefeller's estate in suburban Pocantico Hills, and both families also had homes in New York City.

The then Mrs. Murphy's name first became linked romantically with Rockefeller's in gossip columns soon after the governor had been divorced last year by the former Mary Todhunter Clark, also originally from the Philadelphia area.

The Rockefellers had been married for 31 years and had had five children. The announcement that they would divorce startled the political and social worlds, particularly because Rockefeller was regarded as a presidential prospect, and no divorced man ever has been elected to the White House.

Rockefeller, 54, and Mrs. Murphy kept silent on the rumors throughout, even though the speculation burst into full bloom with news of her divorce.

The marriage was announced three hours after the ceremony had been performed at the Pocantico Hills home of the governor's brother, Laurance, and the long spell of silence and seclusion was ended.

The first public appearance of the newlyweds together is scheduled for Sunday morning when they take off from Idlewild Airport for a honeymoon at the governor's ranch, Monte Sacro, in Venezuela.

Final Rites Set Today For Mrs. Iula Scarborough

Mrs. Iula Scarborough, 85, of 211 Austin St. in West Monroe, died Saturday morning in a local hospital after a brief illness.

Funeral services will be at 2:30 p.m. today in Hixson Brothers Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Lionel Crowell officiating.

Burial will be in Hasley Cemetery in West Monroe.

A native of DeSoto Parish, Mrs. Scarborough had resided in West Monroe for the past 32 years.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Audrey S. Webb and Mrs. Roy Buce, both of West Monroe; a brother, Lester H. Mares, Bossier City; a sister, Mrs. Bettie Longshore, West Monroe; three grandchildren, six great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Ray Buce, Jack Parker, B. A. McKenzie, K. D. Hayes Jr., Fred Stone and Lester G. Rickerson.

Action Follows Invasion Threat From Dominican

ing by for a landing in Haiti at the first sign of violence endangering the lives of more than 1,000 American residents.

The imposition of martial law by Haitian President Francois Duvalier with a nine-hour curfew Friday heightened tension in Port au Prince, where attacks on Duvalier's militia and bloody reprisals have been reported during the past week.

The Dominicans believe they could seize the Haitian capital within three hours after beginning an invasion across the border they share with Haiti on hte Caribbean island of Hispaniola.

Sabrejets and medium bombers of the modern Dominican air force could reach Port au Prince from the border in 10 minutes, Dominican officials said.

Bosch served notice Friday to a fact-finding committee of the Organization of American States (OAS) that he would use his country's superior armed might if he felt it would avert the "blood bath" with which Duvalier has threatened his political enemies.

He proposed that Venezuela and Costa Rica join Dominican forces in establishing a "democratic Latin American force" that could oust Duvalier and insure the establishment of a more popular regime.

(In Washington, U. S. State Department spokesman Lincoln White expressed fear of increasing disorders in Haiti, where internal unrest and friction with the United States have mounted recently.

(Other Washington reports said OAS officials may send its special inter-American mission back to Haiti to check on new restrictions imposed by Duvalier. The group flew here from Port au Prince earlier this week.)

RECOMMENDS ALERT

Raymond L. Thurston, U. S. ambassador in Haiti, is known to have recommended that U. S. naval forces in Caribbean waters be alerted for emergency action if Haiti's internal situation becomes critical.

Two Dominican destroyers and two frigates also were reported to be sailing near Haitian waters.

Bosch said his purpose in employing military force would be "to wage a war of liberation of the Haitian people" and was not inspired by territorial ambitions.

"I have made it eminently clear that our quarrel is not with the Haitian people but with a madman who has seized power and unleashed a reign of terror against his people that has no parallel in the history of our hemisphere," he said.

TITAN ONLY GLOWS

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The 103-foot-tall Titan 2 is the largest military missile fired here, but one has to look close to see it.

Nearly every other missile pours a torrent of flame from its engines and is visible for scores of miles up and down the Florida coast. But Titan 2 burns revolutionary storable propellants which emit only a faint rosy glow.

Even from closeup, the flame is barely visible, and the rocket resembles a giant telephone pole rising mysteriously upwards. Veteran missile watchers on the beaches several miles away hear the rumble of the rocket but have a hard time seeing it.

If you see flying ants you may have termites!

Honor Society

Annie Adeline Clay of Bosco is among 99 students and three faculty members who were initiated into the Louisiana State University chapter of the national honor society Phi Kappa Phi.

Election to Phi Kappa Phi is considered as high an academic honor as a student can receive. Members are elected on the basis of scholarship, leadership and character. The organization recognizes outstanding scholars in all fields of study, drawing initiates from the upper five per cent of the junior class and the upper ten per cent of the senior class. It also honors faculty members and graduate students whose work merits recognition.

Miss Clay is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Clay.

Promoted

Elton W. McElroy of West Monroe has been promoted to senior master sergeant in the United States Air Force.

Sergeant McElroy, a supply supervisor, is assigned to the 792nd Radar Squadron, North Charleston Air Force Station, S. C. A graduate of Ouachita High School, he attended Northeast State College.

Mixed Crowds Dispursed By Missouri Police

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Police in two Missouri cities fired warning shots into the air Saturday to disperse crowds of Negroes and whites "looking for a fight."

One man was shot in both legs. Another man was severely beaten about the head and four police officers required first aid treatment at hospitals.

One skirmish took place at Crystal City, 40 miles south of St. Louis. The other brawl involved Negroes and police in St. Louis. Crowds in both incidents were estimated at 100 each.

The Crystal City brawl followed an exchange of words between whites and Negroes, but Police Chief Pete Pappas said "it was not a racial matter."

"We don't have any racial trouble here," Pappas said.

In St. Louis, police were showered with bricks and bottles when they tried to arrest Negro dice shooters. Police dogs helped chase the Negroes.

Pappas said he fired two shots in the air in an attempt to disperse the Crystal City crowd.

He said Police Judge James Hagens had telephoned him to "get right down because the Negroes were going to take" a tavern.

Pappas said two shots were fired before he arrived on the scene. Wounded in the legs was John Tiggs, 39. A companion, Roland Franks, about 40, was hit on the head with a blunt instrument.

Both men were reported in satisfactory condition.

Commerce Day Set Wednesday At Tech Campus

RUSTON (Special) — Commerce Day will be held by students and faculty of the School of Business and Administration at Louisiana Tech Wednesday, with a convocation address to be delivered by Victor J. Martzell, vice president and general sales manager of Superior Iron Works and Supply Co. of Shreveport.

The assembly is scheduled for 11 a.m. Wednesday in Howard Auditorium.

On the day's agenda for 2 p.m. is the traditional student-faculty softball game to be played on the field in front of Memorial Gymnasium.

A barbecue is on the program for 5 p.m. in the area east of Keeny Hall. This event is open to business school faculty members and students of that school and invited guests.

At the barbecue, the commerce queen and officers of the Business Students Assn. for next year will be chosen.

Concluding the day's activities, a dance will be held from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. in the Student Center, which will be open to all students of the college. At the dance the queen will be crowned about 8:30 p.m. by Dean Burton R. Risinger of the School of Business.

traditions of the American people.

They will be watching public opinion polls and listening to trusted appraisers of voter reaction. At the same time, they will be giving more attention to such other possible candidates as Goldwater, Romney, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the defeated 1960 nominee, Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania and Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky.

National convention delegations in a number of states can be expected to line up behind favorite son candidates unless a consensus develops before convention time on who has the best chance to defeat President Kennedy.

Rockefeller has been the favorite of Republican liberals and king-makers who believe that a winning candidate must have appeal in the populous industrial states with big blocs of electoral votes. This segment of the party has dominated all national conventions since 1936.

Rockefeller himself has been playing down factional labels and arguing that judgments should be made on what is sound, not on whether the policy is a liberal or conservative one.

and intensify research efforts and to forego complacency.

He said the "years that stretch behind are the twilight of a new dawn, and that "the future demands we prepare outself ourselves."

Education, he said, "costs only those who will not invest."

He said he was confident that Louisiana Tech would "carry forward with all her might" in the educational field.

Asserting that "human history is a race between education and calamity," the conservative congressman cited what he believes is a need for military matters to be left to the federal government and education to the state government.

He said that does not relagate education to second place, but that it presents a challenge for institutions such as Tech to "seek out the deepest truths."

He said current world turmoil may "perhaps be the destiny of our times" and that perhaps society is "doomed to cope with sin and Satan," but that Americans must not relent, and must continue to build society, and because of alien philosophies, he said, there is a demand that America maintain military power.

Dr. Taylor succeeds Dr. Ralph L. Ropp. Waggonner said that Ropp "faced up to his responsibility" and that he was confident Dr. Taylor would do the same.

Both Dr. Taylor and the congressman attended Louisiana Tech. Waggonner spoke warmly of the new president and the outgoing administrator as his friends.

Among the platform party was Henry J. Davis, director of the Department of Commerce and Industry; Taylor, Dodd, Waggonner, John B. Wilson, dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, and presiding officer; Shelby M. Jackson, State Superintendent of Education; Dr. Ropp, Robert H. Curry and Enoch T. Nix, members of the State Board of Education, and Louisiana Tech deans and members of the clergy.

Dr. Taylor, formally a Louisiana College dean, is also an author, one of his works being, "The Reluctant Rebel."

Four Injured In Accidents On Saturday

Three Bastrop men were injured, one seriously, and a Monroe man was hurt in two separate accidents in Monroe Saturday.

Marion G. Carson, 45, of 606 Erin St., Monroe, sustained head injuries when his car was in an accident at the intersection of N. 6th Street and Hudson Lane Saturday afternoon, and overturned. Two women in the other car, Mrs. Lucille P. Smith, 51, 708 Alabama St., and her daughter, Mrs. Lucille Evans, 27, 306 Georgia St., both sustained minor injuries.

Investigating Monroe police said Carso, driving south on North Sixth Street, was struck in the side of his car and overturned by the Smith vehicle. He was pinned in the car, until a wrecker arrived to move his automobile. Mrs. Smith, driving east on Hudson Lane, said she did not see any cars coming and entered the intersection.

Three Bastrop men sustained injuries around 3 a.m. Saturday when the driver, Tommy C. Cockman, lost control of the car. The vehicle, headed north on Powell Avenue, careened off the street and struck a bridge abutment headon. Cockman, of Rt. 4, Bastrop, and his passengers, Pete Lauranoff, 35, and Phillip M. Cote, 23, both of Bastrop, were all rushed to St. Francis hospital for emergency treatment.

The most seriously injured of the trio — Cote — was reported off the critical list late Saturday. He reported sustained severe facial and head injuries, while Lauranoff suffered a broken ankle, broken nose, and severe hand lacerations. Cockman had chest injuries and lacerations.

Monroe officers also logged counts of reckless driving, hit-and-run driving, and two counts of damage to property against a Monroe man early Saturday morning.

Melvin Leavern Evans, 1510 Alabama St., was booked on the charges at 12:11 a.m. after being apprehended on Lee Avenue. A patrolman noticed Evans turn off Thomas Avenue onto Lee, and in doing so, Evans ran over a boulevard and knocked down a traffic sign. The patrolman said Evans then jumped the curb on the west side of Lee Avenue, hit the front porch of a house at 3016 Lee Ave., inflicting approximately $200 to $300 damage. Evans was taken into custody approximately five blocks away. He told police that his car door came open, and when he leaned over to close it, he lost control of the vehicle. The house hit belonged to Mrs. Bernie Gabriel.

Grambling Holds Spring Meeting To Honor Jones

GRAMBLING (Special) — An annual spring meeting of Grambling College Alumni Association here saw President R. W. E. Jones receive plaudits of hundreds of graduates, faculty members, students and professional associates here Saturday.

The president received three plaques for his "distinguished service in developing the college, good human relations, and regionwide community service."

In addition, Jones received numerous letters, telegrams, and congratulatory messages from across the nation from graduates and well - wishers abroad.

"This is one of the happiest ments in my life," Jones said upon receiving a sustained standing ovation from the audience. He then challenged his listeners, "To keep alive the progressive spirit of Grambling College, both intellectually and materially, to the end that true and worthwhile service can be rendered to mankind in the future."

Jones then paid tribute to the school's founder, Charles P. Adams, who established it in 1901. The program built upon the theme "Eyewitness To History" featured highlights of the Jones Administration from the time he became president July 1, 1936.

Pope To Travel To Monastery

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII will travel to the Benedectine monastery of Montecassino on May 23 to consecrate a new altar in the once bomb-destroyed abbey, Vatican sources said Saturday night.

The trip of 78 miles southeast of Rome has been timed to coincide with Ascension Thursday, solemn feast day commemorating Christ's ascent into heaven, Vatican sources said.

It would be the longest trip for the 81-year-old Roman Catholic pontiff since his historic pilgrimage by train across Italy to the shrines at Loreto and Assisi one week before the Vatican Ecumenical Council opened last Oct. 11.

Demonstrations Continue In Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)— Rock and bottle-throwing Negro racial demonstrators fought hit-and-run battles Saturday with Birmingham police, who used high pressure water hoses to disperse the crowds screaming through the streets.

Police, backed up by firemen wielding the hoses, broke up a demonstration of about 3,000 Negroes early in the afternoon, but hundreds of the demonstrators regrouped at a church and there was another encounter.

Carefully avoiding hitting the church with the streams of water, the firemen pointed the nozzles directly at the group.

But the Negroes retreated a short distance and suddenly began raining rocks and bottles at authorities.

It was a hurled rock that touched off the first clash earlier in the day. The object landed a short distance from Police Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor, who ordered the hoses brought into play.

HUNDREDS FLEE

When the second clash broke out near the church, Police Chief Jamie Moore advanced alone toward the rock-throwing Negroes, but the demonstrators—numbering in the hundreds—fled to another section.

The second encounter in which the bottles and rocks were hurled lasted only a minute or two.

Other groups of Negroes began forming over a six-block area centering around a park where the 3,000 Negroes were dispersed earlier in the day.

Groups of 100 to 300 Negroes gathered during the afternoon, following a "lie down" demonstration by 30 Negro youths and the morning demonstrations.

They fled in bedlam as they were hit by the water blasts.

Connor strode about the scene directing the police and firemen as they moved from one point to another, dispersing the crowds.

ONE FIREMAN HURT

At least one fireman was injured in the battles when he was hit on the side of the face by a brick.

The clashes marked the third consecutive day of massive racial demonstrations in this Southern steel city. More than 1,000 Negroes have been arrested, including about 50 taken into custody Saturday. Many of those arrested have been Negroes.

At least two of those taken into custody Saturday were charged with disorderly conduct.

President Kennedy was reported "dismayed" by the events and the administration sent in two Justice Department trouble shooters in hopes of working out a truce.

The clash occurred after Negroes had staged a series of minor demonstrations — including a march on City Hall and a "knεel-in" on City Hall steps.

PARK BATTLEGROUND

The demonstrations started shortly after noon and reached a climax when police brought up fire hoses and cordoned off the park, where most of the Negroes had gathered.

There was a standoff for about 15 minutes while the crowd jeered police and taunted the police commissioner with shouts of:

"Hey, Bull, where's your water?"

The hecklers referred to the use Friday of powerful streams of water to break up groups of segregation protest marchers.

Police answered the jeers by shouting over a megaphone: "All you people disperse. If you don't want to get drenched, you'd better get back."

Finally a rock came sailing through the air and landed at Connor's feet.

"Let 'em have it. Get that water on them," he barked.

Bennie Grant Runnerup In Beauty Event

An 18 - year - old West Monroe beauty was selected as first runnerup in Miss University of Arkansas competition last week.

She is Bennie Grant, freshman at the university in Fayetteville, Ark., and daughter of Ouachita Parish Sheriff and Mrs. Bailey Grant of 109 Slack St., West Monroe.

There were some 18 candidates entered in the contest held Friday. Bennie was entered as a representative of her dormitory, Futrall Hall. For her part in the talent portion of the contest, she gave a reading, her mother reported.

Her parents were elated at the news of her placing. Her father said, "We were complimented that she was even chosen to represent her dormitory."

Bennie, who entered the university last September, is majoring in accounting. She graduated last spring from West Monroe High School where she won many honors.

She was West Monroe High School homecoming queen last year, yearbook beauty in her junior and senior years, Key Club sweetheart for three years, cheerleader for four years, and a basketball team manager.

In addition to this, Bennie was corresponding secretary last year for Delta Beta Sigma, national high school sorority.

A member of Memorial Presbyterian Church in West Monroe, she served as christian faith chairman for the youth of Red River Presbytery.

Miss Concordia Beauty Contest Set At Ferriday

FERRIDAY (Special) — Three contestants have entered the senior division of the Miss Concordia beauty contest slated for Friday, May 10, at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium here.

Contestants are Kay Cross of Ferriday, a Northeast State College student; Johnny Ruth Beasley, Ferriday High School senior; and Lyndia Bivins of Vidalia.

The Rotary Club sponsored event is an official Miss America preliminary pageant, Robert Lincoln, general chairman said.

Dawn Briggs, Miss Concordia of 1962, will crown the queen who is to receive a $100 cash award and the right to represent the parish at Lake Providence. Cash awards of $50 and $25 will go to first and second runners - up.

Contestants will be judged in the usual evening dress, bathing suit and talent exhibition.

In the junior Miss Concordia contest, 12 contestants have made entries. The event held with the senior contest includes evening dress and bathing suit competition.

Junior winner of 1962 Beverly Burrill will crown the new junior queen. The queen will receive a $25 cash award. First and second runners - up will be presented official Miss America charm bracelets.

Lloyd Love will emcee the event. Marty Mathieson and Margie Lancaster will assist in entertainment at the pageant.

Contestants in the junior event are Juanice Harris, Dorothy Alford, Margaret Ann Bateman, Alice Ann Forester, Virginia Easley, Sherie Jacobs, Vickie Lonigro and Carol Crawford, all of Ferriday. Beverly Morace, Margariet Burrill, Gale Crouch, Sidney Storey, all of Monterey.

Good Government Bill Atmosphere Can Change

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Some lawmakers once laughed at vote-shy sponsors of so-called good government bills—but the atmosphere may change in the 30-day legislature opening at noon May 13.

A campaign for governor is waiting in the wings, and legislative elections are just over the horizon on Dec. 7.

The coming session by law is restricted to fiscal and budget committee itself already has recommended the once opposed investment of idle state funds and a centralized list of unclassified state employes—better known as the anti-deadhead bill.

Rep. Robert Munson of Rapides Parish, who was chairman of the Little Hoover Commission, said he and some of his old commission collegeues are considering attempts to gain action once again on some of their former proposals.

After two years of work, studying ways to streamline state government operations, the Munson group sponsored 44 bills in the 1962 legislature. A few were adopted. One that Gov. Jimmie H. Davis vetoed called for the centralized list of unclassified state employes.

The Little Hoover Commission died a sudden death in the 1962 legislature, when the House in a 25-52 vote refused to let it continue.

One of the bills it sponsored called for a permanent legislative budget committee, now the heart and soul of current administration activity.

Munson said he was thinking of offering, with his consultant on printing to advise state agencies on how to save on printing and mailing expenses, and requiring legislators to attach fiscal notes to bills they introduce that may affect state revenues.

The Little Hoover group failed in both the 1961 and 1962 legislatures with the fiscal note proposal.

These fiscal notes would make mandatory an estimate of what the proposed bill — even though it is not an appropriation measure — would do to state revenues.

Munson said he had no plans to seek revival of the Little Hoover Commission, because that would have to wait until the 1964 legislature.

"Even though some of our bills met defeat," he said, "we do not feel our efforts were wasted. We feel the public sooner or later will recognize the merits of some of our ideas, and I think this is coming true now."

Munson said he was happy to see the administration consider some of the old Little Hoover proposals.

"I just want to see them adopted, I don't care whether the administration sponsors them or we do," he said.

The administration budget committee led by Sen. W. J. Cleveland, Crowley, will return Monday for last-minute chores. It expects to receive reports from subcommittees on state insurance, which stepped into an education board insurance controversy, also examined all state insurance programs.

Cleveland said his committee also planned to prepare its recommended bill for investment of idle funds.

Sen. Adrian Duplantier of New Orleans, who twice lost a battle for similar legislation, already has pre-filed his own version.

Concert Is Set At Junior High

The Ouachita Junior High School Band will give its spring concert Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the junior high auditorium on South Grand.

Selections to be included in the program are "Host of Freedom March" by Karl King, a clarinet trio "Dancing Reeds" featuring Deanna LaValle, Betty Rayner, and Claire White, "Port-Au-Prince" by Bernie Wayne, "Prelude and Fugue in G Minor" by J. S. Bach, "Variation Overture" by Clifton Williams, and other varied numbers.

Kozlov Illness Causes Successor Speculation

MOSCOW (AP)—The apparently grave illness of Frol R. Kozlov, 55, wavy-haired, choice of Premier Khrushchev as his successor, whipped up speculation Saturday as to who might be next in line.

Informed sources said Kozlov has a blood clot on the brain and is likely to be hospitalized for months.

Most Westerners here considered the mantle of heir apparent will fall on Leonid I. Brezhnev, 56, the hearty, bettle-browned president of the Soviet Union, if Kozlov is eliminated from the political scene.

Brezhnev has long been a protege of Khrushchev, who told a Kremlin gathering April 24 old age is creeping up on him—"I am already 69 and I have the right to say so"—and that he cannot hold the Soviet helm forever.

The Soviet Communist party's Central Committee confirmed in an unprecedented announcement that Kozlov, one of its secretaries and a member of the 11-member party Presidium, is ill.

Officials declined to elaborate, but the announcement at least authoritatively explained his absence from the reviewing stand on Lenin's tomb at the May Day parade through Moscow's Red Square. His last appearance at an official meeting was April 8.

"In connection with requests received," the announcement said, "the Central Committee of the Communist party reports that member of the Presidium, secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist party, F. R. Kozlov, could not participate in the May 1 celebration because of his illness."

Well-informed sources said Kozlov, who was felled by a heart attack two years ago, suffered a thrombosis, a clot of blood in the circulatory system.

They said the clot lodged on the brain and may already have brought on some paralysis. Newsmen who asked whether he had suffered a brain hemorrhage, as reported in some circles, were told emphatically he had not.

A Western doctor explained that a damaged heart, such as Kozlov's, might permit a clot to form any place in the circulatory system.

There is no assurance that Khrushchev is going to need a successor right away, despite his April 24 reminder that he cannot carry on forever.

CONNECTICUT BOUGHT POLICIES

Political Insurance Probe Names Prominent Figures

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The names of prominent political figures in Connecticut—most of them Democrats—were disclosed Saturday as recipients of political patronage in the form of commissions on insurance policies purchased by the state.

The list of more than 300 names was made public, somewhat reluctantly and under pressure from Republicans, by the John P. Kelly Co. of Hartford—the state's insurance agent of record and the firm in which a son and daughter of the national and state Democratic chairman, John M. Bailey, are major stockholders.

In releasing the list, the Kelly company stressed that all but one of the persons named were licensed insurance agents. The sole exception was Miss Katherine Quinn of West Hartford, vice chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

John P. Furey, spokesman for the company, said that Miss Quinn had been a licensed agent from 1951 to 1959, was unaware until recently that her license had expired, and repaid the commissions—which totaled $10,750 for 1959-63—for the period when her license was not in effect.

The list included the names of Robert J. Beckwith, Gov. John N. Dempsey's personal aide; at least three Democratic state representatives: Democratic National Committeeman John Golden of New Haven, and various town party chairmen.

Several Republicans made the list, including the late William H. Brennan of Stamford, former GOP national committeeman and onetime party leader for Fairfield County.

The Kelly company said it paid out a total of $367,069 in commissions to subagents during the 1959-63 period covered in the list. Much of the money reportedly went back to the political parties in diverse ways, such as contributions and attendance at $100-a-plate dinners.

Distribution of commissions as political patronage by the party in power has been a traditional practice of Republicans as well as Democrats. The Kelly company, founded by John P. Kelly, the late Democratic town chairman in Hartford, handles about $250,000 a year in commissions.

The spokesman, in announcing the commission list, said the company was "eager to halt the destructive rumors, innuendoes and allegations that now threaten the reputation of many insurance agents and other persons."

A legislative inquiry into the practice, sparked by Republicans, led to Saturday's disclosure of the names. J. Tyler Patterson, speaker of the Republican - controlled State House of Representatives, subpoenaed the company's records Friday.

The House Insurance Committee previously subpoenaed the records but the probe was stalled by the Kelly company, which obtained a Superior Court restraining order.

The entire House voted Friday to take up the inquiry, Patterson signed new subpoenas, and Superior Court turned down a fresh request by the Kelly company to block the House action.

Furey, the Kelly spokesman, said the list would be submitted to the House of Representatives on Monday.

A. Searle Pinney, state Republican chairman, said he was "pleased we have made this progress," but declined further comment until he could study the list.

Republican House Speaker Patterson would only say he will be on hand when the records are presented. Any decision on the future course of investigative action, he said, might not be made until the House reconvenes Tuesday.

Gov. Dempsey said he hoped, now that the list had been made public, that the General Assembly can get down "to the many serious legislative proposals that must be resolved."

Effects Of Castro Visit, Kozlov's Illness On Khrushchev Policy Analyzed

EDITOR'S NOTE — Why was Cuba's Fidel Castro invited to Moscow last week to be put on prominent display beside Soviet Premier Khrushchev? What will be the effect of Frol Kozlov's illness on Soviet policy-making? How do these and other factors fit in with Khrushchev's power dispute with Communist China. AP diplomatic affairs writer John M. Hightower explores these issues in the following comprehensive analysis.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red China has scored some impressive gains recently in its revolt against Soviet leadership of the world Communist movement.

Peking successes are believed to be largely responsible for the grave policy crises now gripping Moscow and dominating the attention of Soviet Premier Khrushchev, 69.

Khrushchev's position is weakened, however, by the fact his major policies toward China and the West have not proved strikingly successful and have resulted in some sensational failures.

Now the strain within the Moscow ruling group presumably has been further increased by the officially reported illness of Frol Kozlov, widely reputed to be Khrushchev's hand-picked successor.

Kozlov's illness must introduce a new element of uncertainty into an already tense political situation in which the conflict with Red China is only one source of difficulty for Khrushchev—though it unquestionably is the major one.

These considerations have led U.S. authorities to conclude:

1. The hard line which Khrushchev began following toward the West last January probably will be hardened because Khrushchev does not seem to be in any position to make accommodations with the West even if that were his personal wish.

2. The quarrel between Moscow and Peking really is beyond repair and can only go on getting worse, although Soviet and Chinese leaders may from time to time patch up their troubles temporarily—especially if one or the other gets involved in a grave new crisis with the West.

3. The dispute with Red China has forced a general policy review by Khrushchev and his advisers which began last year and still is going on although there is no evidence as yet that major new Soviet decisions are at hand.

The sudden visit to the Soviet Union by Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro undoubtedly is explained, Washington authorities feel, by Khrushchev's pressing need to provide Moscow with a symbol of Communist success during last week's big May Day celebration. Castro is such a symbol but while he is supported by Khrushchev his real ideological leanings are toward Red China.

The feeling here is that any peacemaking talks between Moscow and Peking will have small chance of real success. The Chinese, as the group in revolt, are in position to ask a high price for reacceptance of Kremlin leadership and may well make demands that are deliberately and impossibly high.

Probably only a massive offer of economic and military help from Russia would seriously tempt the Chinese Reds to submit themselves to Soviet direction again even for a brief time.

Evidence of the success the Chinese have had in their struggle with Russia is found mainly in the extent to which their influence has grown in the Communist world.

A little over a week ago undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman conferred in Moscow with Khrushchev on the crisis in Laos. It is understood that Harriman came away with this impression: a year ago Soviet influence in the Communist areas of Southeast Asia was decisive but today the Red Chinese have the upper hand.

In the Far East generally, Communist parties which listen more to Peking than to Moscow are those in Japan, Indonesia, New Zealand, Thailand and Burma. And Peking's influence is ascendant in North Viet Nam and North Korea.

The Chinese are believed to have made great inroads into the Communist movements in various Latin-American countries, Brazil and Venezuela, for example. And Chinese advisers in Cuba are known to be outstandingly popular with Castro officials.

In Western Europe the Chinese Communists are reported to have developed strong support in the French and to some extent in the Italian, the Belgian and the Norwegian parties. In Eastern Europe only Albania is clearly tied to Red China but Romania recently reestablished relations with Albania.

The Chinese have become intensively and profitably active in Africa. Last February in a conference at Moshi, Tanganyika, they outmaneuvered the Russian delegation to the extent that they defeated Soviet proposals for entering an East European observer delegation and they got their own way on some other issues as well.

More recently, at an international "journalist conference" in Indonesia the Chinese succeeded in excluding a Russian delegation from active participation on the ground that the Russians are not Asians.

None of this means that the Red Chinese are about to take over leadership. It does suggest that they have made important gains at Russia's expense, have impaired Soviet prestige, have ignited disagreements within the Kremlin and have magnified the effects of Khrushchev's policy failures so that he has been forced into a thoroughoing reappraisal.

For example, to carry out a policy of expanding Soviet influence and laying a basis for subersive operations against free nations, Khrushchev embarked on Soviet-type foreign aid program in 1954-55. His commitments to other countries, particularly in Africa and the Middle East and to some extent in Latin America have totaled $2.9 billion in military aid and $5.1 billion in economic aid. He has mostly setbacks and disappointments to show for this. And last year, significantly, he reduced sharply the rate of new pledges.

During the period of heavy outlays, Moscow encountered policy failures in the Congo and in a number of other African countries, in Egypt and Iraq, and suffered reverses at Red China's hands in Indonesia.

Khrushchev's aid program was an integral part of peaceful coexistence. The Chinese have denounced this policy as a betrayal of Revolutionary Marxism.

The fact is that the Russians have accepted the real possibility of global destruction in a nuclear conflict and the Red Chinese have not. One of the real issues in their fight with the Soviets is believed to be Moscow's refusal to give them nuclear weapons or information. Although they soon may explode a bomb themselves they are far behind Russia industrially.

One of the facts working for China's popularity in foreign Communist parties is its underdog position. This commands the sympathy of Communist leaders who are themselves in underdog positions.

Another factor going for the Red Chinese is the primitive state of their economy which is much closer now to the economic levels of some African, Asian and Latin-American areas than is that of Russia.

A third element of Red China's appeal to Communist leaders abroad is that the Chinese advocacy of violent revolution is the historically orthodox position in the Communist movement.

Many of these arguments, however, probably have little to do with the real issues of the struggle which are more related to power considerations, nuclear weapons and the like.

The Red Chinese have demonstrated their readiness to attack Khrushchev on almost any point and for any reason. They did him inestimable damage after the Cuban crisis last year when he was seeking to build prestige as the savior of world peace.

The Red Chinese denounced him then on two almost contradictory lines. They accused him of reckless adventurism for putting rockets into Cuba in the first place. But they blasted him also for cowardice because he took the rockets out under U.S. pressure.

TraveLodge Set To Construct New Motel Here

A permit to construct a 74-unit motel with swimming pool in downtown Monroe was issued this week to the TraveLodge Corporation of El Cajon, Calif., Robert B. Lutes, vice-president, has announced.

When completed, the two-story building and all improvements will be valued at $518,000, offering all the luxury features for which the TraveLodge is known.

Construction will begin in approximately 10 days.

The property was acquired from Mrs. Elizabeth Schulze Culpepper of Monroe, executrix for the estate of Mrs. Bella Conner Brynum.

The transactions were handled by Ed White, TraveLodge regional office, Jackson, Miss.

The property is located on Catalpa and Grammont streets.

The Monroe TraveLodge will be part of the network in 33 states, Canada, Europe and Australia. It will be operated under the co-owner manager system conceived and developed by the corporation.

Taylor Responds To Inauguration At Tech

By K. F. HEWINS
Tech News Bureau

RUSTON — In an address of response following his formal inauguration as the 12th president of Louisiana Tech Saturday morning, Dr. F. Jay Taylor empasized his desire to participate in leadership to "make this great institution a blessing to our state and to all mankind."

Dr. Taylor, a native of Gibsland and a former student of the college here, was formally inducted into the Tech presidency by William J. Dodd of Baton Rouge, president of the State Board of Education. The inaugural ceremonies were part of a series of activities which were in the planning stage since last December.

President Taylor prefaced the principal premises of his speech by recognizing the services of numerous persons, including his predecessors as Tech's chief executive, the alumni, faculty, members of the State Board of Education, legislators, governors and many others.

"Humble though I am in my awareness of the accomplishments of those who made this institution great, I am confident that there are no problems so great that intelligent Americans of good will and education cannot solve them," Dr. Taylor declared.

The president listed eight problems which he considered most urgent. These he summarized as follows:

"Everyone knows that in the next few years there will be a tremendous influx of students to our colleges. Bossier Parish, for example, will graduate twice as many students in 1965 as graduated in 1962. Lincoln Parish will graduate 72 per cent more; Union Parish 33 per cent more; Ouachita Parish 81 per cent more. Our doors shall be open and we shall welcome very young man and woman who has normal intelligence and a normal high school record.

"There is no magic by which the state or her colleges and universities can expect to meet these challenges without substantially increasing the level of resources currently invested by the state in higher education. And this decade would be the worst possible time in our history for Louisiana citizens to turn away from the obvious and inevitable facts confronting us.

"Another major concern of Louisiana Tech is research, upon which we should lay increasing emphasis. While the primary function of a teacher is to teach, it also is the function of every college and university worthy of the name to add to the general body of knowledge by significant research.

"In this technological age it is imperative that our college participate both in the growth and dissemination of technical knowledge and also in the wise utilization of that knowledge. Louisiana Tech always has been noted for excellence in engineering and the sciences and it is my intention to strengthen further these areas. Good scientists and good engineers, however, are hardly ever narrowly educated. We shall try hard to see that all of our graduates have broad cultural backgrounds.

"I want to stress spiritual values. Any person who believes that the teaching of spiritual values should be banned from a state college campus is, in my opinion, a tragic example of one who does not understand the true meaning of education. Many college graduates have learned facts and mastered processes but who are fools, unhappy and dangerous. Education fails in many cases not because the person involved did not understand the fundamentals but because his education did not teach him now to behave.

"I have no sympathy for the student who knows all bout the 1860's and nothing about the 1960's. I have no admiration for the specialist in any field who is unconcerned about other fields. We shall try to create an intellectual atmosphere so that students will read and read, so that students will find ideas interesting and exciting. We want Louisiana Tech to be a place that is intellectually alive.

"It is to give the students a college education that schools like Louisiana Tech exist. But the kind of education they get will depend on the faculty. This may sound trite to some but no college can ever be stronger than its faculty. The competition for first-rate faculty members is becoming so fierce that some institutions will not be able to obtain or retain them. I believe that my most important task is to do all that I can to strengthen this faculty."

In his concluding remarks President Taylor said:

"I shall attempt to reduce the number and frequency of those things which detract from the academic program.

"I shall encourage and reward further study and research.

"I shall promote and encourage academic freedom but at the same time insist that our classrooms not be used as a forum to expound and indoctrinate the student with atheistic, socialist, communistic doctrines which threaten our very existence.

"I shall try to create a climate of instruction so favorable that when a student enters our doors he will find education of excellence.

"Give me your help," Dr. Taylor asked, "not for my sake but for the sake of this great institution and the young people who are beloved treasures and our hope for the morrow. Give us the financial support we need. Give us your prayers; and with the assistance of Almighty God we shall make this great institution a blessing to our state and to all mankind."

Informal 'Summit' Possible

LONDON (UPI) — Diplomatic speculation revived here Saturday that Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and President Kennedy May meet after all during the latter's forthcoming Europe tour next month.

Speculation of a possible informal "summit" between the two Western leaders was stirred by the invitation of the Northern Ireland government to Kennedy to attend the opening of the "Giants Causeway" in Antrim.

This event coincides with Kennedy's tour of Europe which includes visits to Italy, Bonn, Berlin, and Dublin.

The invitation of the North Ireland government was passed to Kennedy by Macmillan personally, it was disclosed in London.

This move has strengthened the belief that Macmillan wants to use the opportunity of the ceremony for a quick meeting with the President.

British government spokesmen had no official comment. They said they know of no formal arrangements so far for a top level get-together.

But Diplomatic sources did not rule out the possibility of a brief Kennedy-Macmillan meeting of an informal character before long.

Washington reports reaching here to date have not encouraged expectations of such a summit.

The Prime Minister was known to be anxious for another talk with Kennedy. They met in Nassau last December when they agreed that Britain should acquire American - made Polaris rockets for a small fleet of nuclear submarines.

Brazil Plane Crash Probe Is Begun

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — Brazilian officials began an investigation Saturday of the crash of a shuttle plane which killed 34 persons, including two Americans, and badly injured 16 others.

The crippled, twin-engine Brazilian airliner with 42 passengers and 8 crewmen aboard crashed into a Sao Paulo suburb and burst into flames Friday night while apparently trying to return to the city on one engine.

The two Americans listed among the 28 fatalities so far were identified as James Hughes, 47, head of the supply department of the General Electric Co. in Brazil; and Leonard Levison, whom an airline official said was believed to be a Merchant Marine officer.

Hughes, a native of Palestine, Tex., had lived in Rio de Janeiro for 12 years. There was no immediate indication of Levison's hometown.

Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, president of the U. S. Olympic committee, said none of the U. S. athletes or officials attending the 4th Pan American games in Sao Paulo was aboard the plane.

An official of the Cruzeiro Do Sul airline company said the work of identifying the bodies was still going on. He said the task was difficult because passengers' names were registered only when they stepped aboard the shuttle flight, known as the "Ponte Aerea" (aerial bridge) between Porto Alegre, Sao Paulo and Rio.

The airline's commercial manager said an investigation had been started to determine the cause of the crash.

Officials said the crippled Convair airliner plowed into an unoccupied house in suburban Paulista Planalto while trying to return to Congonhas Airport, 10 miles from the center of the city.

The flaming wreckage set afire two houses across the street but authorities said none of the residents were killed.

Police said four persons were killed, however, when their automobile was rammed by a fire engine speeding to the disaster scene.

Auto Crashes Establishment; Patron Injured

Three traffic violations were lodged against a Monroe Negro late Saturday after he crashed into a DeSiard Street Negro tavern, slightly injuring a patron.

Monroe police booked John H. Smith, 55, Negro of 500 Marx St., for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, reckless driving and damage to property.

He reportedly was driving west on DeSiard Street around 8 p.m., turned off the street and crashed into the front of Lisotta's Bar, located in the 1300 block. Rebecca Johnson, 1904 R. Flynn St., sitting on a bench at the place, sustained minor injuries. Around $600 worth of damage was inflicted on the building.

The Monroe department also filed DWI, reckless driving and no driver's license counts against a Farmerville man. Charles Gibson, 27, of route one, Farmerville, was taken into custody on the charges at 7:30 p.m. at North Sixth and Louisville Avenue.

West Monroe officers also booked a man, Woodrow W. Maza, 46, of Crawford and Jonesboro Road, West Monroe for DWI Saturday. He was apprehended at 2:30 p.m. at Jeanette's Drive-In on U. S. Highway 80.

Meanwhile, no details were available late Saturday in a wreck on Nutland Lane in which one boy sustained fractures of the arm and leg. The body was tentatively identified as Arthur Keys, Monroe.

Girl Is Attacked; Police Book Man

West Monroe police booked Ellender L. Bishop, 27, of 607 Vick St., West Monroe, for attempted aggravated rape following the incident and he was transferred to the Ouachita Parish jail.

Bishop was apprehended within 30 minutes of the time they received the report of the incident, which allegedly took place as the girl walked off the end of the old traffic bridge between 11:30 p.m. and midnight Friday. She was reportedly dragged to the railroad depot by her assailant, her clothing badly torn and she was bruised and scratched.

West Monroe police also were investigating the reported theft of a lawnmower from a yard at 515 Travis St. The mower belonged to Mrs. W. T. Montgomery.

Monroe police were looking for the party who stole the Northeast State College patrol car, and apparently took it for a "spin" Friday night. The car light on top, was found by police Saturday morning abandoned on Deborah Drive. It was reportedly taken from the college between 10:45 and 11:15 p.m. Friday, with three-fourths of a tank of gas. The incident was reported by the campus security officer, Robert C. Tate, 1310 College Ave., Monroe.

Also being probed by the Monroe department was the burglary of the jukebox at the Negro Recreation Center on Renwick Street, in which an undertermined amount of money was taken. The incident was reported Saturday morning.

Two Negroes were booked for theft in Monroe Saturday. A. C. Kendricks, Negro, 40, of 203 N. 14th St., was booked for theft after a warrant was obtained for him by Lawson Bradford, of Rt. 2, Monroe. Kendricks was held under a $500 bond. Eighteen-year-old Willie Lee Henderson, 310 Eighth St., Monroe, was booked for theft in connection with some copper tubing which was taken from a warehouse on Oak Street.

Late Saturday, Monroe police booked a 47-year-old Negro, Amos Coleman, 1111 Powell Ave., for theft. He was taken into custody today at a shopping center for shoplifting a 98 - cent package of razor blades.

Mrs. Taylor, 35, Dies; Services Slated Monday

Mrs. Dorothy Posey Taylor, 35, of 1211 8th Street in Monroe, died Saturday morning in a local hospital following a heart attack suffered Thursday.

Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Monday in Calvary Baptist Church with the Rev. L. L. Morris officiating.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery under direction of Peters Funeral Home of Monroe.

A native of Oak Grove, Mrs. Taylor had resided in Monroe for the past 14 years. She was a member of the Calvary Baptist Church and was secretary for the St. Francis Hospital.

Survivors include her husband, James A. Taylor, Monroe; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Posey, Monroe; a daughter, Miss Shiela Ann Taylor, Monroe; a son, James A. Taylor, Monroe; four sisters, Mrs. Thomas Dupree, Monroe, Mrs. Inez Dupree and Mrs. Berter Payne, both of Dallas, Tex. and Mrs. Bessie Crumby, Helena, Ark.; two brothers, W. A. Posey, Dallas, Tex. and Earl Posey, Monroe.

Explosion Rips Hole In Roof Of Negro Drugstore

CLARKSDALE, Miss. (AP) — An explosion ripped a hole in the roof of his drugstore Saturday night, Aaron Henry, state president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said.

"There was quite a concussion and quite a bit of glass inside the store is broken," Henry said.

Henry and Deputy Sheriff Fitzgerald Farris said no one was injured.

Farris, contacted at the scene, said deputy state Fire Marshal Louis Hopkins of Lula was on the roof examining the hole, which Farris said was 4-by-6 feet across inside, and about 14 inches in diameter outside.

Farris and Henry said there was a large amount of water damage inside the store from heavy rain, but no fire.

Henry said about 8 to 10 persons were in the store when the blast came.

Conflict Looms Between France, West Germany

BONN, Germany (AP) — A conflict looms between France and West Germany this week on the Common Market's approach to world trade.

One major sisue: What stand should the six member nations take in the talks that start in Geneva May 16 with the United States and the other major trading nations on plans for the next big round of international tariff cutting?

Europeans are already calling these tariff-cutting negotiations, which start next year, the Kennedy round. That stems from the fact President Kennedy is empowered to cut almost all U.S. tariffs by 50 per cent.

Prospects for the negotiations have worsened because of a disagreement within the Common Market, typified by France's veto of Britain's bid for membership.

Foreign ministers of the six Common Market nations—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—will meet in Brussels, Belgium next Wednesday and Thursday. The ministers make up the council that rules the organization.

West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville will try to smooth over differences in the spirit of the new Paris-Bonn treaty, but it will be uphill work.

"French-German relations do not consist exclusively of promenades in a garden of roses," a West German official observed.

West Germany is eager for an agreement that will widen markets for its industrial products. As a big food importer, it has no objection to American insistence on including farm products in the tariff cutting.

France, traditionally a high-tariff country, is much less eager to make a deal. When it comes to farm products, France wants to increase sale of its surpluses within the Common Market and shut out the United States as much as possible.

For the Brussels meeting West Germany gives first place to the need for reaching an agreement among the six members on a policy for the Geneva talks.

Point No. 2 in the German proposal is to set up a system for regular consultation between the six and Britain. The French are known to be cool to any such plan.

The West German program would put off for a year an agreement within the Common Market on the marketing of beef, dairy products and rice. The French are pressing for a quick agreement. They want to know where they stand on these major products before going into the Geneva talks.

There are other causes for friction.

Among West German officials there is a feeling their country is making too much of a contribution to the Common Market and France is getting too many of the benefits.

West Germany, for instance, puts out 34 per cent of the development fund for the African nations with associate membership. All but two of those nations are former French colonies. The Germans complain that France, therefore, gets the lion's share of the contracts.

BATON ROUGE STUDENT

Ewing Journalism Award Presented

SHREVEPORT (Special)—Joseph W. Darby III of Baton Rouge, a junior in the Louisiana State University School of Journalism, has been named the recipient of the $800 Robert Ewing Scholarhip at an annual awards program.

The Ewing award is made from the earnings of a trust fund set up in honor of the late Col. Robert Ewing, Louisiana newspaper editor and political and civic leader. Recipients must be journalism majors and they are chosen for scholarship, character and journalistic capabilities.

Establishing the award with a $35,000 trust fund were the late John D. Ewing, former editor and publisher of The Shreveport Times, his sister, the late Mrs. Ester Ewing Brown, his brothers, the late James Ewing, the late Wilson Ewing and the late Toulmin Ewing, and Robert Ewing Jr., chairman of the board of The Times Publishing Co., Ltd. of Shreveport, and the Monroe News-Star—World Pub. Corp.

Darby, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Darby Jr., is president of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity. He is also employed by the Associated Press. He has served as a reporter and news editor for the "Reveille," LSU student newspaper.

SHREVEPORTER

Winner of the recently established Armstrong Loan Service and All-American Assurance Co. Award is William George Clark of Shreveport, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Clark of 1910 Capt. Shreve Drive. The $25 award is made each semester to the outstanding news or sports editor on the "Reveille." Clark has been a news editor on the paper for two semesters.

He is a member of the honor council, Phi Delta Theta social fraternity, Sigma Delta Chi and was a Centennial Award winner. He is also a member of Phi Kappa Phi, national honor society.

Recognized by Sigma Delta Chi as the outstanding male graduating senior was one of its members, Steve Bosarge of Pascagoula, Miss. Bosarge, editor of the "Reveille," is the holder of a Greater Washington, D. C. Alumni Chapter Scholarship, a non-resident scholarship, and was last year's recipient of the Robert Ewing Scholarship. He is a member of Mu Sigma Rho, honor fraternity for students in liberal arts, education and music, and Phi Eta Sigma, honor society for freshmen men.

Bosarge is also a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, national honor society for college men of outstanding leadership.

Winner of the Lester J. Williams award of $100 for the most meritorious reporting for the "Reveille" for this year was Pat Boutte of Gramercy. Miss Boutte is president of Theta Sigma Phi, professional society for women in journalism.

The Williams award was established by the late Dr. Williams, a Baton Rouge radiologist who edited the "Reveille" in 1900.

Theta Sigma Phi presented an award for the outstanding sophomore woman in journalism to Elizabeth Barham of Bastrop. Miss Barham is a member of Kappa Delta social sorority and has worked with the Student Government Association. She is a pledge of Theta Sigma Phi.

Betsy Boushall of Houston was named outstanding senior woman in journalism by the professional chapter of Theta Sigma Phi. Miss Boushall, past president of Theta Sigma Phi, is in charge of the publicity for the LSU Union.

Bobby Kennedy Sends 2 Aides To Birmingham

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy canceled a speech to remain in his office Saturday, and dispatched two top aides to Birmingham, Ala., in an effort to ease racial tensions there.

President Kennedy was reported dismayed at the violence there, a visitor to his office reported.

The president also was keeping in close touch with Birmingham developments. The Justice department said Robert Kennedy had talked with the President Friday night and several times Saturday morning, and planned another telephone report to Kennedy later at his Camp David, Md., retreat.

The attorney general had been scheduled to deliver a Law Day address at the University of Virginia Law School at Charlottesville, Va. Instead, he remained in his Justice Department office to keep in touch with the situation.

C. Burke Marshall, assistant attorney general in charge of the Civil Rights Division, and Joseph F. Dolan, assistant deputy attorney general, were dispatched to Birmingham.

They were to confer with white and Negro leaders, seeking some possible easing of tentions which have accompanied a series of Negro demonstrations there.

President Kennedy's reaction to the disorders was reported by John P. Roche, national chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action, one of 20 members of the organization who met with Kennedy Saturday for a half-hour.

Roche said the President discussed the use of police dogs and water hoses to break up Negro demonstrations in Birmingham.

Roche would not give any further details of the meeting. He said the session was requested by Kennedy, who has been subjected to criticism by the liberal organization.

"He told us he welcomed our criticism but he wished it would be more constructive," Roche told newsmen. "I take that to mean he wished it would be less critical."

Roche said the ADA has a broad framework of agreement with Kennedy's program but feels he is not exercising enough leadership to get it approved by Congress. The delegation urged Kennedy to carry his fight to the voters, especially in the fields of civil rights and aid to education, Roche said.

Tax Cut Group Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Formation of a new nationwide citizens committee to help mobilize support for an early and substantial tax cut is being considered by a number of labor, consumer and professional organizations.

AFL-CIO leaders have sat in on preliminary meetings, a federation spokesman said Saturday, and have expressed interest in setting up a counterpart group to the business committee for tax reduction in 1963, formed recently.

Like the business group—organized by auto industrialist Henry Ford II and 35 other nationally prominent businessmen—the proposed citizens committee would have the blessing and help of the Treasury Department.

Treasury sources acknowledged that "meetings have been held and plans discussed" for the citizens committee, and said the Treasury would welcome its formation as a logical follow-up to the effort of the business leaders. The proposed committee would embrace unions, professional groups, educators, economists and consumer spokesmen.

An AFL-CIO spokesmen said the federation "has been approached and is certainly receptive." The AFL-CIO has been pushing actively for tax cuts benefiting chiefly the lower-and middle-income taxpayer groups. The federation favors major tax reforms as a second step but has taken the position that reduction should not wait on reforms.

The Ford group, it was learned also, is now sending invitations to more than 1,500 business leaders across the country to form state and local committees of businessmen to push for action by Congress this session.

The business group has undertaken to raise $120,000 by voluntary subscriptions, most of which would be spent on newspaper and magazine advertising.

Ford and his cochairman, President Stuart T. Saunders of the Norfolk & Western Railroad have called a meeting of their 10-man executive committee next Saturday at Hot Springs, Va.

Tomlinson To Be Guest Of Dinner Club

Edward Tomlinson, authority on inter - American affairs, roving editor for Reader's Digest in that field, and author of hundreds of syndicated articles on the problems of the Americas will be the guest speaker to address members of the Executives Dinner Club, May 11 at the Paragon Club it was announced Saturday by John A. Rudisill, president of the club.

Tomlinson who spends almost one - half his time in the other Americas, has only very recently come back to the United States after an exhaustive study of conditions in countries from Mexico to Argentine.

He has covered all trips of Presidents Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, and more recently, Kennedy's visit to these countires.

He has experienced 14 revolutions in the past 35 years.

He was the first American journalist to warn of the Commies' invasion of the South American and Central American countries.

Several years ago he witnessed their propagandizing and predicted it would be followed by strikes, the hamstringing of industry and perhaps other rebellions — such as was climaxed first in Guatemala and later in other Latin American countries.

Spotlight Is On Former Premier

PARIS (AP)—The French political spotlight turned Saturday to the island of Reunion, a remote volcanic dot in the Indian Ocean, for the possible return of ex-Premier Michel Debre to the French National Assembly.

Debre, faithful adherent of President Charles de Gaulle, is a candidate there for a seat in the assembly in a special byelection Sunday.

In all, Reunion and two departments of Metropolitan France are voting to fill four vacant places.

Interest in the Debre campaign stems both from his close relationship to De Gaulle and from the evident plan of Gaullist assemblymen to make Debre their floor leader if elected.

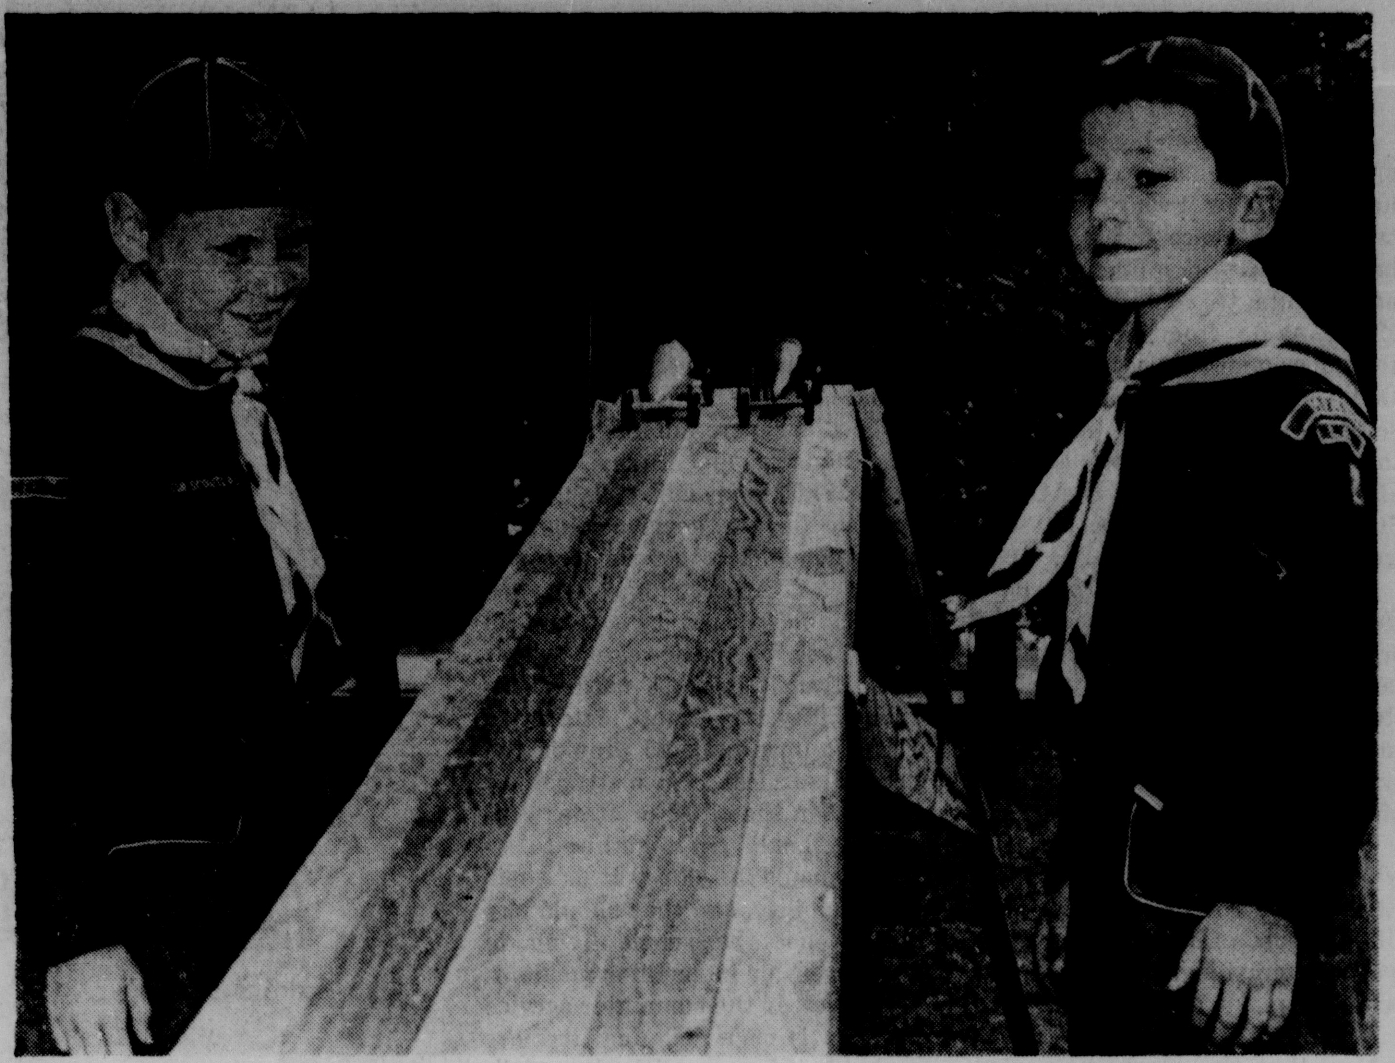
Skills, Thrills Spark Pinewood Derby

HOW MUCH does it weigh? Cub Scouts Rickey Walker and Ronnie Moore, center, watch apprehensively as judge, Bob Hanna, and den mother Mrs. N. J. Herlevic determine whether the "pinewood racer" meets the five-ounce maximum.



BIG MOMENT comes as handmade cars, poised at pinnacle, are released for speed run down 31foot track. Clayton Gibson Jr., left, and Rickey Walker await the test of skill. (Staff Photos by Ben Bradford)

Under the craftsmanship of Cub Scouts here, small blocks of pinewood are carved into cars to be run in Pinewood Derby competition. Often the running is close and hopes for victory range high.

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

It's a race on a 31-foot track, where seven - inch cars built by seven-year-old boys whip down the runway at jackrabbit speeds.

This is the Pinewood Derby—a nationwide Cub Scout event coming into its own this week in Ouachita parish, when the first Councilwide Championship race in the United States will take place.

Fourteen proven winners from preliminary races throughout the district will compete in the first annual All - District Ouachita Valley Council Pinewood Derby Championship Race next Saturday at 4 p.m.

Bleachers will be set up for spectators at the event on the Ouachita Valley Fairgrounds in West Monroe.

HIGHLIGHT

The Derby will highlight the Boy Scout Council's Skil-o-rama, which replaces the annual Scout Circus as a major spring attraction this year.

Cub Scouts aged seven through 10 will compete, two each from the Council's seven districts.

Cub Scouts in the race will come from Newellton, Waterproof, Lake Providence, Winnfield, Ruston, Tallulah, Jonesboro, Bernice, Hodge, Winnsboro, Oak Grove, Rayville, Farmerville, Delhi and Bastrop, as well as Monroe and West Monroe.

Each already is a proven winner, four-times. The cars in the Derby emerge from preliminary races, where they won twice in the Cub Scout Pack, and from semi-finals where they won two times over all other competition.

There's not a motor, valve or battery among them.

He can add windshield, steering wheel, even a "driver" — just so long as the car meets maximum five-ounce weight requirements.

They may grease, oil, sand and even use liquid graphite.

But too much lubrication and they stand a chance of seeing the wheels stick on the crucial run.

"I've even seen some of the wheels come off as they run down the incline," said Den Mother Mrs. L. A. Hunnicutt of 1709 N. Fifth St.

But for every minor tragedy there is the compensating thrill which accompanies the Indianapolis Speedway or the Kentucky Derby.

TRACK AT ANGLE

The track slopes at about a 40-degree angle to the ground.

Wire mechanisms release both cars at once. They compete twice, once on each side of the track, in case the track favors one side due to slope or angle.

Winners of the first double-running compete again until three winners are selected.

"Anywhere from two days to a month" — that's how long it takes for a boy to complete work on a car.

"One little boy practically wore down my sidewalk, coming back for equipment," laughs Mrs. Hunnicutt. "First it was a hammer, then a file, then 'I don't have the right shade of paint, have you got it?' "

EXPECTS TO WIN

Every cub expects to win. Some of them work out original designs. Others put to use the winning features from known racing cars, or last year's winners.

"Home" plays a big part in the final results.

"We always think of underprivileged youngsters as coming from slum areas. Sometimes you find a boy from a better home, who is more underprivileged because his parents are too busy to have any interest in his activities," officials reveal.

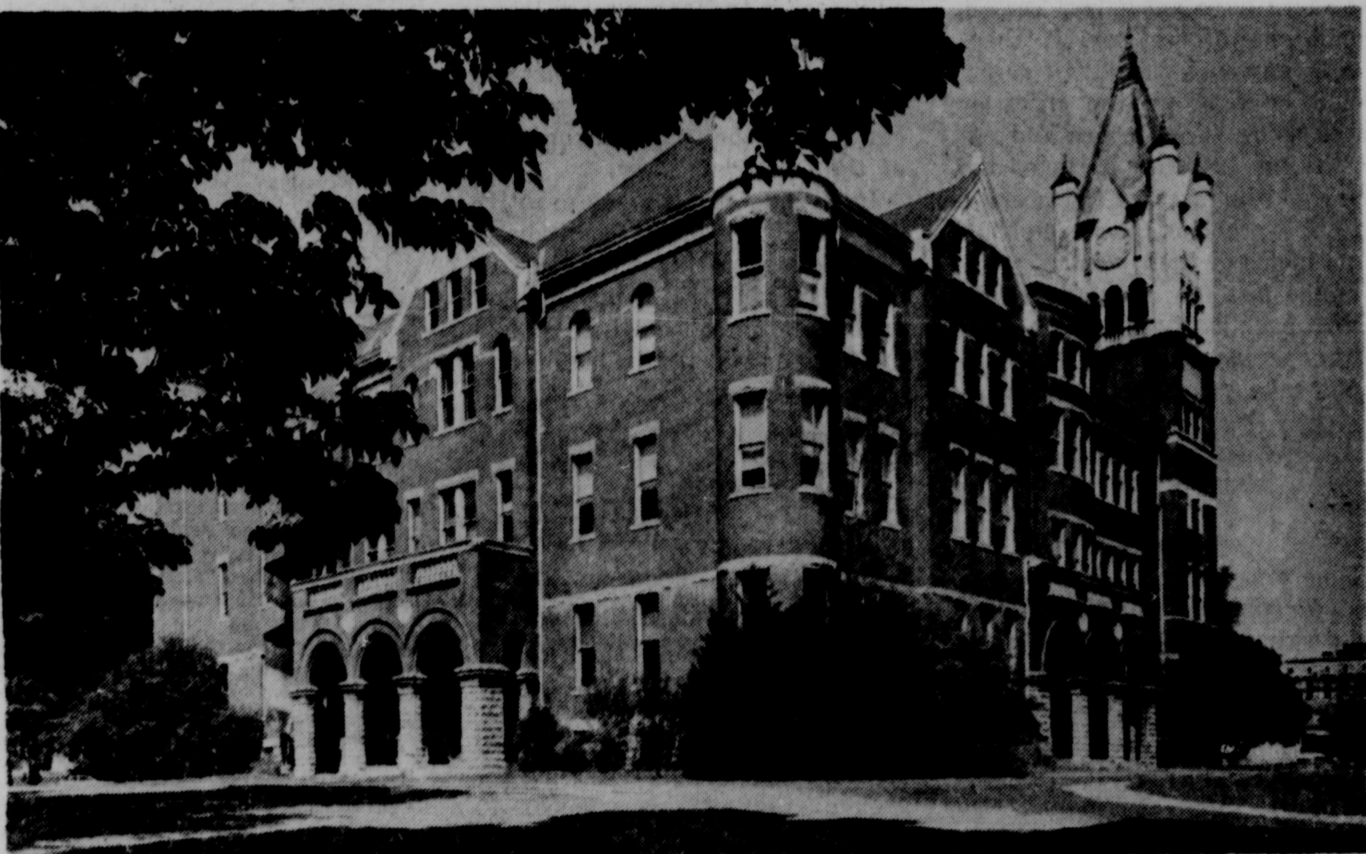
End Of A Symbol Is Near

A well-known Monroe landmark soon will be removed by demolition crews, and there will be many to lament. The structure once known as City High School and later as Central Grammar School, marked an important forward step in educational facilities when it was constructed at the turn of the century.



IN THE TWILIGHT of its existence stands old Central Grammar School, once the home of City High School, and a center of learning in Monroe for 57 years before its closing in the spring of 1957. Soon demolition crews will write its final chapter.

A symbol of the Monroe City School System's early history will be toppled soon when demolition crews start to work on the old Central Grammar School building, once known as City High School.

The three-story red brick structure which stands condemned and deserted in the tree-shaded block bounded by Jackson, Oak, St. John and Wood, was the scene of 57 years of school operations.

Construction work was started on the building in 1899 under the administration of Mayor A. A. Forsythe. On January 15, 1900, the cornerstone was laid, and in September of that year classes were opened.

12 GRADES

From that time until September, 1931, when the new Neville High School building was opened, the building housed grades one through 12, and was known as City High School. After that it served only as quarters for grade school, and was renamed Central Grammar School.

In 1955 the structure was condemned. It was condemned again in 1956 and in 1957. The last classes were held in it in May, 1957.

The Monroe City School Board continued to maintain offices there until moving into a new building on Roselawn about two months ago. That set the stage for the final chapter in the building's long history.

When the annual Neville High School Alumni banquet is held 7:15 p.m. Tuesday at the Paragon Supper Club, the thoughts of those in attendance will turn back to the old City High School, and the graduating class of 1913 will be honored.

Frank Breese, Monroe City School Board member, started as a kindergarten student in Old City High School and graduated from the 12th grade there in 1930. He has scrap books containing many details on the early history of the structure, and information on the city school system dating back many years before the establishment of the high school.

LONG WALK

Breese, the student, lived in old Trenton on the west side of the Ouachita River, and walked to school. Foot power was the primary means of getting youngsters to and from school, and many walked long distances.

The school board member estimated that around 700 persons graduated from Old City High School, and there were many others who dropped out shortly before graduation time.

The roster of graduates includes persons who have done well in many fields of endeavor. The list includes Navy rear admirals, retired Marine general, wartime flying aces, attorneys, doctors, educators, operatic singer, musicians, editors, artists, business executives, financiers, and many others.

Breese said land on which the Old City High School was constructed was donated mainly by Grammont Filhiol, Father Enaut, and Judge Henry Bry.

The school board member said "The Old Ouachita Female Academy once was located on the corner of the same square on which the old high school was built, and in the middle of that block facing Wood Street was the first Catholic school in Monroe."

The first superintendent of City High School, Breese recalled, was Franklin Garrett, who served without pay. Later Earnest L. Neville, after whom Neville High School was named, became superintendent.

"Until 1921," Breese explained, "the entire city system was in that building."

The construction of City High School building marked an upward turning point in the history of public school operations here. The structure which Breese described as "turn of the century Victorian influence" in design, was considered by some persons as extravagant. There was an exterior circling fire escape which was never needed for fire emergency, but drew playful students although its use as a recreation slide was forbidden. Once someone poured oil on the fire escape and about 25 children soiled their clothes on it.

"I think its safe to say that when the school opened there were 30 students in high school classes, and 90 in elementary and junior high classes," said Breese. He estimated there were four students in the first year's graduating class and a similar number to complete 12th grade work the second year.

Schools did not prosper here in the early 1800's, Breese explained. Shortage of funds and disease epidemics, and at times a shortage of children, contributed to this situation.

There were private schools at various times, "but the first attempt to set up a city school was in 1811," said Breese. For some time a school would open and operate for two or three years and then close for lack of money.

"It was in the 1840's before they made much headway toward getting schools started," the school board member continued. "'Between 1840 and 1850, a yellow fever epidemic occurred here every year. The population of Ouachita Parish was 3,200 people including slaves in 1840. Ouachita and Morehouse were not separated until 1850. All the territory was known as Ouachita.

"According to old letters we discovered, around 1845 nearly all the children had been killed by yellow fever. There were only about 15 children left. That killed the school system again. Most of the large plantations had their own tutors who taught the whites and Negroes."

Old records revealed that the first two teachers brought from New Orleans to the Monroe system, the first in 1811, and the second in 1813, died of yellow fever within six months after arriving.

Some early graduates of Old City High School recall that the courses were tough. Courses included art, music; in the commercial department, business courses including shorthand and typing. All high school students were required to take four years of Latin, algebra, plain and solid geometry, trigonometry, four years of science including botany, zoology, chemistry, physics, history—American, French, English, medieval and modern. There also was a home economics department.

Why Foot Their Bills?

In another grandiose plan for spending huge sums it does not have, the New Frontier administration has concocted a plan for handing out vast millions in loans and grants to some selected big cities. Aside from the fact that the government expects, in return, that these cities will allow themselves to be put under the federal thumb, the proposal would make all of the taxpayers of the United States help pay for special services to the big cities.

Evidently suffering from delusions of grandeur, the senate approved the urban mass transportation act of 1963. What the senate did was to vote $375 millions to be used to modernize transit systems in some of the nation's big cities.

This sum would give no benefits whatever to most of the towns and cities of the country and no benefits to most of the citizens. It is special interest legislation that proposes to make all of us pay and only a few of us receive.

Now that the senate has acted in what appears to be an extremely unwise and unfair way, the United States house of representatives has the real responsibility of insisting that metropolitan areas and states handle their own transportation problems.

There seems to be strong reason to believe that the Kennedy administration is not entirely unselfish in wanting passage of this legislation. In New England, which happens to be the area in which the Kennedys live, private rail lines, which have heavy tax burdens and the usual high costs of labor, have indicated they cannot provide commuter service as they formerly did.

The legislation also is being pushed because such vote-important big cities as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and others are having trouble with their local commuter services.

It is true, of course, that commuter rail service is vexing to rail lines, as the traffic rush is tremendous during the morning and later afternoon hours and business is virtually at a standstill the rest of the day. This means that hundreds of expensive railroad cars are tied up because of a demand that falls only in a brief period of the day.

Because of the these conditions, public authorities in New York and elsewhere have subsidized certain commuter rail services. If there is to be any such subsidy, it surely should be paid by the cities or states using such service and not by citizens in other parts of the country who are not concerned with that problem, but have plenty of problems of their own.

In the last few years, however, a great push has been made toward getting taxpayers across the country to take on a problem that belongs to only a few areas. The liberals want the federal government gradually to take over all mass transportation systems in urbanized regions. Such a program would amount to many billions of dollars annually. The federal spending, as initiated in the act passed by the Senate, would be in the hands of Robert Weaver, administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency. This spending plan would provide for the development of a tremendous new government empire.

This bill should be cut out in the House. The basic reason is that mass transit is not a national responsibility. If private enterprise finds it unsuitable to provide the desired services in a metropolitan area, then the cities or states concerned should get together to do what should be done. It is their responsibility, and they should pay for it—not the people living in rural areas or in small or medium-size cities. If the commuter service problem is overwhelming, it most probably is because cities have failed to think ahead and plan for the future. The nation's taxpayers should not be forced to underwrite a huge new subsidy program because of a lack of municipal foresight.

If ever there were a local responsibility, it is a mass transit. The situation with commuter trains, for instance, can't be compared with the federal highway program. The new superhighways are built in all parts of the country. They are used by people who travel about the entire land on pleasure or business. But an urban mass transit system doesn't serve the nation; it serves the people of only one city or one state, at the most. Thus, it is only fair and logical that the users pay for the mass transit system, if private lines are not available. People in Alabama or Texas or West Virginia should not be asked to finance commuter trains for people who work in downtown New York or Chicago.

If these arguments weren't sufficient to demolish the urban transit bill, the general condition of the federal budget should cause proponents of the legislation to admit their error. The country is heading into bigger and bigger deficits. It has been estimated that the deficit —over a four-year period — will amount to $30 billion. If the United States is to finance mass transit for the nation's big cities, expenditures running to billions will be required. This would be a grievous blow at the financial condition of the country.

It is time for the conservative (or fiscally sensible) coalition to get to work to kill this piece of legislative folly. The urban mass transportation bill of 1963 should meet its end in the house of representatives.

'You Boo, I'll Sue'

Time was when a person who sued for physical injury at least had a skinned knuckle. Since drivers now must carry liability insurance or face the threat of losing their licenses, that is all changed. If two cars bump together, some one is likely to assert his back doesn't feel so good and to claim he should be compensated. But the end is not yet. Now people are starting to sue if you say boo. They claim serious emotional disturbance resulting from fright.

Even when the scare was accidental, unavoidable and involved no physical contact, latest trends in damage suits, according to Insider's Newsletter, indicate there may be ground for suit.

The American Medical Association's legal division staged a mock "fright" trail at its recent convention to highlight the issues involved. These men believe that many states which now throw such cases out of court will soon begin allowing the introduction of psychiatric evidence in substantiation of damage claims.

The thorniest problem acknowledged by the AMA is that the litigant most likely to be affected by fright is one with a history of psychological problems. The courts will be called upon to decide whether a defendant should pay for a lifetime neurosis the accident did not cause but only exaggerated.

Many lawyers are outspoken against the "fright" concept on the ground that it opens doors to fraud and chicanery in the courts. Of course, there are many cases of that kind in which physical injury is claimed.

Most of us have had the "daylights" frightened out of us on a number of occasions without any perceptible lasting ill effects.

If suits become much easier to collect on, everybody will have to spend about a fourth of his income protecting himself against such claims.

A New York State survey asserts there is no overwhelming evidence of superiority for either the phonic or the look — and — say method of teaching reading.

A substance that repels boll weevils and that may eventually help control the pests has been discovered in the cotton plants themselves by Mississippi Experiment Station scientists.

Also Favors Signals

Wisner, La.

To The Editor:

I am writing you to encourage you in your battle to get the lights at the railroad crossing at Jewell street in West Monroe.

In this connection, I will tell you how we got them at the Elam Crossing in Wisner, at which our son (17 years old) and his three high school companions were killed on April 7, 1955. Ours was the fifth such accident at this crossing. It sounds like to me that the two crossings had a similar situation. Namely, that they were more susceptable to accidents than normal crossings, and that there had not been sufficient time between accidents and the attendant legal proceedings for the railroads involved to enstall traffic signals either at their own or other peoples expense. For to do so, they told us, would be to admit responsibility for the accident suit then in court, and this, they could not afford to do.

So, before legal matters in court could be cleared after the last accident, another occurred, and more fine young people paid with their lives for the delay. Also, as has been your case, Mr. McKeithen, our public service commissioner, assured us immediately after the accident that he would do every thing possible in his office to have the railroad place warning signals at the Elam crossing. But then, shortly later, he completely reversed his petition.

It is a sad day for the citizens when their elected representatives are more sensitive to pressure from lobbyists than they are to the needs of their constituents. This problem is not peculiar to the public service commissioner. It reaches further to the legislative branch of our state government. If it were not for the insiduous "Louisiana Law, Stop" signs, which completely relieve the railroads from crossing accident responsibility, but which the State will not enforce, then the railroads would somehow guard crossings such as Elam Crossing in Wisner and Jewell Street Crossing in West Monroe.

My theory is that if a state embraces a law, it is therefore obligated to enforce it and it will not enforce, it, then it should be removed from the Statutes. I do not care which they do, but in either case, these brutal crossing accidents would be stopped.

And so, we got signal lights at Elam Crossing by refusing to settle out of court for a token settlement unless signal lights were installed. There being four families involved and four young people killed, this was a substantial saving to the railroad company and they could well afford to put in the lights. I hope you do not have to pay so dearly for them, but what ever the cost, it's worth it.

Mrs. Rupert R. Scott

Presidential Electors

Alexandria, La.

To the Editor:

In my judgment, there seems to be one fair and honest solution to the problem of "Presidential Electors". The Presidential Elector controversy can only be resolved, in our democracy, when the paramount consideration is recognized to be the right of each individual voter to have the opportunity to clearly express his choice as between the several alternatives.

It must be conceded that every voter in Louisiana must have the right and privilege to vote for the national candidate of the Democratic party if he so desires, or for the national candidate for the Republican party if he so desires. If he does not approve of the candidates of either major national party, he should have the right to vote for "independent" or "unpledged" electors committed to no national party allegiance.

As a member of the Democratic State Central Committee since 1948, I have advocated and still favor legislation which would sanction the following:

First: The Democratic State Central Committee and the Democratic party machinery in Louisiana should, in presidential elections, place on the ballot under the traditional party emblem — the rooster — a set of electors who are pledged to support the Democratic party's nominees.

Second: The Republican State Central Committee and the Republican party machinery in Louisiana should, in presidential elections, place on the ballot under their traditional party emblem — the elephant — a set of electors who are pledged to support the nominees of the Republican party.

Third: There should be some procedure available to permit placing on the ballot a set of electors who are either "independent" or "unpledged". These electors would then vote for a president without regard to party affiliation.

In this way, every registered voter will be able to exercise the right to which he is entitled, as a citizen of Louisiana and of the United States, to clearly express his views and to intelligently designate his choice in national elections.

Camille F. Gravel, Jr.

Writes To Hartley

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Please print the following letter:

Monroe, La.

Mr. Ben R. Hartley,
Editor, Presbyterian Survey,
341 Ponce De Leon Avenue,
Northeast,
Atlanta 8, Georgia.

Dear Sir:

I thank you tor the forthright admissions of your letter in which you find no biblical or biological injunction to prohibit white-negro marriages but confess marriage by your daughter or son to a Negro would pain you, not for reason of race difference but because of persons who would crucify them therefor, and expressing grief for people who worship your God yet disclaim love and responsibility for certain of His children.

I have profound respect for the good Negro and no public officer ever treated him with more kindness or shielded him with more protection. I believe they should have every right accorded them by law, even the right of suffrage but with safeguards with-holding suffrage until by exemplary citizenship their ability is demonstrated to exercise that right (but better than Negroes have exemplified in black Washington, D. C.) without unwittingly yielding en masse to political Judas goats, resulting in destruction of American ideals vouchsafed by the constitution even to whites.

Your declaration that you find no biblical injunction to prohibit intermarriage with Negroes is your right to interpret. By the same right I find no biblical directive, either express or implied, to intermarry, but I do find compelling biological reasons forbidding it.

Since the Christian Church has so recently pronounced segregation sinful, it thereby indicts itself before the Bar of Christ for sinful conduct during two thousand years it has condoned it by acquiescence. And by the same token it imputes the same sin to Christ Himself, for although millions of Negroes were available, I find no Negro seated with Him at the Lord's Last Supper. I do find, however, His command for slave to obey master. By implied castigation, also are condemned to graves of sin, our departed fathers and mothers and all preceding them in death, for our beliefs were their beliefs.

On your question of biological inhibition, surely you know that eminent, unbiased, Christian anthropologists find the Negro race to be 200,000 years behind the white race on the ladder of evolution, with volumes of supporting truths, among them the established fact of invariable deterioration of the white race when it has engaged in intermarriage with Negroes. For living example, look to Latin-America and other climes southward, which demonstrate irrefutably that interbreeding of the races deteriorates the superior race. And if you wish scientific facts read after Doctors Coon, George, Garrett and a host of other scholarly Christian anthropologists, dedicated to truth in research, regardless of consequences. But nonetheless, we are exhorted to destroy the white race because bleeding hearts shout BROTHERHOOD! "Thou fool, this night, etc." I defy successful justification anywhere in holy scripture for destruction of the white race by whatever means. It simply is not to be found!

You express grief that people who profess to love your God disclaim love or responsibility for certain of His children. On the point of love, it depends on what definition you rely. If that measure of love and affection one holds for sweetheart, wife, child or relative, you are simply stargazing into the realm of utter human impossibility, but if you mean that love defined as respect, charity, understanding and helpfulness, you need again to review the record of human achievements, for you are too learned not to know that the Southern White has consistently sustained and supported the black since days of the slave-block (remembering the South did NOT import the slaves), and today would be manifestly more helpful but for outside interference and obstruction, recalling that great strides of advancement were being accomplished by the Negro in the South prior to infamous Black Monday.

Your amazing confession that you would disdain marriage of your daughter or son to a Negro for no other reason than because people would crucify them for marrying a Negro, confesses a weakness hardly becoming your exhalted station as religious educator and runs counter with a doctrine you are by implication urging upon your readers. If YOU cringe before public scorn, what about your Savior? Where would the Christian religion be today had Christ cringed before Calvary's Cross? There would be no Christian religion. But fear not, Christ never uttered one syllable even remotely urging intermarriage.

You are grieved, as explained. I, too, am grieved because there are those of the white race who by shallow thinking would commit their race to genocide.

The Whites of the South as a race, with sparse exceptions, are far removed from the stigma of your apprehension. They are, and will continue to be, friends of the good Negro, but their efforts to maintain tranquil cordiality and friendship are greatly handicapped by unwanted influences of outside intermeddlers, not precluding the possibility of communistic infiltration, who apparently have hood-winked the gullible Southern White Christian Church into a campaign fraught with grave possibilities that well could wreck the Church and eventually destroy the White Race, unless prevented by intervention, tragically long overdue, of sober-thinking White Christians.

Let the evil doers depart and let the White Christian Church of the South revert to the religion of our fathers and mothers, founded on fundamentals dictated by God Himself. Then and then only will the races again abide in peace, harmony and mutural respect and helpfulness.

But mark this well: The White millions who believe as I do that socially and intermarriageably the races should and must remain as far apart as infinite space is fathomless, will expend their last breath to maintain the status quo of peaceful coexistence with our Negro friends, with whom we were raised, whom we respect as God's children in the sphere and category in which God cast them in the beginning, whom we understand as none other can understand them, and for whom we would go to great lengths to aid in time of need, just as has characterized the cordial relationship for many decades anterior to messengers of iniquity come to foment strife, dissension and unhappiness in our midst.

I am requesting publication of this letter in the press and you are urged to publish it in The Presbyterian Survey, although I have no hope of its appearance in the publication I have for long years supported and sustained.

Yours truly,
W. M. Harper

General S. L. A. Marshall Tells Of Communists In Uniform

Buried away in the report of the Senate Armed Services subcommittee hearings on the "Muzzling of the military" is a brief and chilling quote. It comes from the testimony of Brigadier General S. L. A. Marshall, highly respected by his peers, who is also considered a model of moderation by the liberal - labor coalition.

General Marshall's worlds recalled the stormy era when Senator McCarthy was attempting to investigate the remnants of the Julius Rosenberg apparatus in the Army Signal Corps — and being told by every pundit able to pound a typewriter or a lectern that he was destroying morale and smearing the military. To hint that the Communists had any kind of toehold in the services was considered downright treasonable.

Now listen to General Marshall:

"I have, of course, run into Communists in our uniform overseas, even in my own outfit. I had one officer — two officers — who had to be kept in cold storage. I could not let them see any classified papers."

And then, the shocker:

"In the battle of North Korea you will find one incident, and I don't think it has ever been revealed. But there was one company that folded, one only, in the 25th Division. The captain who surrendered this company had been long suspected as a Communist by the people around him." (P. 1287 of the hearings.)

IN A WAR AGAINST a Communist enemy, an officer suspected of Communist loyalties was permitted to take his company into battle and to surrender it to the North Korean Reds. In the same war, officers were kept "in cold storage" because they were considered disloyal. If in a time of actual hostilities, Communists and sympathizers were not weeded out, what is the situation today? This is a question General Marshall does not answer and the Senate subcommittee barely scratched.

I do not blame General Marshall for not summarily sending the suspect officers, with their security files, back to Washington with a recommendation that they be dishonorably discharged. Had he done so, the American Civil Liberties Union would have fired off a petition to the Supreme Court, the bleeding hearts would have set up a 24-hour vigil in front of the White House, and the Fund for the Republic would have allotted half a million dollars for a study of "blacklisting" in the Army.

The men who were captured by the North Korean Reds and underwent the filth and terror of a Chinese communist concentration camp may not — if they survived — have quite such a tolerant view of the matter. Their lives were entrusted to an officer who was presumably of unquestioned patriotism. In a conflict as treacherous as the Korean "police action," the least the Army should have done was to transfer the officer to some innocuous Quartermaster job — counting blankets at Fort Benning, for example.

Reading General Marshall's quiet statement, I wondered why no one asked him why the episode had been kept secret — or what reports he had filed to his superiors on the other Communists in uniform who could not carry out their duties because of their untrustworthiness. I was not surprised that those who poured over the report seeding tidbits of information to use against our military leaders passed over the quotation.

AND THIS GETS ME to the core of the problem. In the past decade, many Americans have been brainwashed into believing that no Communist threat exists, that no Communist infiltration of the nation's sensitive agencies is possible, and that Communist villainy began fading out with the death of Stalin.

Every new disclosure of the internal Communist menace is either ignored or brushed aside as an isolated case. An unrepentant perjuror like Alger Hiss is given a forum on nationwide TV, and the sponsor who objects is called unpleasant names by television executives and slapped with lawsuits. It has become bad form to take internal Communism seriously.

When I am scolded for speaking of the internal Communist threat, I have a simple answer: "If it does not exist, then why is there so much opposition to a thorough and inclusive search in government and in other sensitive areas of our national life? Why is so much time and money spent to silence the House Un-American Activities Committee and the Senate Internal Security subcommittee? Why is the FBI the Communist underground's enemy number one?" I have so far gotten no satisfactory answers. The only answers I get are indirect ones — as when General Marshall tells the Congress in 1962 what he should have shouted to the nation in 1952.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U.S. Senator From Arizona

Congress, in effect, has been telling the Kennedy administration that intimidation will get it nowhere.

But apparently the big spenders along the New Frontier haven't yet got the message.

If they had received it, I doubt if Postmaster General Day would have arrived on Capitol Hill with another round of threats aimed at members of Congress who have the temerity to suggest that the administration's spending budget can be cut.

The postmaster general had his day before a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee. He arrived to argue for the Post Office Department's request for $5 billion for the fiscal year beginning July 1. And he stayed to emphasize the threat of suspended Saturday mail deliveries unless the full request is voted.

Among other things, Day told the senators he would be forced to curtail mail service drastically if a $92 - million cut voted by the House is permitted to stand. He said the House cut was the largest reduction ever aimed at his department and that it could cause widespread damage to bulk mail users.

The tendency of administration officials to warn of dire consequences if Congress refuses to vote them all the money they want, I suggest, stems from statements made by President Kennedy himself.

In his news conferences, the President has replied to questions concerning possible reductions in his $98.8 - billion spending budget by implying that such costs could cause economic trouble as well as impair the government's services to the people. His attitude has been that the White House knows best how much money should be appropriated. And his underlings have been very quick to take up the cudgels along these lines.

FOR EXAMPLE, THE PRESIDENT has repeatedly said that if Congress doesn't reduce taxes and approve his spending program, the nation can expect its fifth postwar recession in the not-too-distant future. He has warned of a high unemployment rate lasting for 10 years unless the administration has its own way.

In view of this, of course, it wasn't surprising to find House Majority Leader McCormack (D-Mass.) arguing that a cut in public works funds would throw the nation into recession. Nor was it surprising to hear Secretary of State Rusk implying that a cut in foreign aid funds would serve the purposes of international communism.

Secretary Rusk's experience before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, I suggest, is pretty fair evidence that Congress is getting sick and tired of the kind of arguments the administration is putting up in defense of the nation's largest spending budget. For his pains, Secretary Rusk received almost certain assurance that the foreign aid request of $4.5 billion will be cut, notwithstanding his remarks.

For example, Rep. Wayne Hays (D—Ohio) told the secretary that if Congress gives the administion more than $3.5 billion for foreign aid, it will be "absolute velvet." And Rep. H. R. Goss (R-Iowa), a longtime critic of foreign aid extravagance, told Rusk: "We are going to peel a considerable amount off this foreign handout . . . and I hope the State Department will not accuse us of being Communist sympathizers."

There is such a thing as crying "wolf, wolf" too often when Congress is considering money requests on which the administration has put its stamp of approval. Perhaps the White House should install a "hot line" running from the executive offices to the House and Senate. Then the downtown spenders in Washington would begin to get the message that the American people and their representatives in Congress are tired of hearing every appropriation request described in terms of emergency. They might even find out that their requests for money would fare better if they were presented without accompanying pressure.

How do you stand, sir?

Canada's Worst Problem

PEARSON

Reports from Ottawa say Prime Minister Lester Pearson's biggest problem is not nuclear policy or relations with Washington but how to prevent the development of a "little Algeria" that could split the province of Quebec away from Canada and create a new, French - speaking nation in North America.

POLICE SAY the recent bombings in Montreal underscore the threat and that they are the work of professionals. The terrorist organization, calling itself the Quebec Liberation Front (FLQ), may also include OAS killers driven out when Algeria received independence.

Quebec Premier Jean Lesage and others have condemned the violence, but 90 per cent of Quebec's population is French-speaking and virtually all feel the French have never had a square deal in the bi-Cultural Canada.

If such an event comes to pass, it could touch off a civil war inside Canada.

Coming — New TFX Controversy

Those in the know report the current TXF contract hassle is just the beginning of a series of clashes between the Pentagon and Congress over Defense Secretary McNamara's insistence that planes be developed to be used interchangeably by all the services. Next battle will concern the VAX, a lighter, cheaper plane than the TFX, designed to give protection to small areas such as battlefields.

IN CONSIDERING bids being made to build the VAX, McNamara is insisting that each service sacrifice some of its requirements so that a single model can serve all services. McNamara — as he did with the TFX contract — is also making it clear that he is more interested in this factor than in the amount of bid or special performance ability. As a result, the Navy is already laying the groundwork for another TFX-type controversy by passing the word that its need for a heavier plane than the VAX to fly from a carrier over great stretches of sea is not being considered.

Meanwhile, McNamara is also insisting that another new plane, the COIN be used as a helicopter escort and for flying low over battlefields be built so that it can be used by all services.

At the same time the past week, the president of the Boeing Company, William M. Allen — denied that his firm's bid on the TFX warplane was unrealistically low. And he challenged defense chiefs to let him build four prototypes to be tested against those of the winning bidder — General Dynamics Corp.

A censored transcript of his testimony to the Senate Investigations subcommittee's inquiry into why the TFX award — potentially a $6.21 billion job — went to General Dynamics, was released Thursday. It showed Allen said that the Boeing bid to build 23 TFX tactical fighter experimental planes was $148 million below General Dynamics. "Yet," he said, "we were downgraded by reason of our lower price." . . .

On The Washington Scene

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana has told the Senate that if the U. S. bombed Communist supply lines in North Viet Nam the fighting there could erupt into a Korean - Type war "paid for primarily with American lives." He said the losses would outweigh possible gains. In making the statement, Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, thus squarely challenged views expressed by Senators Stuart Symington and Barry Goldwater.

PARCEL POST rates will go up under a proposal Senator Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina says he will introduce. The bill, he reports, is aimed at raising rates to bring in an additional $75 to $80 million in revenue this year. The legislation will also include a provision restoring control of parcel post rates to the postoffice instead of the ICC. Postmaster General J. Edward Day has told Congress that parcel post accounts for $127 million of the $231 million deficit expected in the year ahead . . .

A CALIFORNIA Senator, Thomas H. Kuchel — the past week lashed out at what he called extremist right wingers who are "fright peddlers" and are circulating a series of hoaxes designed to "scare the daylights out of decent Americans." He went on to charge in a speech that spokesmen for such groups as the John Birch Society and others "are doing a devil's work far better than the Communists do." They are not only frightening many decent Americans, Kuchel said, but they also defile the honorable philosophy "of conservatism . . . as thoroughly as the Communists defile the honorable philosophy of liberalism . . ." . . .

STILL INSISTING he is through with politics, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon disclosed the past week that he is changing his residence from California to New York City and joining a New York law firm as of June 1. Nixon is joining the law firm of Mudge, Stern, Baldwin and Todd. He said he has no intention of using New York as a political base or injecting himself into local politics . . .

CAMPBELL

THE GENERAL Accounting office has found no independent cost estimate that would permit it to judge between two rival versions of the proposed TFX fighter plane. Comptroller General Joseph Campbell, who heads the GAO, carried the report before the Senate Investigations subcommittee . . . He said that the Air Force cost estimates provides no basis for judging between the two designs — as had been charged in some quarters . . .

MICHIGAN GOVERNOR George Romney, said by some to be a potential GOP presidential candidate next year, visited Washington the past week and repeated an old refrain — "I am not a candidate for president. I am not going to become one." He was in the nation's capital for an address before the annual meeting of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. He told the group that businessmen should get into public affairs, but in doing so should take off their business hats and participate as citizens. He also deplored what he called the trend since the 1920s toward massive federal government . . .

THE PUBLIC HEALTH Service tabulations show that Little Rock had the nation's highest level of radioactive strontium 90 in milk samples during the year ending last February. In a report the past week, the PHS said the Little Rock total was 11,242 micromicrocuries, based on the daily average level in one liter of milk. Close behind was New Orleans . . .

LORD MAYOR

TWO IRISHMEN got together in Washington the past week — and it probably would have been interesting to have listened in on some of the conversation. The two were President Kennedy and James J. O'Keefe, the lord mayor of Dublin. The two, among other things, reportedly talked about politics, a horse race, and the President's upcoming visit to the land of his forefathers. O'Keefe, jolly, rotund and red-faced, said there is a real possibility that Kennedy, who will visit Ireland next month, will see the running of the Irish Derby June 29 . . .

THE WAY Rep. Charles A. Halleck figures it, 300,000 more people are out of work in private industry since President Kennedy took office. And the way the Labor Department figures it, the House Republican leader isn't very good at figures . . . President Kennedy — calling himself a "very second-rate" substitute, appeared in place of his wife Thursday at a luncheon for hundreds of Congressmen's wives. Jokingly, the President said that Mrs. Kennedy "is engaged in increasing the gross national product in her own way." The first lady has canceled her official social engagements because she is expecting a baby in August . . . A bill that would ban wage discrimination between men and women was approved by the House Education and Labor Committee by a 24-3 vote Thursday . . . And the U. S. says that barring an extra heavy cut by Congress, the economic and technical assistance program to Thailand will continue at present levels next year without any substantial alterations . . . In Birmingham, Police arrested 450 hooky-playing Negro school students Thursday as waves of racial demonstrations engulfed downtown Birmingham. The Negroes — aged 6 to 16 — marched toward City Hall, paraded on downtown streets and picketed major department stores . . . The X15 rocket plane streaked into space and back Thursday on a mission with military overtones. Tacked on its tail was a box to measure the earth's normal heat radiation, the background against which satellites such as Midas someday will be launched. The flight carried pilot Joseph A. Walker to an estimated altitude of 212,000 feet at speeds estimated up to 3,500 miles an hour . . . The Air Force reports that the 100 Minuteman missiles now in firing position in Montana can hurl twice the nuclear destruction originally planned for them. The report said it had never known a program that's been more successful than this one, referring to the missile . . . In New Orleans, Senator Michael H. O'Keefe says he plans to introduce at the coming session of the legislature a bill requiring the state to submit each year to a five-year capital improvement budget . . . And in Bloomington, Ind., a special grand jury has indicted three Indiana University students on charges of subversive activity. They are accused of being members of the Young Socialist Alliance, advocating the violent overthrow of the government of the U. S. . . . And in Concord, N. H., Democratic Gov. John W. King has signed a sweepstakes bill which had kept the state in turmoil for months. This will be the first state-operated sweepstakes in this nation. . .

Around The World

NEW REPORTS on Soviet troops numbers popped up the past week. Several newsmen writing in various publications said that reports indicates there "may be 30,000 to 40,000 Russian military personnel" in Cuba. This is more than double the lowest figure — 12,000 — put out by the government. Many say the Russians are not actually taking any troops out — merely rotating them . . .

President Kennedy reportedly will be on the spot if and when the steel union starts negotiations for wage raises. In the case of the companies, the president denounced across-the-board steel price increase; industry complied. But in the case of the union, its very nature requires across-the-board wage hikes; it has a monopoly per se on steel workers. Will the President even verbally pressure this monopoly to restrain itself? . . .

THE STATE supreme court has upheld the state's narcotics addiction law, rejecting the move of three state penitentiary convicts to have it declared unconstitutional. It held that narcotics addiction as defined by the law was a crime rather than a status or condition, such as insanity . . .

IN PORTSMOUTH, N. H., a naval expert has testified that a tank ruptured on the nuclear submarine Thresher a month before her loss, and the lives of 129 men. But Captain Donald H. Kearn said the rupture could not have contributed to her sinking . . .

A BABY ROCKET engine that burns plexiglass for fuel has been developed by the United Technology Center in California. The table-top model is a hybrid, a cross between liquid-and solid-propellant engines but with advantages over both . . .

MOTHER NATURE unleashed her fury the past week as tornadoes whirled across southern and midwestern states, killing 12 persons and injuring hundreds. Tornadoes also swept across spots in North Louisiana, but luckily no one was killed and damage was fairly light . . .

AND THE Southern Presbyterian General Assembly has voted, for the second time in seven years, to give equal rights to the women of the church . . .

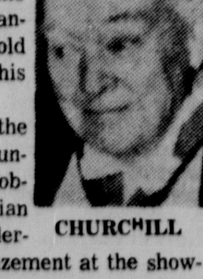
On Foreign Fronts

DYHRENFURTH

AN AMERICAN expedition reports that two of its climbers have reached the summit of Mt. Everest, the first victory in a quest for a Himalayan triple crown for the U.S. Everest is the highest mountain in the world. Sir Edmund Hillary, an Australian explorer, was the first man to climb the mountain back in 1953. A Swiss team duplicated the feat in 1956 and the Chinese Communists claimed they climbed it in 1960 from the north side—Norman Dyhrenfurth is leader of the American expedition.

A RED CHINESE freighter "Leap Forward" sank the past week in the China Sea. In first reports, crew members charged it was sunk by an unidentified submarine. But the official announcement made no mention of such a charge. Meanwhile, a Japanese Socialist leader demanded an immediate government investigation into the sinking of the vessel which was on an inaugural trade run to Japan . . .

PRESIDENT Gamel Abdel Nasser of the UAR is going to Yugoslavia on May 12 for talks with President Tito . . . Reports say the Chinese Communists are mobilizing two-million men to combat a critical drought in the South China province of Kwangtung. Lack of rain during the past eight months has caused severe damage to crops . . . A new Castro is getting big publicity in Cuba these days. His name is Reynaldo Castro and he has become famous for amazing feats attributed to him as a cane cutter . . . Red China celebrated May Day Wednesday with parades by millions of Chinese, special praise for Fidel Castro's Cuba and pledges by Chinese leaders to "do their best to strengthen" Sino - Soviet friendship. In Moscow, Castro was visiting Khrushchev on that day and receiving praises while watching the might of the Soviet armed forces march in review . . . And in Washington, Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman says the U. S. is giving no consideration at all to Communist talk about a partition of Laos . . . At the U. N., Secretary-General U. Thant says the UAR and Saudi Arabia have agreed to pull out of the royalist-republican war in Yemen. He said a U. N. observer team will see that the agreement is carried out . . .



CHURCHILL

IN LONDON, the grand old man of the world and of history, Sir Winston Churchill has sadly announced he is suffering from greatly reduced mobility and is retiring from political life. Thus ends a political career that spanned the latter Victorian and nuclear ages. At a banquet Wednesday, the 88-year-old statesman told his Conservative supporters he is giving up his seat in Parliament . . .

A MAJOR SURPRISE came out of Italy the past week. The Communist party picked up unexpected election advances — in fact they obtained 25 per cent of the seats in the Italian government. Democratic politicians are pondering their next move and expressed utter amazement at the showing by the Communists. Although the total was not enough to give the Reds power, the million votes they picked up apparently spelled the end of Premier Amintore Fanfani's center left government . . .

Behind the Headlines

WITH BRITAIN'S spy catchers believing the Soviet spy system will soon mount its greatest offensive to obtain the U. S. Navy's polaris secrets, every effort is being made that no more spies like these four get into a position to help Russia. They are, from left, George Blake, foreign service official sentenced to 42 years for spying for the Soviets; Dr. Alan Nunn May and Klaus Fuchs, who both have served their sentences for turning nuclear secrets over to Russia, and William John Vassall, admiralty clerk who passed secrets for seven years before being caught. Soviets May Soon Mount Spy Attack Against West

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP) — Britain's spy catchers believe the Soviet espionage system soon will mount a great assault on the West with one major objective—to get the U.S. Navy's Polaris secrets.

To this end shadowy Soviet agents, using techniques as old as sin itself, even now may be blackmailing a Westerner into feeding information into a Soviet spy net. These are among the implications of lessons learned from the Vassall case.

British security men are deeply involved in efforts to foil the Soviets. The idea this time is to keep ahead of the other side—to spot potential security risks before any damage has been done.

The British detectives' task is far from simple.

INFORMATION

Soon Britain will possess information about Polaris missiles under terms of the Kennedy-Macmillan agreement in Nassau. When Britain's own Polaris submarine fleet begins to take shape some of the secrets along with construction contracts will make their way to private industry.

Informants predict this will be the time of maximum danger.

To meet the expected Soviet moves, Britain's counterespionage agents figuratively must operate with old-fashioned cloaks and rusty daggers.

Of all the great powers Britain's security arrangements seem the most haphazard, so far as an outsider can judge. They are less centralized than those in the United States. At least a dozen government departments maintain security sections. This arrangement is being questioned in the press and by some members of Parliament.

One question commands attention. Do the spy trials and defections of the last 18 years prove that the British government is unable to keep a secret?

Definitely not, several British sources insist. They say that the arrests, in fact, proved the efficiency of British counterespionage efforts.

Yet the special tribunal in the Vassal case found examples of poor judgment and laziness in the British screening system. Because of such errors William John Vassall, a homosexual admiralty clerk, was able to pass secrets to the Soviet Union for seven years before he was caught, the tribunal reported to Parliament.

Now British civil servants are required to report any contact with officials of Communist countries. This rule applies even to telephone calls and innocuous social exchanges.

SHOWED SOVIETS

The Vassall case showed the Soviets still depend on the old orgy routine to recruit spies. They trap and photograph their victim in some compromising heterosexual or homosexual activity.

Moscow knows that the Polaris secrets involve important psychological as well as military factors.

If Prime Minister Macmillan's government fails to protect these secrets, as required by the Nassau understanding, pressures will build up in Washington to stifle the exchange of military information with Britain. This would tend to weaken the Atlantic alliance.

Similar strains developed in the immediate postwar period when atom spies Alan Nunn May and Klaus Fuchs were convicted and nuclear scientist Bruno Pontecorvo defected to the Soviet Union.

Fuchs and Nunn May have served their sentences. Fuchs now is living in Communist East Germany. Nunn May is a physics professor at Ghana University. Pontecorvo, a resident of the Soviet Union, won the Lenin Prize, the Soviet Union's highest honor, a few days ago.

There were worried frowns in allied circles in 1951 when Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean — two British foreign office officials with a wide knowledge of diplomatic secrets—skipped to Moscow. They are still there.

Two shocks came in 1961. British agents broke up a Soviet spy ring which funneled secrets from the royal navy's underwater weapons establishment at Portland in Dorset.

In a separate case George Blake, a British foreign service official, was arrested and sentenced to 42 years for spying for the Soviet Union. Blake had been a big catch for the Soviets because of his knowledge of British intelligence methods.

And finally came the Vassall case with its clear warning that British government employes should be checked more carefully.

West German Families Still Are Separated

By HANNS NEUERBOURG

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — "We search for—"

Three times a week, the German radio network carries a bulletin starting with these words of tragedy.

The German Red Cross' children tracing service is still seeking to reunite thousands of families separated by World War II.

Every month the tracing service helps arrange reunions of families split for almost two decades.

"All improbabilities of human life are familiar to us," says Hans Szperlinski, 65, head of the tracing service.

"For the children, their parents are often strangers. The young often have no desire to be with the old people. Such situations require a lot of understanding. Often delicate decisions must be made."

SEPARATED

Most of the separated families were expelled from East German territories seized by Poland and the Soviet Union.

"Since 1945, the tracing service has helped 124,000 children find their parents or other relatives again," Szperlinski reports. "The task is getting more and more difficult now—so much time has elapsed. But we still have about 150 success reports every month."

Backbone of the tracing service is a bulky index. It still lists 5,500 "parentless" children who live with foster parents or have already set up a family of their own.

Szperlinski says, "In many cases, the true identities are not known so we list as many particulars as possible: where and when the child was found, what it wore, any birthmarks and so on. The color of the eyes and of their hair are less important because they may change.

"But all these particulars are not proofs. The last decision generally is in the hands of doctors.

"We had a case where 30 mothers identified the same child as their own—and the real mother, who was found later, had not been among them. We must rely only on minute detail produced by painstaking work."

In the files is the case of Ursula Hekeler who was picked up from the icy Baltic as a baby in 1945. Her mother and four brothers and sisters were drowned in the sinking of a refugee-crammed freighter which struck a mine.

The nameless baby was cared for as Gitta Paulsen by a fisherman's family until a search ad in a refugee newspaper produced 12 "parents." None was the real one but one family's story seemed so convincing that local authorities agreed Gitta must be theirs. Gitta became "Marlis Waschkuhn."

Officially, the case was closed but the tracing service was still doubtful. In South Germany, a search poster found an interested reader—architect Erwin Hekeler, whose wife and five children had been missing since 1945. Proof that he was the real father came within weeks.

Hussein Of Jordan Faces Death Daily

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — "On mornings when I see him buckle on his revolver, then I realize there are people who want to kill my husband."

With this comment to a friend, King Hussein's English-born wife reflected his own talk about the possibility of assassination amid the antagonisms of the Middle East.

He has called it an occupational hazard.

He once began telling a diplomat "when they kill me." Then changed the sentence to "If they kill me" and added "it will be a shot in the back."

As a key figure in the surge of Arab unity, Hussein in his 10 years on the throne has never been a more likely target for assassination than in recent weeks.

Hussein, 27, is also a key figure in peace. Arab experts and United Nations officials speculate that that his assassination or overthrow might send Israel lunging across truce lines into Jordan and rekindle the Arab-Israeli war.

The forces working against Hussein are not ready to face the Isreali threat, but their activities have triggered Jordan's worst political crisis in years.

SWEPT TOWNS

Riotous demonstrations swept towns on the west bank of the Jordan River last month, and gunfire rattled the streets of Jerusalem.

With police and Bedouin desert troops—so tough they are rarely allowed into towns—Hussein restored order. A feeling of unrest continues and the problems that started the trouble have not been solved.

The flareup was ignited by events in Cairo, where President Gamal Abdel Nasser and the new revolutionary rulers of Iraq and Syria agreed to form a new United Arab Republic. Nasser has made it clear the federation is for republics only, with no place for monarchies.

Arabs, including King Hussein, long for unity with a passion that is difficult to describe. Years of bickering, mistrust and savage quarrels have kept them from achieving it, and many Westerners think they never will.

But the Cairo agreement gave a glimmer of a dream come true—three Arab republics united in one, aimed against Israel—and it sent a wave of emotion through the Middle East.

The wave washed over the west bank of the Jordan River, where demonstrations demanded the country join Nasser's federation. The west bank is old Palestine, absorbed into Jordan when Israel was born. Much of its bitter population worships Nasser and opposes Hussein.

The king contends neighboring countries fanned the flames by sending in arms, money and revolutionary leaflets. Egypt and Syria turned their propaganda guns against Hussein. Newspapers in Cairo and Damascus declared Jordan in revolution.

BOOKS
GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Variety Key At Parish Library

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

In the past weeks many patrons have expressed appreciation of the variety of material which the library has to offer them. Of course that makes us happy, for we do our best to select the books which we feel that the readers will want. Again this week there is a great variety of material waiting for you to choose your books from. I hope that each of you will find at least one title which appeals to your interests. "The Fools of Time" is the title of a new novel written by William E. Barrett. This is a projection into the future of a time when a serum was invented which halted the ravages of age. The discoverer is confronted with an ethical problem and the central theme is how far can the government go in regulating the work of a scientist. An interesting collection of short stories is "The Witching Lands" written by Hugh B. Cave. This is a collection of stories from the West Indies, with which the author is very familiar and it will make good reading. "Cobbler's Dream" by Monica Dickens is a warm and poignant story of a boy's devotion to a horse which he has rescued from destruction. This is a book which will appeal especially to young people. A fascinating story of the Jewish population of York at the time of Richard Coeur de Lion. You will remember that Scott touched on their problems in "Ivanhoe." Miss Greenberg has written that rare book which reaches beyond tragedy to leave its readers with a profound sense of hope. In so doing, it realizes beautifully that spirit of man which, in the midst of destruction, can rise to an affirmation of life.

A beautifully written Christian novel in the tradition of "The Robe" and "The Big Fisherman" is "Man From Cyrene" written by Frans Venter. This is the story of Simon of Cyrene, who helped Christ to carry his cross to the top of Golgotha. He was not a follower of Christ, but that day changed his life as it changed the course of history. This is a powerful book, which has already established itself as a best seller in South Africa and Europe. A number of religious books were received during the past week. "Let My People Go" by Jack Finegan is a study of the book of Exodus. Fred L. Fisher is the author of a very fine book on Christian living called "The Purpose of God and the Christian Life." Leslie D. Weatherhead is one of the great preachers of our time. His "Salute to a Sufferer" is a very inspiring book about the lessons to be gained from suffering.

Everyone who has an older person in their family, should read "The Health of older People" by Ethel Shanas. "The Slum Makers" by Robert Tebbel is a good discussion of how slums develop. "Treason in the Twentieth Century" by Margaret Boveri is a very good account of this subject. "Sense and Sensibility for Single Women" by Janice Glover is an excellent book dealing with the health and hygiene and personal grooming for women. Samuel Beckoff is the author of "Good English With Ease" which is a self - help manual of modern methods for correcting one's errors. The latest book by Joy Adamson dealing with the adventures with a lioness is "Forever Free." Those who read the earlier ones will want to read this. A tribute to one of the finest restaurants in New York is "Dining at the Pavillion" by Joseph Wechsberg. A very fine and useful basic cook book is "America's Cook Book" written by Marguerite Dodd. A specialized book for those who cook for large groups is "Cooking for Many on Holidays and Other Occasions" by Charlotte Turgeon. Amateur radio enthusiasts will be happy that we have a new edition of "The Radio Amateur's Handbook" by Archie Frederick Collins.

"Outdoor Lighting for Your Home" by Stanley Schuler is a book which many home owners will welcome. "Fun With Skits, Stunts and Stories" by Helen Eisenberg is a practical book for those working with groups. A very fine history of the movies is "The Movies in the Age of Innocence" by Edward Wagenknecht. "Chess from Morphy to Botwinnik" by Imre Konig will interest players of this fascinating game.

A book to make one stop and think is "Enough Good Men" by Albert Burke. The author operates on the theory that the forces of evil will triumph if enough good men do nothing. Are you planning a trip to the orient? You will surely want to see and study "Olson's Orient Guide." Two very excellent new guide books about Mexico are "Rand McNally Guide to Mexico" by Herman Liebes and "Mexico, Places and Pleasures" by Kate Simon. A fine addition to the Greek history collection is "The World of Aerodotus" by Aubrey De Selincourt. Another excellent book of ancient history is "The Phoenicians" by Donald Harden. An excellent account of the fighting in France in 1944 is "The Duel for France" by Martin Blumensen. Another account of World War II is "The Lady Be Good" by Dennis E. McClendon. George Vaillant has written a very scholarly account of the Aztec people in "The Aztecs of Mexico." "Conquistadors in North American History" by Paul Horgan is an interesting account of the Spanish exploration of North America. Readers who know and love San Francisco will welcome. "Here is the Golden Gate" by Neill Wilson. A new volume is the American trails series is "The Golden Road" by Felix Riesenberg. It deals with El Camino Real and the history of California. The private correspondence of Lawrence Durell and Henry Miller will be of interest to those who enjoy their writings. The story of Dag Hammarskjold has been told in a beautiful pictorial biography by Sten Soderberg. Last of all there is a valuable addition to the Genealogy collection "The Official and Statistical Register of the State of Mississippi, 1908" compiled by Dunbar Rowland. This book was a most welcome gift to our collection from one of our friends. The main library will be open today from 2:00-5:00, but will not open next Sunday which is Mother's Day.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Concerts Slated For Music Week

By JOHN CALE

Today opens National Music Week, a period which usually provides many communities throughout the country with music festivals, featuring local and imported talent.

For better or worse, the local scene has spread performances over a broader front so that there is no mass of conflicts and tone-weary audiences compressed into a single week.

Monday's musical highlight is the program of pianist LeRoy Anspach at 8:15 p.m. in Biedenharn Hall on the Northeast campus. The performance is sponsored by Delta Omicron, international music fraternity. Featured works on the program include "Variations Serieuses" by Mendelssohn; "Sonata, opus 57 (Appassionata)" by Beethoven; "The Erlkoenig" by Schubert, transcribed for piano by Liszt; "Two Poems for Piano" by Persichetti, and "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 11" by Liszt.

Tuesday has been declared "I Am An American Day" by the Monroe and West Monroe Chamber of Commerce organizations, and the day will climax with a concert at Neville Auditorium by the Northeast State College choirs under the direction of Davis Bingham. The program will include "The Blessed Damozel" by Debussy; "Testament of Freedom" by Randall Thompson, and a group of popular selections and choral numbers from light opera featuring "Autumn Leaves, and "Far-away Places.

The Twin City Symphony will perform with local student soloists in the annual scholarship benefit concerto concert Sunday, May 12 in the Northeast Student Union auditorium. This program is slated for 2:30 p.m.

The final presentation of the season for the World Heritages Book and Film classics is slated for Thursday, 4 and 7:30 p.m. at the Paramount Theatre. The filmed novel will be Charles Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities."

The firm stars Ronald Coleman, Elizabeth Allen, Edna May Oliver, Reginald Owen and Basil Rathbone.

The filmed book classics series has been termed "highly successful" by Ted Hatfield, executive of Paramount and Gulf Theatres, and he attributed the series' success to cooperation of educators in the city, parish, Catholic school systems, and colleges in the area.

The New Orleans Symphony will have a new director next season, Werner Torkanowsky. The 38 - year - old conductor is successor to Arthur Zack, Ole Windingstad, Massimo Freccia and Alexander Hilsberg. He will conduct all or nearly all of the 1963 - 64 concerts, taking some time out in November to serve as guest conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Soloists for the upcoming season on the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Society's bookings include Pablo Casals, cellist; Artur Rubinstein, pianist; Igor Oistrakh, violinist; Eugene Istomin, pianist, and Jaime Laredo, Latin American violinist.

Four Louisiana artists received honorable mention in the "national paintings of distinction" festival at the Southeastern cultural center at Atlanta two weeks ago. Twenty-five paintings from over 900 submitted were selected in the national distinction bracket, and 15 were chosen as paintings of regional merit.

In the top category was "Mexican Landscape," by Edgar Dayries of Baton Rouge, and Franklin Adams, Keith Hatcher, and Conroy Hudlow all of New Orleans, submitted paintings judged as works of regional merit.

Tales About Actors Who Are Animals

Specialized in the sense that some of these animals are really film actors. The author is an experienced director wildlife movies, and he devotes many pages to the ways in which scenes are prepared painstaking for filming.

The most appealing individuals are such hand-raised creatures as Nikki, a Malemute pup, and Neewa, a black bear cub, who had a ball while their story was being recorded; Lady, a golden eagle who had been tamed by a man who devoted years to making a pet of her; Big Tom, a wildcat who had to be rescued from a freak show in order to make an actor of him; and Shadow a wolf who learned to do a sensational stunt and finally sacrificed his life to save his mate from a fire.

There are other forms of wildlife in exotic places — sea lions and giant tortoises in the Galapagos Islands; a gruesome swarm of bats; penguins — including an albino — in the Antarctic; trapdoor spiders and salmon in the Columbia River.

If author Couffer had tempered some of this flowery prose the effect would have been simpler and more direct. But he has many interesting anecdotes to tell.

Storm In The West Unusual Book On War

STORM IN THE WEST. By Sinclair Lewis and Dore Schary. Stein & Day. $4.95.

If ever there was a curiosity in the book world, this must be it. You may want to read for the sheer novelty of what it is, and what it might have been on the silver screen.

In the first place, it is a movie script, with a few of the technical terms smoothed out, but retaining the essence of movie imagery.

Secondly, it was written in the summer of 1943 — feverish wartime — by the late Sinclair Lewis and a movie mogul.

And thirdly, it is one of the most bizarre allegories that anyone (even in the vicinity of Hollywood and Vine) could imagine. It is cast in the form and cliches of a movie Western — good guys, bad guys, they-went-thataway clop-clop, bang-bang, and the invitable idyllic clinch at the final fadeout under the Stars and Stripes.

But the gun - slinging heroes and villains are World War II figures.

Imagine — and this may be a strain even for devotees of the late, late show — such cowboy figures as Hygatt (Hitler), Mullison (Mussolini), Chambers (Chamberlain), Chancel (Churchill) and Slavin (Stalin). They get into a cowboy dither over ranches which correspond to various European countries, and the climax is a big gunplay in which the good guys wipe out the bad guys (remember, this is 1943).

Schary was responsible for the central idea, grotesque as it is, and got the poor gullible Lewis to collaborate with him on the script. The brass at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer decided not to produce it, on the excuse that it was "controversial." They must have had at least an inking that even the audiences of the 1940s would have been baffled by its absurdities.

Independents Admit Facing Tough Battle

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Independent oil operators admit they face a tough battle but they are ready to ask Congress to approve another natural gas bill.

The 7,000-member Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) decided last week to draft a bill for introduction in the current session of Congress.

Cooperation will be sought from all other segments of the industry, with particular emphasis on producer groups.

A resolution adopted at IPAA's mid-year meeting at San Francisco said the nine-year struggle with federal efforts to control wellhead prices of natural gas is a producer problem and producers must take the initiative in finding a solution.

Minutes after the resolution was adopted, Rep. Walter Rogers, D-Tex., advised the industry, in effect, to abandon a defeatiest attitude and face the problem firmly.

Harold Decker, IPAA president from Houston, agreed.

"There is no useful purpose in further postponing the inevitable," 1960, calling for Congressional action in 1961.

Sen. John F. Kennedy, D-Mass., was elected President a month later. As a member of the House and Senate, Kennedy voted against gas bills that later were vetoed by Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

IPAA's gas resolutions in 1961 and 1962 continued to plug for remedial legislation after Kennedy moved to the White House but spoke only in such general terms as "ultimate goals." Four resolutions were approved but none called for immediate action.

Rogers reminded the independents remedial legislation has been introduced the past two sessions of Congress.

"In each instance it was the considered opinion of the interested parties that the legislation had little chance of passage," he said.

He said a similar situation has prevailed this session because of fear on the part of many in the industry that conflicts could arise over pending tax legislation which might prove detrimental to the industry as a whole.

Rogers advised the industry to forget fears of failure, organize a united front, and start to work placing facts before the Congress.

IPAA's gas policy committee drafted a four-point statement of principles of a gas bill. Major producers joined independents in saying a bill incorporating the four points would remove Federal Power Commission authority to control prices of gas sold wholesale into interstate commerce for resale.

"I'd take such a bill, yes sir," said Johnny Mitchell, a Houston independent who at times has had his differences with IPAA while heading the 6,500-member Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association.

IPAA's mid-year meeting did not vote directly on the four points but they were adopted by the gas policy committee headed by Alvin C. Hope, the association's immediate past president from San Antonio.

The IPAA principles of a gas bill:

1. Outlaw public utility cost of service regulation of the field sale of natural gas.
2. Provide that term provisions of producer contracts shall be honored.
3. Provide that the FPC shall have no authority to impair the conservation power of any state.
4. Provide that the FPC shall give full recognition to "arms length" negotiated contracts entered under free competitive negotiations.

History On China About Its People

CHINA ONLY YESTERDAY. By Emily Hahn. Doubleday. $5.75.

A place as complex as China, a people as fascinating as the Chinese and events as lively as those involving China and the West over 100 years are covered about as thoroughly and interestingly in this book as is possible in 400 pages.

Though some scholars may despair of the practice, Miss Hahn — a longtime resident of China and neighboring Hong Kong — keeps the book moving by concentrating on happenings and the people who made them happen, rather than the order in which they happened during the usually turbulent years between the early 1840s and the late 1940s.

As with most popular histories, the people — the Chinese and their Manchu conquerors and the "barbarians" they sought so vainly to keep out — Usually are more interesting than the events, though the accounts of the Taiping and Boxer Rebellions and the revolution which turned China into a republic are by no means dull.

In fact, it's hard to imagine a more varied and vivid lot than the major and minor characters of the book such as:

Mart Scores New Advance In Past Week

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market continued to advance last week but the rise was laborious and trading was lighter than in the previous week.

Again blue chips bore the burden of the upward movement and again it was a selective rise among these high-quality issues as interest rotated from one to another.

Even the more bullish of the market commentators were quick to suggest that the market is likely to go into another period of consolidation, possibly a bit of a selloff, before mounting another strong upsurge — a "summer rally," perhaps.

The Dow industrials were not far from their historic high of 734.91 reached Dec. 13, 1961.

The Associated Press average has been making new historic highs ever since April 23. In 1961 the AP average made its then all-time peak about three weeks before the Dow industrials did.

This week the AP average scored its ninth straight weekly advance, rising 1.0 to 271.3, after touching a record 272.0 on Thursday.

The background of economic news continued favorable on balance. Weekly steel production rose for the 13th straight week but it was reported that demand for steel was flattening out now that prospects of a steel strike seem more unlikely.

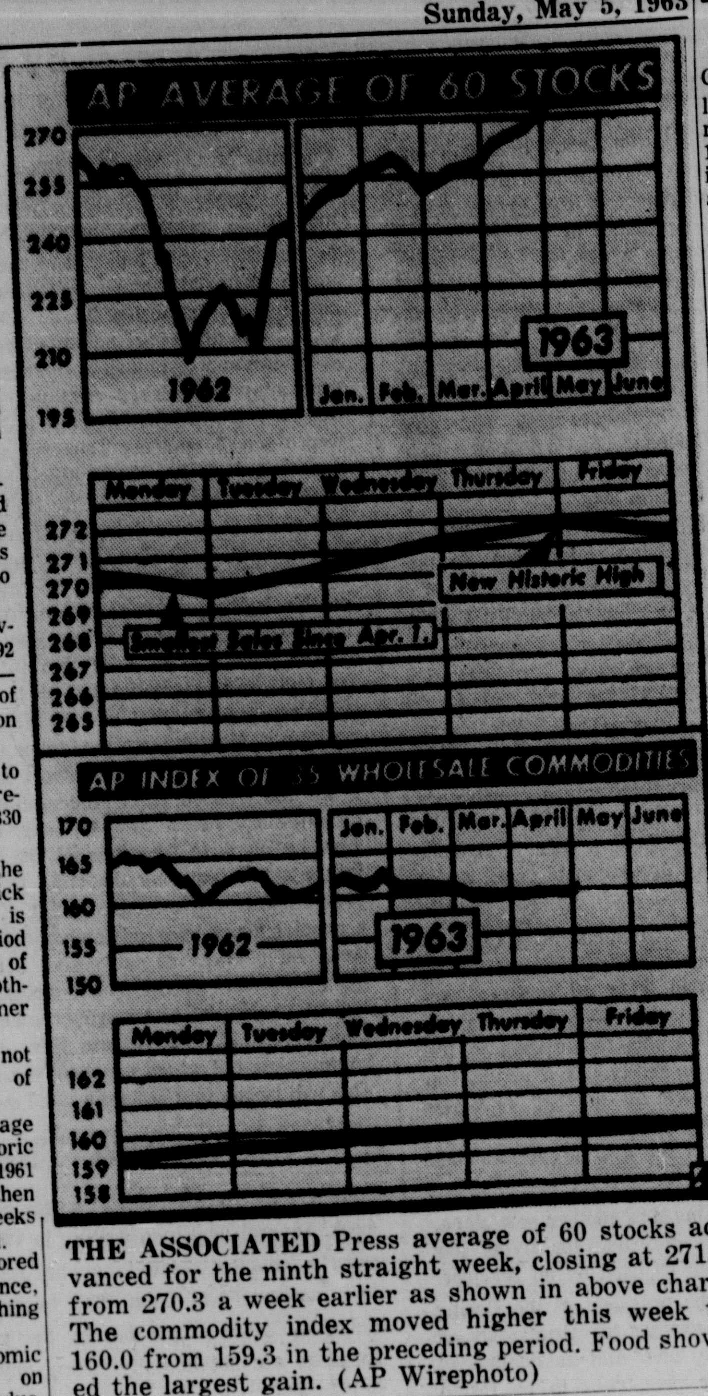
Auto production and sales continues the outstanding bright spot and General Motors, the "biggest" stock on the New York Stock Exchange, touched another new high and ended the week with a gain of 1¾ at 69½.

Of the 1,500 issues traded this week on the big board, however, gainers outnumbered losers only by 736 to 592, not a very sweeping margin. It was a cautious market all week, making no sharp, decisive moves either up or down.

U.S. Steel on Tuesday reported the lowest quarterly profits in 15 years, not enough to cover the dividend, and "Big Steel" stock ended the week with a net loss of ⅞. Industry observers look for a better year-to-year earnings comparison for steel companies in the second quarter.

A number of companies raised their dividends or reported other bullish corporate news and their stocks responded accordingly.

The bond market scored its second straight week of advances for both corporate and government issues. Gains on the final days of the week aided the uptrend. Corporate prices advanced as much as 4 points or more for the week.



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks advanced for the ninth straight week, closing at 271.3 from 270.3 a week earlier as shown in above chart. The commodity index moved higher this week to 160.0 from 159.3 in the preceding period. Food showed the largest gain. (AP Wirephoto)

Threat Of Strikes Clouds Business

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Possibilities of strikes in two major industries—steel and railroad—clouded the business outlook during the week but there were hopeful expressions that work stoppages won't occur.

And threat of a strike against the Boeing Co., a major figure in the space-missile program, was erased for the time being.

The AFL-CIO United Steelworkers Union was free to reopen its contract for wage negotiations May 1. As yet it hasn't taken that action. A strike could be called 90 days later if agreement hasn't been reached.

David J. McDonald, union president, said there may be no need for formal reopening of the contract in view of the work of a labor-industry committee which acts is an effort to eliminate the need for long negotiations.

Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel Corp., added that he's "still confident there's a very good chance" that actions of the committee could prevent a reopening.

Efforts of a presidential emergency board to settle the railroad labor dispute plodded along. At issue is the railroads' attempt to change work rules involving unions representing 200,000 on-train employes. They want to cut out what they call featherbedding by eliminating jobs they consider unnecessary.

The unions could strike June 11, a month after the board is scheduled to report a settlement proposal to the President.

SHORT COURSE

Approximately 900 participants from gas and gas - related industries attended the 38th annual Southwestern Gas Measurement Short Course, held recently at the University of Oklahoma.

Attending from Monroe were E. J. Ewbank and W. P. Eyre, Humble Gas Transmission Co.; Richard H. Taylor, Texas Gas Transmission Corp., and Gladden S. Walters, Rockwell Manufacturing Co.

Lee's Madison Wildcat Holds New Stem Test

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Drill stem testing was reported to be underway Saturday at C. A. Lee's Madison County wildcat, the Hardeman No. 1, sec. 24;9n-1w, after oil shows were logged at 9,652 feet.

The venture also has logged oil shows of undetermined commercial worth in the Tuscaloosa Formation below 7,000 feet. The wildcat is scheduled to be drilled to 11,000 feet and is located three miles southeast of the Bentonia oil field.

Production tests are underway at California Company's Meyer No. 1, sec. 9-10n-15w, second well to be drilled in the recently found Mize field of Smith County. Operators tested at sand depths of 11,876-90 feet. The important well was drilled to 14,150 feet and logged over 200 feet of oil sand in an interval from 10,500 feet to total depth.

A third test was underway in the Mize Field with Triad Oil and Gas Co. drilling below 10,300 feet in its board of supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-10n-15w. Also at Mize, Central Oil Co. drilled 9,000 feet in its Unit No. 1, sec. 9-10n-15w.

Production tests were underway at Mortimer, Dugger and Holmes No. 1, Rawls, sec. 11-5n-8e, Lincoln County wildcat. Operators tested a sand at 10,741-47 feet with the possibility seen that it may open a new field.

Completions In Oil, Gas Area Hit 9

Drilling in the Monroe Oil and Gas District edged slightly higher last week, with nine completions reported in five of the district's 15 parishes. Two were in Ouachita Parish — the Calhoun Field and the Monroe Gas Field.

Other finals came in Concordia, LaSalle, Morehouse and Tensas Parishes, according to District Manager Duncan S. Cook.

There were two recompletions during the week, in LaSalle and Tensas Parishes. The former, in the Nebo-Hemphill Field, was Hunt Petroleum's Goodpine No. F-26 section 16-7-3E, while the latter was Humble Oil's M. M. Bloom No. 13 in section 25-12-11E of the Buckhorn Field.

New locations staked during the week fell slightly to 10 and were located in Catahoula, Concordia, Grant, LaSalle and Union Parishes. Most were in Concordia where four new sites were staked and Catahoula had three. The others had one each.

Seventeen wells were actively drilling or testing over the area and were found in nine parishes. One, a wildcat, was drilling at 8860 feet in section 22-17-3E of Ouachita Parish.

The remaining activity was in Avoyelles, Catahoula, Concordia, Grant, LaSalle, Rapides, Richland and Tensas Parishes, with most working wells, four, in LaSalle Parish, all testing.

Six wells were plugged and abandoned, according to Cook, and the total on inactive sites stood at 87. Locations numbered 58; 24 were drilling.

Following is the week's rundown on completions and active rigs:

Notices Affect Grain For Week

CHICAGO (AP)—Trade in the grain futures market was influenced largely last week by notices of intention to deliver or lack of them and prices showed little net change although both gains and losses were rather broad at times.

Tenders of corn and soybeans were fairly liberal and some of them were retendered as had been expected but deliveries of wheat were absent, also as generally expected.

Trade in May contracts expires on the 21st and first delivery notices were issued on Tuesday. They appeared to have little or no weakening effect on the trade, partly because a considerable volume appeared to have been accepted, at least temporarily. However, brokers reminded that more liberal circulation could be expected later, probably with some bearish consequences then.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Top Motifs Are Winners

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Wednesday T.V. and Garden Center show was sponsored by the Jonesboro-Hodge Garden Club. Comments on the arrangements were made by the club's president, Mrs. Paul Bourg. The arrangements were award winners from the show "Added Beauty," presented by the Jonesboro-Hodge Garden Club April 25.

The first design was made by Mrs. Eddie Mamie, an award of distinction winner, "My Sugar Plum," a design suitable for a chest in a child's room. The line material for this small design was dried wisteria vine which formed a modified oriental (Heaven, Man, Earth) line.

The container was a pink kitten ceramic which sat on a gold mesh ash tray (resembling a cushion). The filler flowers were dried batchelor buttons in two colors of pink and wine tones. This design contained distinction which merited it the award of distinction. We are taught that the way to get distinction in an arrangement is the way we use the material — not the materials used.

TRI-COLOR

The Tri-Color award winner, made by Miss Valeria Barnum, "Tender Is the Night," a design suitable for a dresser, French influence, was a massed oval design made of an array of garden flowers - larkspur, roses, perennial phlox, sweet peas, tendrils of honeysuckle vine and grape ivy.

All of the colors were in soft shades. The container was a French compote made of bronze cherubs holding a fluted glass bowl. This design was indeed a work of art —showing the same skill that an artist would use in painting a canvas.

The high school Gardeners — the Junior section of the show, sent the highest award-the award of achievement - a design made by Sue Cannon and Cynthia Toms. "The Cook-Out" was the theme of this design which featured a small picnic basket, open, with the lid thrown back as the container for the flowers which were small white daisies and native Louisiana yellow daisies picked from the roadside. The line for this design, a triangle, was dried broom sage. It was very clever use of materials and well interpreted.

'THE THINKER'

"The Thinker," was the next design made by Mrs. Juanita Busbice who won a blue ribbon. The line material was sea oats placed to the right side of a small brown ceramic bowl. This line was strengthened by the placement of dark brown cattails cut in tiered lengths. Dark brown glycerinized magnolia leaves formed a background at the base for the fresh bronze mums serving as the focal interest. A base of burled wood served to add good balance. To help interpret, a wise owl figurine was placed on the edge of the container.

Mrs. Eugene Hearn made a design with the theme "When Day is Done," which would be suitable for the T. V. Console. A symmetrical triangle design featuring all dried materials was made of sea oats, filled in with straw flowers in colors of golden yellow down into orange and red tones. Brown dock was used as a filler which related color of the earthy brown of the pottery container used.

Mrs. Bourge also showed some very interesting horticulture specimens - four types of tuberous begonias — large whites, one single red, and one red in a double. The white flecked with red was the Max Felix grown by Mr. Henry Norred. This won the award of merit in the flower show.

Thanks, Jonesboro - Hodge Garden Club, and also Mrs. Paul Bourg, for bringing the arrangements and commenting on them for us. We all enjoyed this show very much and appreciate your efforts.

While thanking, I do wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to all who had a part in planning, executing, and taking a part in any way with the Twin City Council Flower Show, "Progress in The Cities." held in Monroe at the Julia Wossman Recreation Center Saturday, April 27. We all feel that this show was a great success. We have been told that it was one of the prettiest held in our city. With sixteen clubs involved, it ran smoothly and everyone cooperated so beautifully. Let's do it again sometime. How about it?

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

A good attic fan can do wonders in producing cool breezes on hot summer nights. While it does not have the advantages of air conditioning, it can make sleep more comfortable by pulling lower temperature night air through an entire home.

A major factor in getting the proper amount of air circulation is to select the right size fan. An undersized fan will not do the job — and you are spending money needlessly for one that is too large.

Reputable attic fan manufacturers rate their fans by cubic feet per minute. This indicates how much air a fan will move every 60 seconds. The figures for different size fans are generally available but, before you select a proper fan, you must know how many cubic feet you wish to cool in your home. Some people like to cool their entire homes while others only wish to cool bedrooms.

To determine your total cubic footage you multiply the width by the depth by the height of each room, then add these figures together. For instance, suppose one room is 20 feet long, 10 feet wide and has an 8-foot ceiling. Your cubic footage for this room is 20 times 10 times 8, which is a sum of 1,600 cubic feet. Another room is 10 feet wide, 12 feet long and also has an 8 - foot ceiling. This would be 10 times 12 times 8 for a total of 960 cubic feet. If you wished to cool only these two rooms, you add these totals together for a result of 2,500 cubic feet.

Although this is the correct amount, you should multiply this figure by by 1.2. Engineers have calculated there is always some leakage from living quarters and they have arrived at this figure to make up for the loss. So, multiply 2,560 by 1.2. This gives you a total of 3,072 cubic feet. You will then need a fan that will move 3,072 cubic feet of air per minute. This will give you a complete air change every minute, which provides the best cooling except for extreme areas of the country.

NOT INCLUDED

In your calculations do not include those areas where you do not wish air circulation. These spots include closets, cellars and garages.

Where you live can also affect the size attic fan you choose. In the North, a 22-inch fan would generally be satisfactory for cooling homes with from 3,000 to 10,000 cubic feet. However, in the central part of the country, this same fan would only be good for homes with 3,000 to 5,000 cubic feet. In the South, it is only recommended for homes with 3,000 cubic feet or less.

One reason for this is the stored heat in your home which comes from summer sunshine. As an attic fan operates by pulling in cool night air, it is also pulling out this stored heat which is radiating from your walls and ceilings.

Rules Given On Safe Use Of Chemicals

By EARL ARONSON

With all the furor about dangers of use or misuse of chemical pesticides, we offer 10 commandments designed to reduce garden accidents.

The safety tips, recommended by Chemical Specialtiess Manufacturers, are:

1. Read the label carefully before you even open the container.
2. Store pesticides out of reach of children and pets, outside the home, away from food and under lock and key.
3. Keep sprays and dusts in their original containers, which should be kept tightly closed.
4. Do not smoke while spraying or dusting.
5. Avoid inhaling sprays or dusts. Wear protective clothing and masks if the label so directs.
6. Cover bird baths, dog dishes, fish pools before spraying.

SEPARATE

7. Use separate equipment for applying hormone - type herbicides. This will guard against injury to susceptible plants.
8. Dispose of empty containers so they will not endanger humans, animals or valuable plants.
9. Observe label directions and cautions to keep residues on edible plants within safe limits.
10. Do not plant mint, berries or other edibles near ornamentals that may be sprayed frequently with pesticides.

While on the subject of spraying, we suggest aerosol containers for the timid or lazy gardener. There are two new items (both by Johnson):

One is a rose and flower spray in a can that keeps on spraying when turned upside down. This permits you to get at the underside of leaves — the insect hideout. This preparation combines insecticide, miticide and fungicide for use against apids, mites, Japanese beetles, powdery mildew, lealfspot and diseases.

The other is to attack dandelions and other broadleaf weeds. This 500-shot container is held in position by a hand strap at the bottom, which facilities aiming and firing by pulling a trigger. This preparation contains 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T.

FLOWER MACHINE

Now you may buy flowers from a coin machine. We inserted quarters in a vending device at the International Flower Show in New York City and took out a nicely packaged bouquet of tea roses — our choice among the fresh cut flowers visible in the lighted, refrigerated machine which requires no plumbing. There's also a machine in Penn Station.

You get the flowers in a flexible plastic "breathing" container with a rigid top and a twine handle. The flower stems are in a plastic vial of water with a preservative. The prices, for roses, or a corsage of orchid, gardenia, camelia or carnations, vary from $1 to $2.50 and depend on the season.

TASTEFULLY landscaped home.

Clear Thatch From Lawn

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Do not allow thatch to build up in your lawn Mr. or Mrs. Gardener. Remove clippings periodically to prevent build up of thatch. Have a regular schedule for mowing to have an attractive looking lawn. Apply fertilizer at monthly or six week intervals during the summer. Use a complete fertilizer.

If you have not fertilized shrubs, use one half cup of 8-8-8 per square yard of area covered by the plant.

For color in your landscape in the months to come consider the hibiscus, coleus, salvia, ornamental pepper, plumbago, croton or geranium.

SUMMER ANNUALS

Continue planting summer annuals. The warm weather ones can be planted in the open beds now without fear of frost. Do not overlook the two all America annuals for the year — both zinnias — Thumbelina and Firecracker.

Check gladiolus for thrips. To control dust with five per cent DDT or spray with a DDT lindane, malathion mixture which you will find at your garden store. Spray at 10 day intervals and about three sprayings should give good control.

Shrubs should be mulched to conserve moisture, keep down weeds for ease of maintenance. Mulching will cut down on the amount of watering required during the summer months. Use lawn clippings, pine needles, and leaves.

Thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lance, 611 Stubbs, Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hendrix, 1304 Speed Avenue; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Womack, 1004 K Street, and Miss Emma Louise Biedenharn, 2006 Riverside, for letting the Home Demonstration Club members visit your gardens this past week. They were beautiful and we certainly appreciate your generosity in permitting us to see them.

WORKSHOP

Yours truly enjoyed a sewing workshop in the Okaloosa community this past week with the following adults taking part: Mrs. Audrey Fuller, Mrs. Sallie Carpenter, Mrs. Mattie Mobley, Mrs. Johnnie George, Mrs. J. C. Tolbird, Mrs. Nancy Rabon, Mrs. J. R Perritt, Mrs. Mamie George, Mrs. Dora Bonnett, Mrs. Barbara Bounds, Mrs. Annie Fuller, Mrs. Opal George, Mrs. Johnnie Bonnett and Mrs. N. L. Coon.

Thanks to you, Mr. Spier, Principal of the Okaloosa school for your generous assistance in providing a most comfortable room for the workshop.

A new "ease of care" feature of fabrics from synthetics fibers is that they tend to re-shape themselves after laundering. Therefore, certain precautions must be taken when laundering so the garments will do just this. One of the fibers is orlon sayelle which is especially suitable for the bulky knit sweaters. When a garment of this fiber is placed in warm water, a temporary reduction in the reversible crimp occurs. Some garments stretch enormously, others slightly. But it will return to its original size and re-shape when completely dry, without any of the stretch that might have occured in wearing the garment.

To hand wash orlon sayette garments, wash and rinse in warm water. Do not wring or twist during the process. Press water through the garment carefully. A fabric softener will help maintain the softness. Roll in a clean towel and spread loosely on a flat surface to dry. Do not hang on clothes hanger or drip dry garment as it will cause excessive stretching.

FOOD FATS

Our food economists in the U.S. Department of Agriculture say that three main food groups furnish about 90 per cent of the fat we eat. Food fats and oils including bacon, butter and salt pork furnish about 50 per cent of the fat in the average person's diet. Meat, poultry and fish account for 25 per cent of the fat. Dairy products other than butter are 15 per cent.

Although each of these food groups represents a major source of fat, don't eliminate them from your diet. They offer many nutrients that are vital to good health. To reduce the fat content of your diet the U.S.D.A. nutritionists suggest you cook foods in ways that do not add fat to them. Broil or roast meat, for example. Trim fat from meats before cooking and at the table. Select nonfat or low fat milk, skim milk, buttermilk, or cottage cheese, when you shop for dairy products.

A THOUGHT

I want, by understanding myself, to understand others.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

QUESTION: I have used regular plywood on several occasions, but I now have an outdoor installation to make and I have been told that I need a special kind of plywood. Can you tell me something about it and whether it requires any special handling?

ANSWER: Your informant is correct. You will have to purchase exterior plywood for outside work. It is much the same as the plywood you have been working with, except that the plys or veneers of wood have been bonded together with a waterproof adhesive.

Indoor plywood has waterproof adhesive, which is excellent for all general purposes, but will not hold permanently when constantly attacked by water. Exterior plywood is plainly marked, usually with the large letters E-X-T.

As with the indoor type, exterior plywood comes in several different grades. These refer to the appearance quality of the outer plies of the wood. You can get it with one side good, two sides good, and so on. Remember, this applies to appearance, not strength. The kind of wood, the glue used and the manner of assembly are the same for all grades.

Exterior plywood panels come in sizes 4 feet by 8 feet, but can be obtained in lengths of 20 feet or longer for special purposes. The most popular thicknesses are from one - quarter inch to three-quarters of an inch.

Landscape Important In Home Decor

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The exterior decoration of a home is just as important as the interior design. It is the frame, the garnish, the fillip that puts the finishing touch to a house. If a mistake is made in planting a tree or bush, it can't be moved easily as an out - of - place chair or sofa indoors.

It is important to spend at least as much time plotting plants as home furnishings. The same things apply — form, color and texture. Good landscaping can increase the value of your house.

SYSTEM

One can begin by photographing a home, placing the picture on a large background, and then filling it in with sketches of trees, bushes, vines or pictures cut from nurserymen's folders. If these are in scale, one should find a suitable arrangement. Most nurserymen are willing to volunteer assistance in this respect.

Some people prefer simple plantings, building their houses to take full advantage of nature's woodland growth or tropical foliage. But some people, forgetting, let the bulldozer rampage through to make a clearing for a new house. Then they must replace the plants. The expense is important, but oftentimes the biggest mistake made is making the setting look unnatural.

A house should look natural in its setting whether it is in a desert or in the mountains. Height, manner of growth, flower and foliage colors are important considerations. Still you don't want plantings too pat. There is monotony in symmetry, although many amateurs think that is the goal in planting. The look to achieve is "it just sort of grew here."

Nurserymen can give you a hand in planning your landscape from the standpoint of appearance, privacy and even forget details such as that fast-growing trees can screen out all the light in a few years and may need to be moved or chopped down. Trees planted too near the house may beat against the shingles, disturbing sleep on windy nights.

LONG RANGE

A long-range planting program is best if funds are limited, rather than spreading out the money. Trees are chosen first, so that they will serve as a windbreak in winter, keeping fuel costs down, and providing shade in warm weather. In general, tall evergreens should be used with low - growing, slow-growing plants around the house, broken up with spreading and ball-style plants. Low, slow growers should be used under windows.

Espalier trees and climbing roses help cool a house. A pool of water near the house can serve as a heat trap. In windy spots where there is a pretty view, such as one overlooking water, combine hedges with an outdoor window arrangement to maintain the view and foil the wind.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Sun Scald On Shrubs

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

After the winter damage, a lot of big shrubs have been cut back so much that only large trunks and branches remain to grow.

Watch these specimen plants carefully. If they do not come out and cover themselves with leaves, the sun will scald them very badly. Often these big shrubs could make it and grow back into fine specimens were it not for sun scald on the trunks.

PAINT ENDS

Paint the ends of branches that are bigger than your thumb with tree paint or with almost any paint at hand. While the new growth is coming out keep the plants well-watered — but not drowned— and give them a normal feeding with complete fertilizer. Do not over - feed them because they cannot take too much fertilizer until they are growing again. A second feeding can be given in a month or six months from now.

Plants that do not cover themselves from the sun will need to be shaded. Tobacco cloth or some sort of laths or slats about an inch apart will do the job. Boxwood lovers know exactly how to handle this problem.

Windy and extremely hot locations like the southern exposure in front of brick and stone houses are the places where sun scald is most likely to happen. Trunks and branches that are not shaded in these places get so hot that you can not hold your hand on them.

Without some sort of shade while new branches and leaves are growing to cover them from the direct sun, they will cook and, of course, die back to the shade line.

Hard decisions will have to be made about shrubs that were killed here and there but not evenly. Unless they were killed back so badly that it is necessary to leave all the live wood on them in order for them to recover, it is usually better to prune away long solitary growths and start out all over again from the majority of live branches.

Many freak things seem to happen in a very cold winter. Sometimes really tender shrubs will survive when a few feet away some of the old hardy ones will be killed. This strange phenomenon is probably owing to the condition of the wood in trees and shrubs at the time of the freeze. Gardening is always a gamble.

CURTAIN CALL

The annual meeting of the Little Theatre of Monroe takes place Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Strauss Playhouse. Each member is eligible to attend and take part in the business of the meeting. The officers will render their reports and five new directors will be elected. The members will be asked to approve some amendments to the by-laws. There will be full opportunity for questions, comments and suggestions.

It would be unreasonable to expect all 2,837 members to turn out for the annual meeting. Indeed, the officers and directors would be astonished and delighted if the 10 per cent of that number appeared. Still it would be most helpful if a representative cross-section of our Little Theatre membership would take the trouble to attend tomorrow night's meeting to give our directors the benefit of the constructive ideas that might well develop in the course of discussion.

Only a few years ago, there were less than 1,000 members to try to please with each Little Theatre season. Today, with almost triple that number, there are bound to have been some shifts in tastes and interests that we want to be sure to take into account. Of course, our officers and directors are receptive to suggestions all through the year, but the annual meeting provides such an excellent occasion for any member to make his views known that we urge all to come who can.

ASSISTANTSHIP

Sara Womack, who appeared in "Summer And Smoke," and "Bye Bye Birdie," and who has often worked backstage, has just been awarded a teaching assistship in speech therapy at Ohio State University. Sara won out in competition with many applicants for this fellowship which will enable her to secure her master's degree. She leaves for Athens, Ohio, in September, and it couldn't happen to a nicer person.

Executive director Richard M. Clark was pleased at the turnout of some 100 people for auditions for "The Miracle Worker" last Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Some, of course, were merely onlookers, but many tried out for various parts, especially Helen Keller and Annie Sullivan. We missed a few names, but among those on hand were Debby Albritton, Steve Albritton, Mary Ann Atkinson, Mary Bass, Scherck Bogen, Wade Brisbin, Murray Burfford, Feejee Carmack, Marie Christian, Mary Lou Clay, Martha Coker, Robert Crittenden.

Stamp News

Papua and New Guinea, well remembered by the U.S. military forces in the South Pacific during World War II, is now a peaceful and progressive area. Two new series of stamps have just been issued which indicate the return to normal existence. One set of two stamps features communication routes. The 8 pence shows small ships in Port Moresby harbor. The 2 shilling 3 pence stamp depicts an airplane approaching Tapini Airfield.

Another set of three new stamps features the following: a view of Rabaul, the second largest town in the territory, which is noted for its fine harbor and dormant volcanos. The 5 pence shows a bird of paradise and the 6 pence a golden opossum.

The Republic of China's "Freedom from Hunger" stamp is unique in design, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The stamp shows a woman in the foreground with her arms filled with stalks of grain while a man in the background drives a tractor. Above is a plane parachuting food to hungry people. Also issued by the Formosa government is a stamp honoring Youth Day. The design portrays a young man and woman facing a blazing torch which lights the Martyrs' Monument near Canton.

Belgium has issued two semi - postals picturing the "Bell of Peace" resounding throughout the world. The 3 franc plus 1.50 and 6 franc plus 3 adhesives also carry the word "Pax" below the bell in the design. A souvenir sheet of four stamps was issued simultaneously.

PAPUA & NEW GUINEA 8d

The little country of Lichtenstein has issued a new 5 franc stamp to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the reign of Prince Franz Joseph II. The design shows a profile of the prince. Also from that same little nation comes word that there will be three values in August for the centenary of the International Red Cross followed by a European issue and "Freedom from Hunger" issue.

PHOTO FANS brought their cameras to the International Photography Fair in New York City and put them to good use. One of their favorite targets was Miss Mari Takaichi who works for Yashica.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

First there was the American, dealers - only, trade show, at Atlantic City.

Then we flew the Atlantic Ocean to look over the tremendous Photokina in Cologne, Germany, where physical fitness and endurance were helpful assets in trying to cover the 619 exhibits and the huge halls.

LONG WEEK - END

Lastly we participated in the International Photography Fair held in New York City's Coliseum where a three-ring circus of constant activities kept camera fans busy during a five - day Easter week stay.

The New York show had a strictly American flavor of excitement bright lights, entertainment and a fast-moving pace. Spectators were treated to a parade of stage, screen and TV stars, models and circus animals, well-known personalities and lectures in the photographic world, charm school and karate demonstrations, a beauty contest and a precision presentation of the championship drill team of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy.

This was a field day for photo fans and they brought their cameras to participate in the fun of taking pictures. There was so much going on in three different areas, however, that it was a wise spectator who consulted the official program so that he could select the specific features that would interest him for the time he was present. Slide and film shows were shown in a Little Theatre; lectures and demonstrations were presented in a Hall of Learning and personal appearances and entertainment were featured on a central Great Stage.

LURE

Of course, the lure of being able to see and handle the newest cameras and equipment previously unveiled at the two dealer shows, was another reason for the big photo fan turnout. Here, as in Europe, Polaroid color film and the new cartridge - loading Kodak Instamatic cameras drew considerable attention and constant crowds.

We also came across a new camera in New York that had not been seen previously. Since the camera was floating in a fish tank without the usual underwater housing or any other visible protective coating, it rated more than submerged interest.

When hauled to the surface, I met the Nikonos, a 35mm f-25 camera specifically constructed to be water - tight so that it could be used directly in water, rain, snow, sand, mud or in high humidity. It is divided into three parts, each connected by a waterproof O-ring, and is chemically treated internally for anticorrosion.

The camera, originally designed in France and now made and distributed by Nikon, can be used advantageously by aqualung divers, fishermen, news and police cameramen, yachtsmen, skiers, surveyors, cave explorers and other photographers who have to contend with the watery element in some form or other.

Good Top Soil Need Is Growing

AP Newsfeatures
By EARL ARONSON

As the population and suburbia grow, the problem of getting good top soil increases. Artificial soils will help plant growers ease the situation.

Scientists at Cornell University's New York State College of Agriculture report successful tests with new "soils" called Peat-Lite Mixes. Profs. Raymond Sheldrake Jr. and James W. Boodley describe the tests as "outstanding" and predict extensive use of the materials this season.

The most important use will be by growers of plants in pots or flats.

NEW MATERIALS

Two of the new materials are Peat-Lite Mix A and Peat-Lite Mix B. The first calls for equal amounts (by volume) of peat moss and vermiculite, a mineral substance heated to 1400 degrees Fahrenheit. The other uses perlite, a form of volcanic rock that has expanded from being heated to 1800 degrees Fahrenheit, instead of vermiculite. Limestone, superphospate and fertilizer are added to each.

Boodley, a floriculturist, says the materials are readily available. The mixes may be used for house plants, with the vermiculite preparation preferred for home use because it holds water better.

"Before planting in it," Sheldrake advises, "it must be completely wet."

The dry weight of the material is about one-tenth that of soil. Wet, it weighs only half that of wet soil.

"When a grower adds all the fertilizer to the mix before planting," Boodley says, "plants will reach salable size in minimum time. This provides the consumer with a plant of extremely high quality."

Here is the formula for one cubic yard of Peat-Lite Mix A: 11 bushels of shredded German or Canadian sphagnum peat moss, 11 bushels of No. 2 Terralite vermiculite, 10 pounds of ground limestone, 2½ pounds of powdered superphospate (20 per cent), 3 to 4 pounds of ammonium nitrate or 12 pounds of 5-10-5 fertilizer.

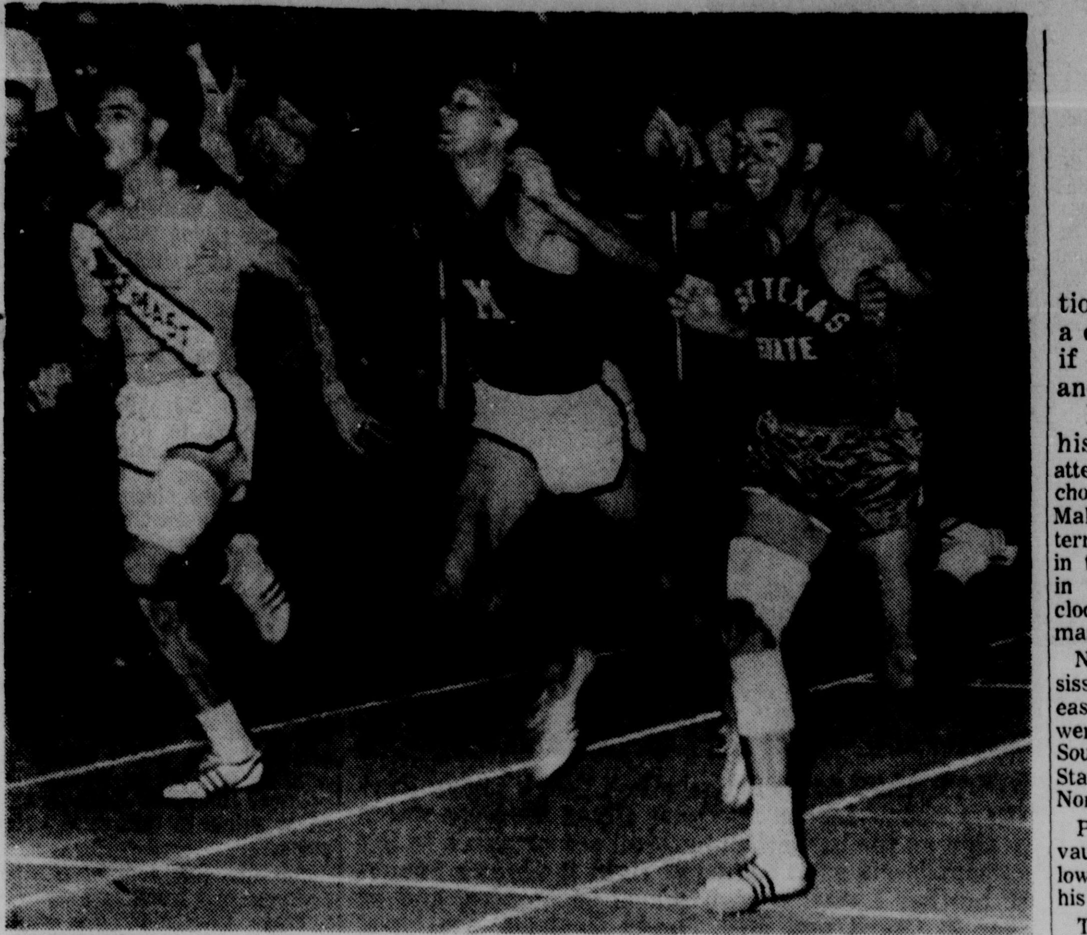
Indians Win First Invitational Meet



SPEEDSTER D. L. Lasater of East Texas State tied the stadium record in the 100-yard dash here Saturday night, turning in a 9.5 run. The mark was jointly held by Dave Styron, Northeast; Sid Garton, East Texas State; and Bob Fanning of Southeastern. Northeast's Jay Goldsmith, far left, was third, while Billy Moore of Mississsippi State, next to Goldsmith, was second. (Staff Photo by Ben Bradford, Jr.)

Happiness, Disappointment Mark Track Win For NLSC

By KEITH PRINCE
World Spots Writer

Happiness, exhaustion, disappointment and the ultimate goal — victory — was evident in the Northeast dressing room Saturday night after the Indians had won the team title in their first annual invitational track meet.

The nation's best pole vaulter, Northeast's John Pennel, once again soared over 16 feet to leave even more evidence that he is a consistent vaulter at the 16 foot level.

But the talented senior, who won acclaim as the meet's top field man, was clearly disappointed that he failed to clear 16-8.

"I had plenty of height all three tries," Pennel stated. "But the first two times I dropped my feet too soon after going over the bar. Then my last try, I moved the standards up a couple of inches and hit the bar going up.

"I actually though I had made it all three tries, but just couldn't keep my feet out of the way," he smiled.

Everyone around the pole vault area felt he had cleared it also as did the near 5,000 people who were in the stands.

"I'm sorry I disappointed the people who came to see the meet tonight," Pennel said. "They were really great and helped all of us tremendously. Some may not realize how much it helps to know the people are behind you but it makes all the difference in the world," he concluded.

Two of Northeast's freshmen flashes, Dalton LeBlanc and Cline Averett, also said the crowd was tremendous.

When reminded that they both looked sharp in their races, they almost said together, "I should have done better, I need to improve."

The roaring stand might have disagreed with the two hard workers.

"I'm really dead," he said. Asked about his best race, LeBlanc said, "I though the low hurdles were my best. The time was not as good as I had thought. I felt good and really pushed myself. But I still need to do better."

Averett, the young man from West Monroe, seemed to forget about the part he played in the team's victory and began praising quarter-miler Randall Walker.

"He's really something," said Averett. "I believe he's unbeatable. He runs so smooth, it's really a pleasure to run on the same team with him.

Walker, the quite Texan who "talks with performance," was again at his record-setting best. He ran a 47.3 open quarter to win the event going away and set a new Brown Stadium mark. He had just set the other stadium record Tuesday night when he was clocked in 47.4.

He also chipped in a 46.6 anchor time on the mile relay team's win. Walker was about four yeards behind East Texas State's runner when he received the baton but on the back stretch he really poured it on and grabbed a three yard lead which he kept — plus a couple of yards.

Little Mike Baker and junior John Baker, along with Averett and Walker, turned in fine quarters. Baker was a doubtful entry after injuring a toe badly last week. But the Jennings star fought off his injury, and some weakness due to lack of practice, to record a 47 flat time.

Another real crowd pleaser, freshman Gaylon LeBlanc, was somewhat disappointed after his third place in the 880. The dependable half-miler had a tremendous kick and had it not been for a unexpected drop out by one of the 880 contestants on the last curve, he would probably have finished higher.

LeBlanc was in good shape going into the final curve, when suddenly the runner in front of him just quit running, causing Gaylon to break his stride and lose nearly five yards.

AND IT RAINED

7 Balks Called In Braves' Loss

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Umpires called seven balks against the Milwaukee Braves in the game here Saturday and the Chicago Cubs won the National League Event, 7-5.

As plate umpire, Barlick had a hand in signalling all the balks. Barlick's umpiring team also called three balks in the Cubs-Braves game Friday night.

Two of the seven balk calls—one against Shaw and another against Chicago's Paul Toth—sent runners across the plate. Shaw was unnerved by the calls and walked six before he was ejected for arguing with Barlick in a five-run Chicago fifth.

Shaw, a 29-year-old veteran, set major league records for the most balks in a game and the most in an inning.

Shaw also has committed a record eight balks in just 32 1-3 innings this season.

The Cubs nailed down the victory by breaking a 2-2 tie in the fifth. Williams opened the inning by beating out a hit to first base.

Ron Santo forced Williams and then went to second on a single by Ernie Banks. Both runners advanced as Shaw was charged with his fifth balk. Andre Rodgers and Nelson Mathews then walked, forcing in a run, before Barlick thumbed out Shaw.

Pennel Vault Bid At 16-8 Is Short

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

Northeast State won its own first annual Invitational track and field meet here Saturday night before a crowd estimated at 5,000, most of whom came to see if pole vaulter John Pennel could up his world record another notch.

Pennel did not increase his mark, failing in three attempts at 16-8 but he was chosen outstanding field man. Malcolm Robinson of Southwestern, who bettered his own best in the nation mark for this year in the two-mile with an 8:47.8 clocking, was picked top track man.

Northeast scored 68 points, Mississippi State's defending Southeastern Conference champions were second with 56, followed by Southwestern with 52, East Texas State 46, Louisiana Tech 43, and Northwestern 35.

Pennel came on after the other vaulters bowed out at 14-6 or lower and cleared 15-0 easily on his first effort.

The bar was moved up to 16-0 and the 5-11 Miami product hit it with the back of his leg going up on his first effort. He cleared 16-0 on his second try.

Next the standard was raised to 16-8.

After the meet Pennel who jumped 16-6¾ for the record here Tuesday, said he thought he had plenty of height on his first two jumps, but that he didn't keep his legs up long enough.

Five Brown Stadium records fell and one was tied in running events. There were no new field records.

Robinson, in addition to bettering his own best time in the two-mile, eclipsed the record of 9:10.7 set by Fred Norris of McNeese State in 1961.

He also set a new stadium record in the mile, touring the course in 4:09.0 to better the 4:10.0 set by Buddy Eiland of Northeast in 1960.

Randall Walker, one of Northeast's all-time greats, broke his own stadium record of less than one week with 47.3, in the 440 Walker ran 47.4 on Tuesday to lower Dave Styron's 47.5 set in 1959.

Speedster Jim Wood of Mississippi State clipped off the 220 in 21.3 to lower a 21.4 mark set by Dave Styron of Northeast and tied by Sid Garton of East Texas.

And East Texas State's 880-relay team of Gene Bell, Basil Clark, Ronnie McNeil and R. L. Lasater, lowered the record to 1:26.3. Tech set the standard at 1:26.7 in 1961.

Lasater also tied the 9.5 record in the hundred held jointly by Dave Styron, Garton and Bob Fanning of SLC.

Northeast picked up five firsts, USL four, Mississippi State three, Northwestern and East Texas two apiece and Tech one.

The Indians took four of their firsts in running events, winning the mile relay in 3:11.4 and both hurdles in addition to the other first.

Dalton LeBlanc both hurdles, edging Tech's Allen Carpenter with a 14.4 clocking. LeBlanc took the lows in 23.7.

Southwestern won all three distance races, with Bill Sirmon taking the half mile in 1:52.7 to go along with Robinson's record beating times in the mile and two-mile runs.

East Texas firsts were in the record setting 880 relay and the tying 100 dash by Lasater. Northeast did not finish in the 880 relay when Jay Goldsmith pulled up with an injured leg. He had hurt the leg once before during the afternoon preliminaries.

Justin Canale's 41-8¼ shot put, a 41.6 clocking in the 440 relay and Wood's new standard in the 220 gave State its firsts.

Both Northwestern firsts came in field events. Ed Horton tossed the javelin 208-11 for one and Monty Ledbetter did 20-11 in the broad jump.

Tech's lone first was little Frank Howard's 6-3 high jump. The 5-8 jumper failed in an effort to equal the meet record of 6-4.

After the meet Indian Track Coach Bob Groseclose said Northeast had won a team victory.

Northeast finished first and second in the pole vault with Tommy Edmonson clearing 14-6 for the first time in his career for the No. 2 spot.

Robinson's time in the two-mile run was two seconds under the mark he set in a triangular meet at Hammond, April 27, the best collegiate time in the nation this year.

Classic Run Won By Chateaugay

By JOHN CHANDLER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Outsider Chateaugay overhauled the pacesetting Never Bend in the home stretch Saturday and drew off to a surprising victory in the 89th running of the $151,400 Kentucky Derby as the favorite, Candy Spots from California, finished third.

With a crowd estimated at above 100,000 roaring in high excitement, Chateaugay pounded past the finish line 1¼ lengths ahead of Never Bend, who held on the runner-up spot by a neck over Candy Spots.

No Robbery, who was supposed to have made up the Big Three along with Candy Spots and Never Bend, straggled home fifth in the field of nine 3-year-old horses. Both No Robbery and Candy Spots were undefeated.

It was a brilliant, sunny afternoon at Churchill Downs with the temperature at 80 degrees as one of the classiest Derby fields went out for the race over the fast track.

Chateaugay, owned b John W. Galbreath of Columbus, Ohio, and the chestnut son of Swaps, the 1955 Derby winner, was ridden by Braulio Baeza of Panama. It was the first Derby triumph for both Galbreath, owner of the Darby Dan Farm and president of the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team. It also was No. 1 for trainer Jimmy Conway and Baeza, who finished on Crozier behind Carry Back in 1961.

The time of 2 minutes, 1 4-5 seconds for the 1¼ miles was 1 2-5 seconds slower than the Derby and track record hung up by Decidedly last year.

Chateaugay returned $20.80, $7.00, $3.60 as the fifth choice. Never Bend, owned by the Cain Hoy Stable of Capt. Harry F. Guggenheim and ridden by Manuel Yzaza, returned $5 and $3.40. Candy Spots, carrying the hopes of Rex C. Ellsworth of California and ridden by Willie Shoemaker, paid $2.80 to show.

Ellsworth was going for his second Derby, having been the owner of Swaps, and Candy Spots was the 3-2 favorite. Greentree Stable's No Robbery was the 5-2 second choice and Never Bend was third on the board at 3-1.

Galbreath, whose Pirates took over first place in the National League just before the Derby was run, said in the winner's circle:

"We knew he was good but we didn't think he was quite this good."

Baeza, asked when he thought he could win the race, thought a moment, then replied:

"When I pulled up the horse."

Ycaza, another Panamian jockey who had finished third on the favored Ridan last year, shot into the lead with Never Bend a few strides after the field was sprung from the gate at the head of the stretch.

Johnny Rotz went right after him with No Robbery and Shoemaker followed with Candy Spots. They were 1-2-3 in that order going past the finish line the first time and with Gray Pet and Bonjour next.

Baeza was sitting calmly on Chateaugay back in sixth place as they made the first turn and slammed into the long run down the backstretch.

When they turned into the backstretch with three-quarters of a mile to go, Never Bend still was in front by one length and No Robbery had a two-length advantage over Candy Spots.

Meantime, Chateaugay was still in sixth place and Baeza still seemed in no hurry to close ground.

Patrice Jacobs' Bonjour was in fourth place and Gray Pet fifth as the three leaders fought it out up front.

Never Bend still held a length lead going into the far turn with one-half to go. No Robbery was second by two lengths over Candy Spots. And Chateaugay still had not started his winning move.

But as they rounded the turn and neared the top of the home stretch with one-quarter mile remaining, Baeza sent Chateaugay on the outside and it was evident that he was a running horse and the others were running out of steam.

THE WINNER'S RIDER

'My Baby Now' Baeza Exclaims

By BILL HUDSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Braulio Baeza, a young father of three children, proudly proclaimed "I got a new baby today" after he rode Chateaugay to a surprise victory in the 89th Kentucky Derby.

"He's my baby now," beamed the jockey from Panama.

"He is easy to ride. He was very kind to me. I could do what I pleased with him," said the happy jockey as he pulled off his silks.

Baeza, at 23—"I feel like I'm 12"—said winning the Derby was something he had dreamed of doing all his life.

It was his third Derby mount and his first victory after finishing second with Crozier in 1961 and ninth with Admiral's Voyage last year.

The 2 minute, 1 and 4-5 second spin aboard the son of Swaps was an easy chore for Baeza compared to getting the frisky colt to settle down and pose in the winner's circle.

Chateaugay was full of play and three times he acted like he wanted to sprint before a groom took a firm hand on him.

Baeza, who rode his first American race three years ago, said he had the colt back in the pack at the outset and added: "I took a good hold on him for I want to be sure I'd have a lot of horse for the main part of the race."

In Spanish-accented English, he said "I try to come between Gray Pet and another horse" as the field headed for the stretch. "Now he start to make a little move and I take hold of him and brought him outside."

The victory was worth $108,900 for owner John Galbreath of Darby Dan Farm and one-tenth of it went to the young jockey.

Culp Blanks Colts With Three Hitter

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ray Culp, a 21-year-old righthander who signed for a $100,000 bonus, pitched the first shutout of his budding National League career Saturday as the Philadelphia Phillies walloped the Houston Colts 7-0 at Connie Mack Stadium.

It was the third victory of the campaign for Culp, a husky Texan who spent four seasons in the minors before he got his chance with the Phillies this spring. He allowed only three singles and struck out seven.

Wes Covington, on a batting rampage, drove in three of the Phillies runs with a double and a single as the winners collected a dozen hits off loser Ken Johnson and three Colts relievers.

Culp and Johnson engaged in a scoreless duel until the fourth inning. Johnny Callison and Tony Gonzalez both hit doubles, putting runners on second and third for Covington. The muscular outfielder drilled a two-bagger off the right field wall to score the runners.

He scored on Bob Wine's sacrifice fly. The Colts got only one runner to third against Culp.

Five More Join Colonial Ranks In Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—The embattled Colonial National Invitation invited five more professionals and an amateur to its $60,000 golf tournament Saturday, but continued to ignore Don January.

Currently locked in controversy with January and the Professional Golfers Association, the tournament nevertheless extended bids to Rex Barber Jr., Don Massengale, Bert Weaver, Dutch Harrison, Jerry Steelsmith and amateur Fred Marti for the event opening Thursday.

The Colonial noted that the new invitations swelled the roster for the 18th annual invitation to 63, largest in history.

However, a number of the leading PGA players have indicated they may skip the tournament.

The Colonial through Friday had announced one official withdrawal but several indicated they would not play if January was not invited or if the PGA continued to withhold Colonial from its list of official tournaments.

Jaycee Tourney At Southside Great Success

This meet was organized for the purpose of creating interest in track in the local grammar schools and junior highs, and in the past five years the meet has grown from only 35 entrants to 148. Good example of its success would be Robert Goorley, an out standing relay man in the Neville High strong relay teams.

All of the first and second place winners in the different events will compete in state competition, which will be held in Monroe on May 22.

IN MAIL JUNE 3RD

Young Announces Boat Registration

The first group of applications for renewal of motorboat registration will be in the mail to boat owners during the week of June 3, L. D. Young, Jr., Director of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, said today.

The quarterly renewal schedule for the first year will be as follows:

1. LA-1-AA through LA-999-AN inclusive. Notices will be mailed the first week of June 1963.
2. LA-1-AP through LA-999-BC inclusive. Notices will be mailed the first week of September 1963.
3. LA-1-BD through LA-999-BS inclusive. Notices will be mailed the first week of December 1963.
4. LA-1-BT through LA-400-CD inclusive. Notices will be mailed the first week of March 1964.

Applicant is requested to immediately sign and return the application (left hand part) in the special self - addressed envelope provided, along with a check or money order made payable to the "Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission" for $3.00. Applicant must complete and keep the Expiration Notice (right hand part) and use a temporary certificate until the regular three-year renewal certificate is received.

Failure to submit application for renewal, on or before expiration date printed on application, will automatically cancel the present registration number. In such case the owner will have to reapply to the Commission for a new number and pay the initial $5.00 registration fee prior to use of his boat. Therefore there should be no delay in mailing back these renewals, Young said.

Homers Power Chisox Victory Over Senators

CHICAGO (AP)—Two homers by Dave Nicholson, driving in three runs, powered the Chicago White Sox to an 8-1 victory over Washington Saturday and snapped the Senators' three - game winning streak.

The former Baltimore bonus-baby slammed an opposite-field homer high to the right field stands in the fourth inning to tie the score 1-1.

After the game was interrupted for 1 hour, 21 minutes by rain, the Sox tallied twice in the fifth on Floyd Robinson's triple, then piled it on with five runs in the seventh.

Reds Post 2nd Shutout Over Slumping Cards

CINCINNATI (AP)—Home runs by Frank Robinson and Gordy Coleman backed Jim Maloney's four-hit pitching as Cincinnati posted its second straight shutout over St. Louis, 6-0, and dropped the Cardinals out of the National League lead.

Miss Smith Leads At Peach Blossom

By KEN ALYTA

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — Marilynn Smith, still riding the crest of her Titleholders playoff victory earlier in the week, stroked home a 12-foot putt on the final hole Saturday to move into the 36-hole lead of the Peace Blossom-Betsy Rawls Open Golf Tournament by one shot.

The 34-year-old blonde shot a 1-under-par 71 for a 145 total. Going into Sunday's final round of the 54-hole $7,500 tournament she leads Sandra Spuzich and Mary Lena Faulk, the defending champion, by one stroke.

Miss Spuzich, 26-year-old Indianapolis rookie pro in her fourth tournament since leaving the amateur ranks, shot the best round of the tournament, 70. Miss Faulk equalled par 72 for the 6,200-yard Country Club of Spartanburg course.

Murle Lindstrom, cq-first round leader, shot 75, and dropped to fourth place at 147. She was one stroke ahead of Sherry Wheeler, the other first round leader.

Miss Smith started her run of birdies by rapping in a 45-footer on the ninth green to make the turn in par 35. The next hole she birdied from 25 feet.

She followed this with five pars but bogied the 16th when she was trapped and she had to birdie the final hole to take the lead.

Miss Spuzich, who admitted she "tensed up a little on the last three holes," was out in 33, for the best nine hole score of the tournament, shooting two birdies and seven pars. She finished with nine pars, saving pars with fine chip shots on the 10th and 13th holes after missing the greens.

TALENTED GLYNN SAULTERS

Libson Star Inks Pact To Play At Northeast

Northeast Louisiana State Saturday landed one of the South's top recruiting prizes — Lisbon all - state basketball and baseball star Glynn Saulters.

Sought by 17 colleges and universities and several major league baseball teams, Saulters signed a grant - in - aid agreement with Northeast in Monroe Saturday afternoon.

The 6-2, 165 - pound athlete was named to the all - state basketball team selected by Louisiana coaches in 1962 and was chosen on the class C all - state club by both coaches and sports writers this year. He has been a member of the Louisiana Sports Writers Association all-state baseball team for the past two seasons and is a heavy favorite to make the 1963 team.

Son of Lisbon coach Grady Saulters, Glynn paced his basketball team to the state semi-finals this year, where Lisbon lost a 62-60 thriller to Holden, the eventual champion. Saulters scored 32 points in that semi - final game.

For the full season, Saulters averaged 21.4 points and was also a crack rebounder. His scoring average was the third highest among class C players in the state. In his junior season, he averaged 17.7 points a game. In addition to his all - state laurels, the Lisbon star has been named to the all - district 5-C team three times and the all - regional team twice.

During the past two years, Saulters has been named to the all - tournament team in every tournament his team has participated in, 17 in all.

The 18 - year - old athlete plays shortstop and pitcher in baseball. In 1961 he was named to the all-state team as a shortstop and last year as a pitcher.

In 1962 Glynn was voted the state's most outstanding player in class C after leading his team to the state championship, winning all three of his club's games in the tournament in Baton Rouge.

A righthander, he won eight games and lost only one last season and has a 4-1 mound record so far this year. At the plate, he hit .386 last year and is batting .328 this season. He is rated an outstanding fielder by major league scouts.

Glynn plans to major in pharmacy at Northeast. He has a "B" average in his school work and is president of his senior class.

At Northeast the young athlete will play under two outstanding coaches — Basketball Coach Lenny Fant and George Luffey, the baseball tutor at the Monroe College. Fant was selected "Coach of the Year" in the Gulf States Conference in 1962 after guiding his team to the league championship.

Glynn is not the only outstanding athlete in the Saulters family. His younger brother Larry, a sophomore, is a star member of the Lisbon basketball and baseball teams. Like his brother, he plays short and pitches. He was the team's no. 2 scorer in the state semi - final basketball game with Holden and is expected to be one of Louisiana's top prep cagers before he graduates.

Athletics Bomb Boston In Five

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics, with Ed Charles driving in five runs and Wayne Causey four, bombed Boston 14-3 Saturday night in a game ended by rain in the fifth inning and held on to first place in the American League.

The victory kept the surprising A's 1½ games ahead of the New York Yankees and dropped the Red Sox to fourth place.

The A's actually beat the downpour by only 7 minutes. They were swinging at almost every pitch in the last of the fourth, knowing the rain was on its way.

In the fifth, Boston's Dick Stuart was nipped at second trying for a double on a perfect throw by Manny Jimenez. Then Bill Fischer, who picked up his fifth straight victory in relief, struck out Lu Clinton to end the inning.

Jerry Lumpe doubled, Norm Siebern tripled him home and scored on a wild pitch in the fifth before rain ended it. The start of the game was delayed 81 minutes by rain.

Semi-Conscious Boxer Returns To Argentina

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Argentine boxer Alejandro Lavorante—still semi-conscious nearly eight months after he was knocked out—left for his homeland Saturday.

Lavorante was carried to a plane on a stretcher, on which he will remain throughout the trip.

The 26-year-old heavyweight was scheduled to arrive in Buenos Aires Sunday afternoon.

Lavorante has been unconscious or, more recently, semi-conscious, since he was knocked out by Johnny Riggins of San Francisco in a fight Sept. 21.

Tigers Seeking Pitching Help

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tigers, who have slipped to last place in the American League, sought pitching help by acquiring right-hander Tom Sturdivant in one of two deals with National League clubs.

The Tigers purchased the 33-year-old pitcher from the Pittsburgh Pirates. Detroit then sent outfielder Bubba Morton to the Milwaukee Braves for cash and a player to be named later.

Sturdivant, whose best pitch is a knuckleball, returns to the American League after two years in the National. He formerly pitched for the New York Yankees, Kansas City Athletics, Boston Red Sox and Washington Senators. Sturdivant was 0-0 in sparse use by the Pirates this year.

COMIN' UP AFIELD

Gun Clinic Area's First

With Sam Hanna

Shooters On Program

"Take your boy hunting today and you won't have to hunt for him tomorrow."

That was once a saying of the late Herb Parsons, probably the nation's best known firearms exhibitionist.

We never knew Herb Parsons or saw him in action, but from talking to an old friend of his, Otis McCollum, he must have been quite a disciple of gun safety for youngsters.

The truth in the above quoted sentence gives evidence that Herb Parsons believed in taking youngsters hunting and teaching them gun safety.

Apparently Otis McCollum is following in the footsteps of Herb Parsons, although he doesn't claim to be the marksman that Parsons evidently was.

McCollum, district sales manager for Winchester-Western, of Memphis, Tenn. is making extensive plans for his part on North Louisiana's first gun safety clinic to be sponsored at the Selman Field firing range next Saturday by the Monroe Optimist Club.

McCollum and Arthur Hill of Pineville will be the featured attractions at the clinic, although they point out quickly that they are not trick shooters.

"We put on demonstrations," Otis said, "showing the power of shotguns and rifles and how safety factors should be used around homes and automobiles."

"More accidents happen around homes and cars than in the field," he added.

To prove their point, Otis and Art are bringing with them a selection of firearms and unique techniques to demonstrate the power of respective guns, including rifles, shotguns and pistols.

They will appear along with personnel of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, the ROTC Rifle Team of Northeast State College and Paul Ransom of the Ouachita Farm Bureau. Paul will make a brief talk on the importance of the hunter observing the farmer's property.

With Sheriff Bailey Grant as clinic master, the program should be one that is well worth attending for any youngster and his father interested in handling firearms properly.

There will be two sessions—the first beginning at 9:30 a.m. and ending at noon, and the second starting at 2 p.m. and ending at 4:30 p.m. Youngsters need not attend both sessions.

This will mark the first gun safety clinic ever to be held in North Louisiana. In fact, we know of only two others in South Louisiana.

But it is the type of program that should be stressed by the fathers of all youngsters who want to hunt or who do hunt. It is the type of program that should be supported by parents, who should see to it that their kids attend.

The clinic will be free-of-charge. Youngsters attending will receive a certificate from the Optimists, targets from Winchester-Western, and copies of the 10 commandments of safety from the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission.

That's next Saturday at Selman Field. And remember:

"Take your boy hunting today and you won't have to hunt for him tomorrow."

New Fishing License

Fishermen need to remember that their 1962 licenses expire June 30. New licenses for the 1963-64 season are available now.

Director L. D. Young announced this week that the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission has mailed the licenses to the sheriffs' offices.

Young, however, cautioned fishermen to retain their present license until June 30 as the new license will not be valid until July 1.

In so many words, sportsmen may obtain their fishing license ahead of time if they wish.

Pollution In Mississippi

The U.S. Department of the Interior is making a study to determine the effects of serious pollution on the Mississippi and Minnesota rivers.

According to the Wildlife Management Institute, millions of gallons of soy bean and crude oil, from ruptured storage tanks near Mankato and Savage, Minnesota flowed into the Minnesota River and down into Lake Pepin on the Mississippi River.

This, according to the institute, caused untold damage to wildlife, fish, beaches and other recreation facilities. About 2,000 ducks were found dead and another 1,000 were rescued by residents along the streams who tried to wash the oil from their feathers with detergents. At least 500 of these birds died later.

Government studies underway now will assist, according to an announcement from the interior department, in determining whether there will be further danger to fish and other aquatic life from depleted oxygen levels in backwater areas when oil oxidizes during the warm summer months.

Actually, the trouble began last December when an oil pipeline broke at Savage, Minn. southwest of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Apparently the most damage was done in the Minnesota area, because the interior department reports that the oil slick in the river is now beginning to disperse and oxidizes.

Little Man's Corner

The bream were biting and the little men made news afield.

Everybody caught fish at Bussey, ranging from bream, bass, white perch and catfish. But the bream fishing has been good at just about any place the fishermen wanted to go.

From Winnsboro, Julian Duncan and Joe Giglio got the limit of bream with red worms on Lake St. John. Jack Givins and Leo Welch landed 18 nice bass at Yucatan.

E. B. Tullos landed the limit of bream at Concordia with red worms. Randy Roy has been catching catfish on pole and line in Old River in the Ferriday area.

In the Lake Providence area, Vacel Razer caught 10 bass at Hollybrook on an H&N and Lucky 13. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Harold McMillan got 102 bream in Lake Providence.

But the hottest spot in East Carroll has been Gassoway. They're really been catching some big bream there. Claude Rinicker got 12 white perch in Gassoway also.

And in the turkey hunting reports, Pat Ritchie of Chatham bagged a 15-pound gobbler in Tensas. Harvey Lee Spruill of St. Joseph killed a big beauty.

Braves Buy Tiger

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves announced Saturday the purchase of infielder-outfielder Bubba Morton, 28, from the Detroit Tigers.

Morton hit .287 in 77 games for the Tigers in 1961 and .262 in 90 games last year.

GOOD IN PINCH

CHICAGO (UPI) — Camilo Carreon of the Chicago White Sox hit .455 as a pinch hitter in 1962.

SHOOTING DEMONSTRATORS Arthur Hill (left) of Pineville and Otis McCollum of Memphis, Tenn. will be featured attractions at the Monroe Optimist Club gun safety clinic here next Saturday at the Selman Field firing range. Hill and McCollum, representing Winchester-Western of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., will demonstrate the power of firearms at the morning and afternoon sessions of the clinic. The clinic will be open to all youngsters free of charge.

Pace Fires 65 As Tech Easily Beats GSC Foe

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech's Roy Pace fired a seven under par 65 here Saturday, as he and his teammates breezed to a 16½ to 1½ victory over Northwestern.

Jerry Gulledge had a one under 71 for Tech and Robert Flagler had a par 72 for the Demons, but was matched against Pace the two time GSC champion.

The two teams along with another GSC member began play here in the league tourney on Thursday.

Pace's 65 was nothing unusual, since he holds the Ruston Country club coarse record with a 10 under par 62 set last year. Pace was 33 on the front nine and 32 coming in with the Saturday match with HSC.

SUMMARY

AT CHAMPIONS MEET

Nicklaus Has Trouble But Maintains Lead

By BOB MYERS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Pacesetting Jack Nicklaus weathered gusty winds, an abrupt run of bad luck plus a sudden challenge from Bill Casper Jr. Saturday but finished the third round of the $60,000 golf Tournament of Champions with a lead of four strokes.

The 23-year-old National Open champion finished his appearance over the 36-36—72 hole Desert Inn Country Club course with a 72 and a 54-hole total of 204.

But as Nicklaus settled down on the final hole, Casper was the man to have trouble and he finished with a 69 for 208.

Winds up to 32 miles per hour swept the course for the first time last week as a crowd of more than 11,000 tramped after the field of 27 golfers.

Bob Goalby, shooting his second straight 68, moved into the picture with a 209. And as the complexion of the tournament changed, Arnold Palmer, who had trailed Nicklaus through the first two rounds, fell back into fourth place with a 73 for 210.

Tied at 212 as the players headed into the final 18 holes Sunday were Ted Kroll, 69; Gardner Dickinson 70, and Tony Lema, 71.

Nicklaus started the round with a five-stroke cushion over Palmer and the bookmakers in Las Vegas, where gambling is not only legal but prevalent, decided not to take any more bets on him.

Nicklaus played in the same twosome with Casper. Sturdy Jack, after stretching his lead to six strokes over Palmer with a birdie on the first hole, and with Casper eight strokes behind at that point, Nicklaus' game began to crumble.

He took a bogie 4 on the fourth, birdied the fifth with a 4 and then a double bogie 6 and a bogie 4 on the sixth and seventh.

Casper closed in with three straight birdies starting on the third, and as Nicklaus made the turn in 38, Casper turned in 33 and was only two strokes behind him.

Palmer birdied the 10th to Nicklaus' par. And from there on through the 13th, Casper was still a grave threat.

Nicklaus birdied No. 15 and got par the rest of the way while Casper took two bogies and one birdie to drift again four strokes back.

Schwall Blanks Los Angeles, 5-0 In Pirates Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Don Schwall blanked the slumping Los Angeles Dodgers on a crafty four hitter today and enabled the Pittsburgh Pirates to take a 5-0 victory at Forbes Field.

Dick Schofield's single with the bases loaded in the second inning drove in two runs and a third runner scored when Willie Davis fumbled the ball in center field. Roberto Clemente had doubled and both Jim Pagliaroni and Schwall walked before Schofield came through with his hit off loser Bob Miller.

'Black Sox' Pitcher Dies At Houston

HOUSTON (AP)—Dickie Kerr, 69, honest hero of the infamous "Black Sox" baseball scandal, died today of cancer.

Kerr, a southpaw pitcher, won two games in the 1919 World Series although eight of his Chicago White Sox teammates later were banned from organized baseball for having conspired to throw the series to Cincinnati.

The 5-foot-7 Kerr announced himself several months ago that he had cancer. He entered the hospital but was allowed by his doctors to go home. He returned to the hospital at intervals for treatment.

"I am not scared," he told newsmen when he announced he had the dread disease.

Kerr, who had served in baseball as a player, manager and scout, was connected with an electrical firm the past few years.

The "Black Sox" scandal led to the 1920 appointment of Federal Judge K. M. Landis as baseball commissioner with unlimited power to deal with any matter detrimental to the sport.

It was Kerr's dream to be named to the Baseball Hall of Fame. But the dream never came true. He was ruled ineligible because the rules specify that a pitcher must have been in the major leagues 10 different championship seasons and Kerr didn't pitch long enough in the majors to qualify.

However, he was presented the first Tris Speaker Award in 1961.

While a manager at Daytona Beach, Fla., a St. Louis Cardinal farm, Kerr advised a sore-armed Cardinal rookie named Stan Musial to forget about pitching and concentrate on hitting. He encouraged the young outfielder to continue playing the outfield.

The Kerrs took the Musials into their home. The Musials' first child was named Dickie in honor of Kerr.

ChiSox Manager Lopaz Ejected

CHICAGO (AP)—Manager Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox found a rare way to be ejected from a ball game Saturday.

In the fourth inning of the game with Washington, the Sox' Dave Nicholson was in the batter's box. The sky had darkened from an approaching storm.

First base Umpire Bill McKinley ordered the lights turned on.

Lopez argued that the sudden flash of the lights could have distracted Nicholson to the extent he might have been hit in the head with a pitch, and lights never should be turned on with a batter in the box.

Bleak Future Predicted For South Timber

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A bleak future was predicted for the southern timber industry Saturday by witnesses at a hearing before Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C. a member of the Senate Commerce Committee.

Lumbermen told Thurmond the future looks bad unless action i taken to curb Canadian imports or continue the ban on foreign shipments in intracoastal trade and reverse an administration proposal eliminating capital gains on timber.

The current situation is bad enough, said Lee Zeagler, president of the Texas Lumbermen association, but, considering that it represents a continuing, accelerated trend, the prospects for the future are worse.

Charles H. Lewis, executive director of the Louisiana Forestry Association, said Canadian lumber undersells Southern pine in almost any part of the U.S. because the government owns 95 per cent of the country's timber and is able to control its price.

The lumbermen asked that the Jones Act, which requires intracoastal shipment to be made in U.S. vessels, remain in effect.

A proposal to eliminate the capital gains treatment of timber was attacked by J. N. Brown, of the Texas Forestry Association.

He said forced liquidation of many forest properties brings about "costly erosion, widespread unemployment and economic chaos."

MET WITH OPEN ARMS?

JUPITER ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — The welcome the near-shipwrecked trio received here was not exactly what they had hoped for. Their boat had been raked by fire, put out of commission and washed toward shore. As the boat neared safety, a man ran onto the beach firing a gun into the air shouting, "Get away. You can't land here."

The World For Women

May 5, 1963

Above: Engagement of Miss Joan Bodenheimer to John Andrew Keedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Keedy of Fort Worth, Texas, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Bodenheimer, West Monroe. Miss Bodenheimer is a graduate of Ouachita Parish high school and Mr. Keedy was graduated from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. A July 4 wedding is planned.

At right: A June 9 wedding is planned by Miss Barbara Jean Worley, daughter of Mrs. W. G. Worley and the late Mr. Worley, and Leslie Cleveland Sturgeon, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Sturgeon, all of this city. The ceremony will take place at 2 p.m. in Central Assembly of God in Monroe. The bride-elect attended Louisiana State University and Northeast Louisiana State College, where Mr. Sturgeon is presently a student.

Below: Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd N. Barnett of Mobile, Alabama, of the engagement of their daughter, Janice Kay to Thomas Van Rainer Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Rainer Sr., 1200 North 3rd, Monroe. The wedding will be an event of June 21 in Southside Methodist Church of Monroe, at 7:30 p.m.

New residents of Monroe are Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Haines and family, who recently moved here from New Orleans and have established residence at 21 Kathy Lane. Pictured are Mrs. Haines and son, Ronnie, 12. The Haineses have two other sons, Larry, a junior pre-med student at Louisiana Tech in Ruston and Lance a freshman at Harding College in Searcy, Arkansas.

Junior League Silver Tea Held At G. L. Morgans

The G. L. Morgan home on Pargoud Boulevard was the scene of a gala Spring party Wednesday when the Junior Charity League entertained with its silver tea from 3 until 6 p.m. Proceeds from the annual affair go to support the League's work in the community.

Decorations for the Morgan's beautiful new home were in charge of Mrs. Elmer Slagle Jr. and members of her committee. Those assisting with the flower arrangements were Mrs. Jim Williams, Mrs. Bert Sperry, Mrs. Tom Munholland, Mrs. J. H. Thatcher, Mrs. J. F. Wallace and Mrs. Harry Bell.

In the foyer was a striking arrangement of red day lilies, while the raised hearth in the living room held a line arrangement of magnolias in an antique brass container. A mass arrangement of magnolias, also in a brass container, was placed on the coffee table. The tea table held a pyramid arrangement of yellow day lilies with fern.

On display at various vantage points throughout the house and on the terrace were the Charity League's dolls, depicting the members at work on some of the league's many community projects. They portray the League's work with such activities as the Y.W.C.A., the puppet show, library story hour and the Monroe Youth Orchestra. The dolls, a project in themselves, were created and designed under direction of Mrs. Charles Petrus.

The receiving line was composed of past presidents of the Monroe Junior Charity League. Those receiving from three until four p.m. were Mrs. H. B. Hargrove, Mrs. Thad J. Ryan Jr., Mrs. M. S. Dixon, Jr., Mrs. D. C. Bernhardt, Mrs. W. C. Cookston, Jr., Mrs. J. L. Adams, Mrs. John O. Clay, Mrs. Ronald L. Davis, Jr., the present president, and Mrs. Morgan. Those receiving at the door were Mrs. Harold Woods, Jr., and Mrs. Roy Ledbetter, Jr. Pouring, in the dining room, were Mrs. John Sherrouse, Jr., and Mrs. Evans Ethridge. Pouring, on the terrace, was Mrs. Tim Allen.

Those welcoming guests at the door from four until five were Mrs. R. W. Dickenhorst and Mrs. Thomas Henry. The receiving line was composed of Mrs. Foster Wallace, Mrs. Henry Hinkle, Mrs. Dewitt Milam, Mrs. E. J. Seymour, Mrs. Miles Sager, Mrs. Corbin Turpin, Mrs. Roy Johns, Mrs. Ray Rhymes, Mrs. Henry Bernstein, Jr., and Mrs. J. H. Thatcher. Pouring, in the dining room, were Mrs. Ivy Jordan and Mrs. Shelby Hill. Pouring, on the terrace, was Mrs. William Husted.

Receiving guests at the door from five until six were Mrs. H. K. Touchstone, Jr., and Mrs. Lee Vanderpool. In the receiving line were Mrs. George Snellings, Mrs. Thomas Davenport, Mrs. R. L. Davis, Mrs. Harry Lemert, Mrs. John Theus, Mrs. Jack Taylor, Mrs. Jamar Adcock and Mrs. Paul Neal. Those pouring in the dining room, were Mrs. Louis Peters and Mrs. H. W. Greene. Pouring, on the terrace, was Mrs. Arthur Grant.

League members who contributed to the success of the silver tea worked on the following committees: co - general chairmen were Mrs. Joe LeDoux and Mrs. J. L. Adams, Jr.; Mrs. Doyle Hamilton and Mrs. Kent Anderson, house chairmen, Mrs. Morris Phillips with Mrs. William D. Brown and Mrs. Ralph Simpson, assisting, kitchen chairmen; Mrs. Elmer Slagle, Jr., flowers; Mrs. Jack Rivers and Mrs. Ed Seymour, Jr., pick-up committee; Mrs. John Kelso, Jr., Mrs. J. L. Adams, Jr., and Mrs. Joe LeDoux, invitations; Mrs. Thomas Dansby, calling; and Mrs. Sylvester Breard, publicity. Provisional members assisted in the serving under the direction of Mrs. James A. Neill.

Couple Lists June Nuptials

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd N. Barnett of Mobile, Ala., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Janice Kay to Thomas Van Rainer Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Rainer Sr., 1200 North 3rd, Monroe.

The couple will exchange vows on June 21 at 7:30 p.m. in Southside Methodist Church of Monroe. Rev. Lea Joyner will perform the ceremony.

Miss Barnett has chosen her sister, Mrs. Jean Eubanks to serve as matron of honor. Brady Brockner will attend Mr. Rainer as best man and ushers will be Harry Beaube, Tommy Eubanks, Pete Medah and Joe Solomon.

The bride-elect is a student at Murphy high school in Mobile. Mr. Rainer graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. He is presently employed in Monroe where the couple will establish a home.

Area Residents' Granddaughter Is Betrothed

Of interest in the area is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Donald George Graves of New Orleans of the engagement of their daughter, Judith Valerie to Fred Epling Bouchard son of Mr. and Mrs Frank Fredrick Bouchard of El Monte, Calif.

The wedding will be an event of June 8 at Saint Charles Presbyterian church in New Orleans at 8 p.m.

Miss Graves, whose mother is the former Miss Gladys Lee of Harrisonburg, is a graduate of Alcee Wortier senior high school, attended Louisiana State and is now a student at Newcomb College in New Orleans. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Lee of Harrisonburg and the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Duzon Graves of St. Petersburg, Fla.

The prospective bridegroom attended the University of California and Humble State University in California. He is now attending electronics school at McCord Air Force base in Tacoma, Wash., where he is stationed with the air force.

Sportswear Look Seen In High Fashion

New York fashion leaders have taken to the new sportswear look in high fashion. Spring suit choices by women who can spend what they please have been running strongly to checks, weskits and country-tailored styles.

Some go the whole way, appearing in New York's elegant Sixties with checkered wool suits, sweaters, knee-length white cable socks and low-heeled walking pumps. This kind of costume, once considered for country only, now appears on every dog-walking fashionable.

Restaurants are filled with women lunching in Chanel suits, Norell weskit costumes. Norman Norell has never had a better season in New York than with his spring weskit suits, casually skirted, softly shirted, with bow-tied necklines.

MISS MILLICENT ANN HISLOP

Millicent Ann Hislop To Be August Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hislop Jr., 109 Oak Drive, West Monroe, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Milicent Ann Hislop to Karl Howard Schram, son of Mrs. Olive Schram of Portland, Oregon.

The wedding is planned to be an event of August 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of West Monroe. Dr. Clifton Tennison will perform the ceremony.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mrs. Ed Hislop Sr. She attended the University of Hawaii and is at present a student at Baylor University, Waco, Tex. She is a member of Delta Beta Sigma sorority.

Mr. Schram is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cortney of Vancouver, Wash. He attended the University of California, the University of Oregon and is now a student at Baylor University.

MISS SARABETH BOUGHTON

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Sarabeth Boughton, student at Northeast Louisiana State College, to Hugh Griffin Parker Jr. is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Boughton of Bastrop. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Parker, also of Bastrop.

The wedding is planned for Sunday, June 9 to be solemnized at 4:30 p.m. in New Friendship Baptist Church.

Miss Boughton, a junior at Northeast is a member of Delta Omicron sorority and was "Miss Northeast" for 1962-63.

Mr. Parker is a graduate of Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge and is presently an architect in Monroe.

MISS ADELE GARMAN

Adele Garman Engaged To Charles Roy Horton

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Adele Garman to Charles Roy Horton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Horton of Monroe, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Charles Garman Sr., of Jennings.

The wedding to be an event of June 2 will be solemnized in the First Baptist Church of Jennings at 3:30 p.m.

A graduate of Jennings high school, Miss Garman attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston and Business college in Monroe.

Mr. Horton who graduated from Byrd high school in Shreveport, is presently a pre-med student at Northeast Louisiana State College.

MISS LINDA MAGDALENE CLARK

Linda Magdalene Clark To Become Bride Of Richard David Abraham

Mr. and Mrs. Ovid Arnold Clark, 807 Cole Avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Linda Magdalene Clark to Richard David Abraham. He is the son of Mrs. Nageeb George Abraham, 4020 DeSiard Road, and the late Mr. Abraham.

The candlelight double-ring ceremony will take place Saturday, June 22 at 2 p.m. in Memorial Methodist Church. The Rev. Lloyd E. Williams will officiate.

Miss Clark has chosen as her attendants her sister Miss Judy Faye Clark as maid of honor; her cousin, Mrs. Bruce Stone Jr., Thornton, Miss., matron of honor and Miss Gloria Abraham, sister of the future bridegroom; Miss Betty Hines, Mrs. James C. Lee Jr., bridesmaids and Miss Kathy Clark, also a sister of the bride-elect, as junior bridesmaid.

Raymond Nelson will attend Mr. Abraham as best man and chosen as groomsmen-ushers are Ralph Abraham, brother of the future bridegroom; Michael Brown of Lake Providence, his brother-in-law; Albert Elias, his cousin; William Turrentine Jr., Jake Johnson and Ronald Squyres.

Miss Clark is the granddaughter of Mrs. Ruby Peaster, Gulfport, Miss., and the late Walter C. Peaster and the late Rev. and Mrs. Ovid Allen Clark, Grenada County, Miss. A graduate of Neville high school, she was graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College with a B.S. degree in business education. She is a member of Phi Mu social sorority and was elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. For the past year she has been employed in Biloxi, Miss.

Mr. Abraham is a graduate of Neville high school and of Northeast Louisiana State College and is presently employed as purchasing agent for a local firm. He is the grandson of Mrs. Tom Lewis Sr., Austin, Tex., and the late Mr. Lewis and the late Mr. and Mrs. George Abraham, Vicksburg, Miss.

Mona Lisa Won't Create Fashion Furore

Not since last year's Cleopatra furore has any lady of the past received as much attention as Mona Lisa has been getting. Surely she ought to get the attention of the fashion industry just as Cleo did, but Mona is less cooperative.

Michel Kazan has designed a Mona Lisa hairdo for summer which he says has that just-out-of-the-water look, but the general effect is more bride of Frankenstein than glamorous.

The rest of what the lady is wearing is too vague to serve as inspiration. She isn't even a fashionable Renaissance lady, as comparison with other portraits of her time proves.

MISS LINDA ANN RHODES

Linda Rhodes To Marry Bobby J. Ward June 8

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Linda Ann Rhodes to Bobby Joe Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ward of Baton Rouge is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Rhodes, also of Baton Rouge, formerly of this city.

Mrs. Rhodes' parents are William G. Jasper and the late Mrs. Grace Jasper of Monroe, while Mr. Rhodes' parents are Deryl Rhodes of Monroe and Mrs. O. R. McAtee of San Antonio. Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Owen of Monroe are also grandparents of the bride-elect.

The engagement was revealed at an announcement party given recently in Baton Rouge by Mr. and Mrs. William R. Eason and Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson.

Miss Rhodes will become the bride of Mr. Ward on Saturday, June 8 at 5 p. m. in the Broadmoor Methodist Church.

A color theme of lime green and white was carried out in the decorations. The honoree, mothers of the engaged couple and members of the house party received glamellia corsages with touches of green. The main serving table in the reception room was centered with a silver epergne filled with white stock and carnations and lime green candles. Other arrangements carried out the green and white theme as did the refreshments.

Miss Rhodes is a junior at Louisiana State University and will complete her studies at Nichols State College in Thibodaux. Active in high school affairs she is a past state president of the Future Homemakers of America. She has held office in the Wesley Foundation at LSU and was a pledge of Alpha Delta Pi. Mr. Ward attended LSU and is now a pilot for a seaplane charter service in Morgan City.

Highland Park Garden Club Plans Banquet

"A Look Back and a Look Ahead" will be theme of the Highland Park Garden Club's annual banquet which is planned for May 14 at the Paragon Club at 7:30 p.m.

Plans for the annual event were made at a recent called meeting of the group. Highlight of the evening will be installation of new officers for the ensuing year. Mrs. John P. Lewis, a special guest, will install the officers.

On Tuesday of this past week members of the club made a trip to Many for a tour of Hodges Gardens and picnic lunch at noon.

Those attending the all-day excursion were Mrs. R. F. Bealle, Mrs. S. L. Solomon, Mrs. P. L. Pace, Mrs. W. K. Easley, Mrs. William Hollingsworth, Mrs. J. R. Lee, Mrs. Lynn Roberts and Mrs. Lathan Williams.

Carolyn Gallaspy Honored

Miss Carolyn Gallaspy, senior majoring in biology at the University of Mississippi, has been tapped by Mortar Board, national senior women's honorary, whose selection is based on leadership, scholarship and service to the university.

Miss Gallapsy, daughter of Mrs. Glenn T. Gallaspy, 808 Clayton, West Monroe and the late Dr. Gallaspy, has also been honored for leadership and participation in various other campus activities. She was president of Alpha Lamba Delta, honorary scholastic for freshmen women; CWENS, honorary leadership, scholarship and service organization for sophomore women; president of sophomore YWCA, campus chairman of Stunt Night.

She was participant in the Parade of Beauties and Favorites and Associated Student body welcoming, orientation and high school day committees. Her social sorority is Phi Mu.

Following her graduation in late May, Miss Gallaspy will enter the Methodist Hospital at Memphis, Tenn., in June for a year's study in medical technology.

Juniors Become Petites Under Current Labels

The most mixed - up fashion image today is the one labeled "junior," an unfortunate term if ever there was one.

The older terms, "misses" and "women's," seem well established. But junior means to some people cute, little - girl clothes, mad fads for teens to others, or even budget - priced clothes with gimmicks for your typists.

Fashion people say that junior today actually means advanced fashion designing, ideas which come out of the same thinking as Parish and top American designers show.

But many women who are junior in size haven't bought in junior departments because these reflect the gimmicky, low - price idea of junior. Hence the mushrooming of "Petites," made by misses' firms like Larry Aldrich, Oleg Cassini, which are really juniors under a more acceptable name.

One of the highlights of Milady Monroe's spring social calendar is always the silver tea given by the Junior Charity League. This year's party was held Wednesday in the home of LOUISE MORGAN on Pargoud boulevard, between the hours of three and six.

Beautiful arrangements were placed throughout the house and on the patio overlooking the bayou. In the entrance was a tall mass of red amaryllis, and magnolias decorated the living room. The dining table was centered with a pyramid of yellow daylilies. All-green arrangements were used in bedrooms and den, and Hawaiian lilies on the patio refreshment table.

Departing guests were heard to remark that the tea was a style show, too. And indeed, so many lovely outfits were seen at the party that even your many-eyed reporter was unable to note them all. In the receiving line was NANCY DAVIS, League president, in a French blue chiffon with rippling cowl collar. Some thirty past presidents alternated in the line with Nancy.

White, an ever - popular shade for spring, is particularly good this year. We noted FRANCES TROUSDALE in an elegant full length coat of crocheted lace . . . and CAROL TENNIS, who wore a black bowler hat with a black-buttoned white suit . . . MABEL RATLIFF chose a vivid print blouse with her white linen suit, and a white roller . . . With a white silk crepe sheath, DOTTIE M'KINLEY wore a deep - crowned straw encircled with flowers in spring shades . . . EVELYN COLE chose a white silk suit and white silk bowler . . . while FAY WINK accented her white silk suit with a pink and fuchia scarf at the neck and a pink hat.

Pale spring colors were noted, such as ELEANOR BROWN's pale blue linen overblouse with printed pastel scarf at the neck . . . and CODY ROSAMUND's dusty pink suit and hat of the exact same shade . . . past president MERLE ADAMS was in an eye - catching tangerine Italian silk . . . HELEN LEWIS wore a large black straw hat with her yellow silk suit . . . Another becoming yellow outfit was that worn by MARY WEBSTER . . . One blue rose accented the front of VIRGINIA CROW's pale blue hat, the color of her suit . . . Sustaining member ELIZABETH GREEN wore pink Irish linen with lace insertions . . . CAROL LEDOUX's beige linen overblouse, top - stitched in slate grey, was worn with a slate pleated skirt.

Members of the Literary Guild entertained with a luncheon for their May meeting on Wednesday. The ladies invited the Potpourri, a junior group organized by the Guild during their twenty-fifth year in 1954, to join them for the occasion. The party was held in the home of HORTENSE TOUCHSTONE with MARY LEE MILAM assisting Hortense. May baskets filled with roses, phlox, bridal wreath, and other spring blossoms were used throughout the house.

A large basket decorated the buffet table, with smaller ones on individual tables set up in dining room, living room and den. Tiny baskets filled with salted pecans stood at each place.

The menu, all dishes prepared by Guild members, included congealed fruit, chicken salad sandwiches, cream cheese balls, black olive sandwiches, and relish trays including pickles, raw vegetable sticks, and olives. Meringues filled with ice cream and fresh strawberries were served for dessert.

After luncheon, a program was presented. LAURA JOHNSON read the report prepared by MARY DURRETT, who was unable to be present. The paper was entitled "Pastimes of the Elderly" and enumerated them as talking, reminiscing and giving each other advice.

The paper included a number of amusing incidents taken from the the actual minutes of the Literary Guild. The one which drew the most response from the audience was that concerning the $153 deficit discovered in the club accounts. There was a lively discussion regarding what should be done with the deficit, and the decision was reached to give 60 per cent to the Red Cross and 50 per cent to the Salvation Army.

Later members of Potpourri were asked to "advise" the Guild members. Each received a question such as found in the advice columns, and were asked to give a spontaneous answer. About thirty ladies attended this party.

Fourteen friends gathered at CHARLOTTIE DENT's home on Monday at noon to surprise NELL FAUCETT on her birthday. A spiral of red roses in a double compote centered the buffet table, which held a dish brought by each guest. The menu included fried chicken, green bean and almond casserole, assorted salads, broccoli casserole, and chocolate cake and Brownies for dessert. Nell received a birthday gift from her friends.

About one hundred couples, members of Big Timers Dance club, were present for the group's spring formal last Friday evening in the Paragon ballroom. A social hour was held preceeding the dance with Shep Fields and his orchestra playing from eight until midnight. Following the dance, breakfast was served in the main dining room of the Paragon.

A group of junior Daughters of the King made a trip to interesting points to the south yesterday with their sponsor, MARIE LOUISE SNELLINGS. The girls visited Clinton courthouse and had lunch at Asphodel plantation neai St. Francisville. Those in the party were SHARON M'ELROY, SUSAN WILLEY, JOAN PATTERSON, KATHY and NANCY NEWCOMBE, ANN MURPHY, JENNIFER FRAZER, and MARILYNN MAXWELL. Father WILLIAM BALDRIDGE accompanied the group . . . Marie Louise went on to New Orleans, where she attended a dinner given by the WOOLEN HANDS WALSHES honoring her debutante daughter, NANCY. This party was held last night at Corinne Dunbar's.

This coming Saturday and Sunday, the Northeast Louisiana Branch, Association of American Penwomen, will hold its annual art exhibit. event is planned for one to six p.m. in the Central Bank and will be open to the public.

Rained out of their swim, guests at the BOLLING JONESES last Saturday night were still able to enjoy picnic supper served on porches and carport. Co-hosts for the party were the RALPH TALBOTS, ANGIE IRWINS, and CAVITT COOKSTONS. Magnolias decorated the den, where the buffet was served. Individual tables centered with candles and greenery were set up. The menu served to about fifty couples included ham, salad, baked beans, French bread with cookies and Brownies for dessert.

Neville High school's senior class is to be honored at the annual banquet, planned for this coming Tuesday evening at 7:15 at the Paragon. Former students of the city schools, their husbands and wives, and parents of this year's graduating class, are invited. Reservations may be made with MARILLYN TAYLOR at FA 2-4822; JUANITA RUSSELL at FA 2-0783; or DOROTHY HODGE at Neville.

Today's poem is by Edmund Vance Cooke:

Did you tackle that trouble that came your way
With a resolute heart and cheerful?
Or hide your face from the light of day
With a craven soul and fearful?
Oh, a trouble's a ton, or a trouble's an ounce,
Or a trouble is what you make it.
And it isn't the fact that you're hurt that counts,
But only how did you take it?
You are beaten to earth? Well, well, what's that?
Come up with a smiling face.
It's nothing against you to fall down flat,
But to lie there — that's disgrace.
The harder you're thrown, why the higher you bounce;
Be proud of your blackened eye.
It isn't the fact that you're licked that counts;
It's how did you fight and why?
And though you be done to death, what then?
If you battled the best you could;
If you played your part in the world of men,
Why, the Critic will call it good.
Death comes with a crawl, or comes with a pounce,
And whether he's slow or spry,
It isn't the fact that you're dead that counts,
But only, how did you die?

FORTHCOMING MARRIAGE of Miss Helen Lorraine Baker to Lawrence Edwin Phillips of West Monroe, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Baker of Marion. Mr. Phillips is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Phillips of Eros. The wedding is planned for mid-May after which the couple will establish a home in West Monroe.

MISS JACKIE LYNN BOLTON

Louisiana Tech Students Plan June 8 Wedding

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Jackie Lynn Bolton to Shelton Marlin Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Collins, Winnfield, is announced by her mother, Mrs. Maudine Bolton, of Winnfield.

Vows will be exchanged on Saturday, June 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Winnfield. Rev. Dick DeBusk will officiate.

Mrs. Malcolm Darnell, sister of the bride - elect will attend as matron of honor and chosen as bridesmaids are Miss Mary Lynn DeBusk, Winnfield; Mrs. Edwin Carter of Ruston and Mrs. Frank Campisi of Bossier City. Candlelighters will be Miss Becky Shelton and Stevie Shelton, cousins of the future bridegroom. Jimmy Bolton, of Reserve, will give his sister in marriage.

Mr. Collins will serve as best man for his son and groomsmen will be James Lloyd Collins, brother of the bridegroom; Ronnie Melton and H. F. Allbritton. Chosen as ushers are Clyde Harper of Monroe and Wayne Alford of San Antonio, Tex.

Jeannine Mobley and Alan Nobley, niece and nephew of the future bridegroom, will be flower girl and ring bearer.

Miss Bolton is the granddaughter of B. C. Rochell and niece of Mrs. Flave Trichel, both of West Monroe. A graduate of Winnfield high school, she is presently attending Louisiana Tech where she will receive her degree in upper elementary - secondary education in June. She is a member of Phi Kappa Phi honorary society and has remained on the honor roll throughout college.

Sleeve Interest Emphasizes Use Of Bracelets

Revived interest in the lantern sleeve and baby - puff sleeve emphasizes the wearing of bracelets. Designs in bracelet should be selected according to the size of the wrist and length of arm.

A bracelet-watch of medium width is a good fashion investment. At the flick of a finger, a center cover flips up to reveal a watch face, some haloed with diamonds or engravings. This is the ultimate in keeping time under cover in a fashionable way.

Colonial Dames Chapter Holds Antique Display

Mrs. E. L. Gladney Jr. of Bastrop, recently elected state president of the Louisiana Society of the Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century at the State Conference held in New Orleans, was guest of honor at a meeting of Francis Billingsley Chapter of Oak Grove, when it met Saturday at 10:30 a.m. in the Holiday Inn in Monroe. Mrs. S. E. Callier, Mrs. W. R. Davis and Mrs. O. E. Montgomery all of Bastrop, were hostesses for the occasion.

Mrs. T. N. Pulley Jr. of Oak Grove, retiring chapter president, presented a white carnation corsage to Mrs. Gladney from the chapter.

Highlights of the State Conference of the C.D. XVII Century held recently in New Orleans were given by Mrs. E. D. Herr of Sterlington, immediate past State Chaplain. She reported that Francis Billingsley Chapter received the state Historian's award for submitting the greatest number of pages of historical material for the National Library. Among this material was the 1808 Ouachita Parish property appraisement list copied from the original list by Mrs. Herr and made available for D.A.R. records.

Mrs. Gladney has just returned from the National C. D XVII century Conference in Washington, D. C. and brought to the chapter a detailed account of the proceedings. This was election year for the National Society and Mrs. Thomas Burchett of Ashland, Ky. was elected president general. Members of the Louisiana Society elected to national offices were Mrs. Allen Turpin Sr. of Monroe, honored vice president general, and Mrs. Joseph V. Schlosser of New Orleans, recording secretary general.

Francis Billingsley Chapter officers installed by Mrs. Gladney followed with Mrs. A. M. Robinson of Bastrop installed as chapter president; Mrs. S. E. Callier of Bastrop, 1st vice president; Mrs. T. N. Pulley Jr. of Oak Grove, assistant registrar; Mrs. M. M. Funderburk of Sterlington, vice - chaplain; Mrs. E. D. Herr of Sterlington, historian; and Mrs. W. R. Davis of Bastrop, curator.

Highlight of the program was the antique display. Mrs. A. M. Robinson contributed an heirloom china tea set which belonged to her late mother, Mrs. Bertha Carpenter Montgomery; Mrs. E. D. Herr and Mrs. M. M. Funderburk exhibited a brass candelabra handed down by their mother from her colonial ancestor, Sir John Payne, of Virginia. A Masonic locket about 130 years old and the original Indenture and Deed to a tract of land in Lancaster Co. Penn. to Hans O. Herr from William Penn, Governor of Pa., dated 1742 belonging to her late husband and a hand-woven flax counterpane with the name "Herr" and the date 1741 woven in the four corners was exhibited by Mrs. Herr as well as the oldest articles dating ca. 800 B.C., clay cooking balls and bola stones from the Poverty Point Mound in West Carroll Parish. Mrs. W. R. Davis had a sterling silver set of serving spoons dating back to the beginning of the 18th century. Mrs. T. N. Pulley Jr. contributed white doe skin wedding slippers 104 years old worn by her husband's grandmother, Miss Louisa Frances Castleman in 1859 at her marriage to Thomas Nicholson Pulley of Carroll Parish, La., and a pair of spectacles belonging to her great grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Howell Ellis, a first cousin of Varina Howell Davis, the First Lady of the Confederacy. Mrs. S. E. Callier and Mrs. T. P. Kelly of Bastrop, ind Mrs. J. S. Amman of Monroe, all sisters, added to the display a violin handed down to them by their late father, J. F. Carpenter Sr., and made by the famed Antonio Stradivari signed and dated 1712, also a cake plate in the family since 1873. Mrs. Callier had a rare design crystal condiment set she had collected dating from the Civil War period.

A noon luncheon was served in a private dining room and place cards bearing the insignia of the society were used. Centering the table was a cascade arrangement of Blue Lake bearded iris, blue ragged robin, blue salvia and golden coreopsis interspersed with English ivy, in keeping with the society's colors of blue and gold.

During the luncheon Miss Andre Robinson, an NLSC Art Major, daughter of Mrs. A. M. Robinson of Bastrop, entertained the group with several numbers of American folk music and songs while accompanying herself on the guitar.

Members in attendance were Mrs. T. P. Kelly, Mrs. S. E. Callier, Mrs. O. E. Montgomery, Mrs. Clark Butler of West Monroe, Mrs. M. M. Funderburk, Mrs. E. D. Herr, Mrs. A. M. Robinson, Mrs. W. R. Davis and Mrs. T. N. Pulley Jr. Guests included Mrs. E. L. Gladney Jr., Mrs. W. C. Honeycutt and Mrs. J. S. Amman both of Monroe, and Miss Andre' Robinson of NLSC, Monroe.

The chapter sent the floral centerpiece to Miss Donna Gail Pulley, a Northeast College student who has been hospitalized in St. Francis Hospital since last Tuesday. She is the daughter of Mrs. T. N. Pulley Jr. of Oak Grove, Organizing President of the Francis Billingsley Chapter C. D. of the XVII Century and Honorary Vice President of the La. State Society for Life.

Lost Property Bus Office Has Big Business

VANCOUVER (AP) — "If it's loose, they'll lose it," says Alice Harber, chief clerk at the city buses' lost property office.

Alice, in her 20th year there, gets the goods.

Umbrellas are her biggest item in this west West Coast city. The record was set with 800 in a single month.

Bathing suits are leaders in the summer.

"People are so forgetful," says Alice, "that it's quite common for them to come in, claim an article, sign for it, then walk out and leave it on the counter. One woman got her umbrella and left her purse."

Among other items over the years were a dead cat, a skull, a few sticks of dynamite and some negotiable securities worth $27,000.

One lady telephoned and said she lost her brassiere.

"What bus line?" asked Alice.

An Easy Way To Dye Shoes

AP NEWSFEATURES

If women's feet aren't as changeably colorful as a kaleidoscope this spring, it's only because they're satisfied with the shoes in the hues they bought them.

Following the introduction of a quick shoe dye product last year are a half dozen variations. One called a "fashion break through" is a gold and silver instant shoe coloring. Gilting the foot at home was regarded as impossible to do in the past. The easily applied fabric works on all leathers, patents, suedes and even fabrics.

Women not satisfied to limit themselves to the three dozen shades they can now dye their shoes in the kitchen can take them to an automatic shoe dye blender. The dispenser, or computer as it is labeled in this automation era, operates like a vending machine whipping up any of 1140 colors in 30 seconds.

Freckle-Face Look Is The Current Rage

AP Newsfeatures

The cosmetics researchers have been so busy dredging up creams, powders and pastes designed to cover up facial spots, that the current rage for freckled beauties has caught them with their test tubes down.

Always looking for unique types, French couturiers shined up the freckle - faced manikins in Paris and created a demand for them. Then French photographers began to insist on noses generously peppered as subjects of glamor for their cameras.

Now any number of freckled lasses, after spending years of weeping secret tears and fruitlessly trying skin bleach methods, find themselves the envy of their unspeckled sisters.

The cosmetic industry has hopped onto the bandwagon with high greated promotion for the natural look that goes with freckles. They are ballyhooing hair rinses, conditioners, and skin cleansers that enhance the freckle endowed face.

But it has nothing as yet to make freckles, false or otherwise, on the pale faces out of style.

MISS RUBY ANN FARRAR

Ruby Farrar To Compete For Holiday In Dixie Title

Miss Ruby Ann Farrar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Farrar of Farmerville, is one of 40 girls selected from the tri-state area of Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas to compete for the title of "Miss Holiday in Dixie," in Shreveport.

The present "Miss Union Parish," Miss Farrar has received many other honors since this title was bestowed upon her at the annual Miss Union Parish Pageant last June. The pageant is sponsored by Farmerville Junior Chamber of Commerce and is scheduled this year for June 8.

During the past year Miss Farrar has represented Union Parish in the Miss Louisiana and other pageants. In September she was selected "Miss Congeniality" at the Louisiana State Cotton festival.

She was a finalist for "Miss Woodman of the World" for the U.S.A. in 1963 and has been accepted for competition in the "Miss U.S.A. Pageant," to be held in New Orleans in June of this year.

Miss Farrar has accepted a modeling job this summer and following her graduation from Louisiana Tech in Business Administration she plans to enter a Marketing school in New York City.

Many Items Are Rented For Wedding

Bridal rentals are a big business. The white runner for the church aisle . . . the reception punchbowl . . . formal dress for men in the wedding party . . .

All these things and many more can be rented at rates based on the service and equipment required.

Arrangements can be made on short notice. But generally bridal rental services should be notified at least a month and sometimes as much as three months in advance of the ceremony.

Tents are available for garden weddings - either decorative side tents to protect refreshment tables or elaborate canopies complete with wooden floors for dancing.

Smaller items on the rental list include display and refreshment tables, chairs, coat racks, punch bowls and cups, silver, china and glassware services and even potted palms.

Vows Unite Couple By Candlelight

The marriage of Miss Jeanette Dean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Dean, and Santo Michael Sansone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sansone Sr., was solemnized at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 25, at St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Lake Providence. The Rev. Father Patrick J. Murphy officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The couple exchanged vows in in a setting of traditional bridal white and green. Gold candelabra and arrangements of gladioli and chrysanthemums flanked the main altar. Tall baskets of Easter lilies stood on either side. Reserved pews were marked by full satin bows.

A program of wedding music was provided by Mrs. Anna R. Cox, organist, who accompanied the vocalists George S. Myers, Mrs. Steve Guenard and Henry Dalfiume.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a matinee length dress of nylon chiffon over satin. The full gathered skirt billowed softly from the moulded bodice which featured an over-blouse of lace with long sleeves. Her tiered veil of French illusion cascaded from a band of satin and pearlized flowerettes. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations atop a Bible.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Brenda Myers who wore a gown of aqua brocade with fitted basque bodice and V-neckline and full pleated skirt. Her accessories were white and she wore a white carnation corsage.

J. V. Maggio served as the bridgroom's best man and ushers were Joseph Titone and Guy Maggio.

Mrs. Dean chose for her daughter's wedding a beige linen ensemble and matching accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations. The groom's mother, Mrs. Sansone was attired in a rose chiffon and lace model over taffeta, a hat of matching shade and white accessories. Her corsage was also of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the groom were hosts at a reception in their home on Seventh Street. Arrangements of white gladoli and peonies were placed at focal points throughout the house. Miss Margaret Sansone invited guests to sign the bride's book which was placed on a round table covered with a handmade lace cloth. A white candle in a silver holder added to the decor.

The bride's table, overlaid by an imported cut-work cloth, was centered with a crystal and silver epergne filled with white peonies flanked by silver candelabra and burning white tapers. From one end of the table, Mrs. Leon Minsky served the tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Jack McCain and Mrs. A. S. Herzog alternated at the antique silver punch bowl from the opposite end of the table.

Miss Shirley Sullivan and Mrs. Sam DiTommaso alternated in serving at the groom's table. Tea girls were Connie Lee LeBlanc and Vickey Lynn Sansone. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Mary DiTammaso, Mrs. W. M. Myers, Mrs. J. A. Sansone Jr., Mrs. Henry Dalfiume and Mrs. Conechetta LeBlanc.

For travel the bride wore a pale blue model with pleated skirt and matching sweater, white accessories and her corsage from her bridal bouquet.

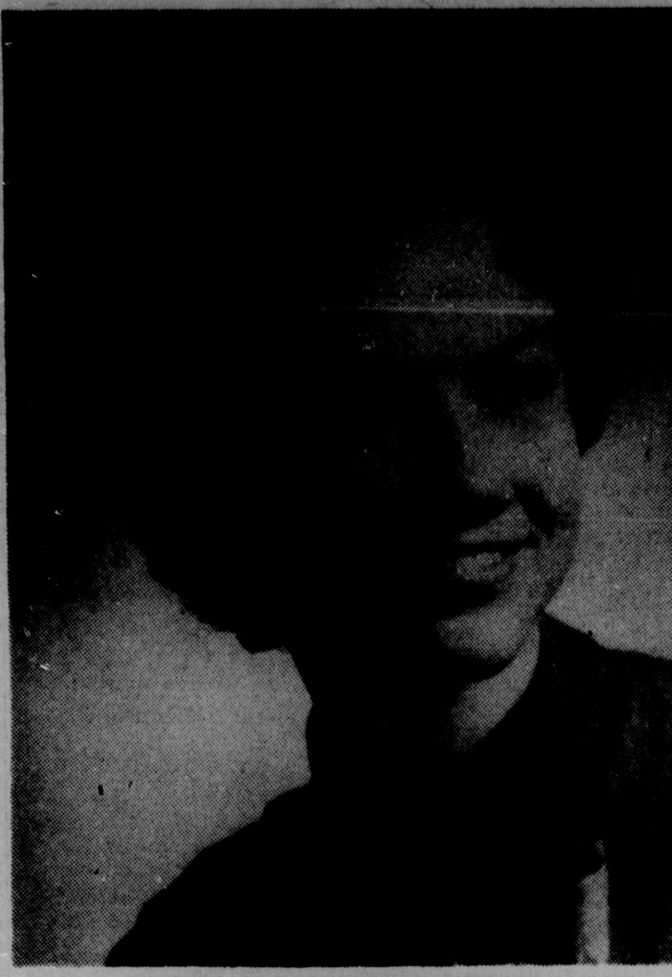
REHEARSAL PARTY

Following their wedding rehearsal at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Miss Jeanette Dean and Santo Michael Sansone were honored with a buffet supper given by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sansone Sr.

Those attending with the honor couple, were Father Murphy, Guy Maggio, Joseph Titone, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Dean, J. B. Maggio, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dalfiume, Miss Shirley Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Myers and Johnny Sansone.



MISS JUDY KATHERINE BRYAN

Judy Bryan, Hadley Martin Plan Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Bryan of Downsville, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Judy Katherine Bryan to Hadley Lamar Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Martin of Dubach.

The wedding will be solemnized May 25 at 7:30 p.m. in Downsville Baptist Church. Rev. Jesse D. Bryan, pastor of Choudrant First Baptist Church, will perform the ceremony.

Miss Bryan has chosen Miss Jo Ann Collingsworth to serve as maid of honor; Mrs. Mike Hancock as matron of honor and Miss Susan Martin, bridesmaid. Attending the bridegroom as best man will be Wayne Martin and ushers will be Juett McGee and Charles Penuell.

The bride - elect is a graduate of Downsville high school and attended Louisiana Tech in Ruston. Mr. Martin graduated from Ruston high school and is now employed by T. L. James Co. in Ruston, where the couple will reside.

MARKING SILVER

Years ago etiquette demanded that the bride - to - be should have all her linen and silver marked with her maiden initials only. Nowadays it is more usual and less confusing, to use her future initials those of her first name, maiden name and husband's surname.

Leather Furniture Now Seen In Bright Colors

If Spring cleaning is at hand, can redecorating be far behind? And this year the smartest answer to the homemaker's redecorating problems will be found in the wealth of newly designed leather upholstered furniture available.

A collection of new leather pieces for every room in the house—and the patio too—displayed recently at headquarters of Leather Industries of America revealed a broad range of decorator colors, elegant textures and easy-care features in the new upholstery leathers on the market. Resistant to scuffs, scratches and soil, the new upholstery leathers are moderately priced—whether you want to replace Dad's favorite club chair or redo the living room from wall to wall.

RAINBOW HUES

First, think of the super rainbow of colors available in leather upholstery: more than 500 tones and shades from hot oranges to cool tans, from jet blacks to rich reds and from white to turquoise. And all so flexible that they lend themselves to tufting, quilting and other finishes without putting a wrinkle in the leather.

A favorite starting point for the decorator is an oversized leather sofa, six feet long or longer. If you favor a traditional decor, you can choose a substantial leather couch with trapunto, embossing or quilting to add dimensional depth to the leather surface. For a contemporary room, the light lines of leather back and seat cushions on a frame of light walnut or blond mahogany are preferred.

To flank a fireplace, a new idea is a pair of identical leather wing chairs in contrasting colors, with a large square or oblong cocktail table inlaid with squares or wide stripes of the contrasting chair leathers. Black and white are the most popular leather hues for this purpose, but you might also choose red and gold, pastel blue and pink, cocoa and coral or any other bright combination.

He is a member of Phi Kappa Sigma and Phi Alpha Delta and is presently with a law firm in Dallas.

Diamonds Still 1st Choice For Engagements

Though a few girls may become engaged without benefit of a ring to mark their changed status, the majority take special pride in displaying that diamond, no matter what its size or shape.

Diamonds continue as the number one choice for engaged girls. Pearls and birthstones are other choices and occasionally an heirloom ring is reset to make a modern engagement ring.

Most popular stone is the round cut diamond, but oval-cut and heart-shaped diamonds are favored choices too. Other diamonds may be cut in oblong shape, known as the emerald-cut; a boat-shaped cut, called marquise, and a cut which is wide at one end and tapering to a point at the other, called pear-shaped.

When cut for fullest fire and brilliance, the diamond has 58 exactly placed facets, in an exact, mathmatically calculated pattern.

MISS LANEY WARE, Northeast Louisiana State College freshman, is presented as the new Kappa Alpha Rose by KA president, Melvin Rambin at the fraternity's formal ball which climaxed Old South Week activities. Miss Ware, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ware of Bastrop, is a speech major and member of Phi Mu Sorority.

Laney Ware Named KA Rose At Old South Ball

Reminiscent of antebellum days was the Old South Ball which marked the climax of a series of activities by Northeast State's Gamma Nu chapter of Kappa Alpha Order in celebration of its annual Old South Weekend.

The Crystal ballroom of the Virginia Hotel was the setting for the gala occasion, highlighted by coronation of the new Kappa Alpha Rose, Miss Laney Ware of Bastrop. Kappa Alpha members resembled bearded southern gentlemen while the coeds attending were attired in swirling long formal gowns.

A large Confederate flag, outlined with crimson roses and magnolias formed a background setting and a flag and flowers also graced the piano. Music for dancing was provided by Raful Neal and Clouds of Port Allen.

High point of the ball was the announcement of the new Kappa Alpha Rose by KA president, Melvin Rambin of Jacksonville, Fla., who presented Miss Ware as recipient of the title for 1963-64. Miss Ware was presented the Kappa Alpha pin from last year's winner, Mrs. William King of Monroe, who at that time was Miss Sharon Ary.

Mr. Rambin presented the new Rose an arm bouquet of crimson roses as the group of fraternity actives, pledges, their dates and guests sang the Kappa Alpha Rose song.

Awarding of prizes for beards grown by members and pledges a tradition of Old South weekend, followed. Male guests who judged the contest, presented an award for the best beard to Steve Parker and a similar prize for the neatest beard to Buddy Harrison. In another division, a prize was awarded Mike McCready for the best beard grown during a limited time because of his assistance in installing a KA chapter at Northwestern State College.

The award for the most outstanding active KA went to Joe Thompson, past president of the fraternity, who also won the trophy last year. Dr. Marvin McKneely of the Northeast faculty, made the presentation. Dr. James Modisette, faculty advisor of the fraternity, presented a trophy to Malcolm DeCelle as the most outstanding pledge.

Attending the affair were the following actives, pledges, guests and their dates: Melvin Rambin and Laney Ware, Ken Renwick and Mary Jane Parnell, Leon Johnson and Melanie Woods, Mike McCready and Judy Neal, Charles Garretson and Paula Johnston, Ken McCay and Mike McKinley, James Caldwell and Jill McGruder, Phil Carpenter and Carol Clair, John Lauve and Jan Hallmark, Richard Alwood and Sandra Chapman, Joe Ashley and Judy Tucker, Jim Beard and Ann Andrews, Drury Bynum and Susan Snipes, Richard Campbell and Heidi Rowan.

Bride Keeps Beauty With Grooming Aid

A beautiful wedding dress and a glow of happiness add enchantment to a bride. But a wise bride-to-be knows that underlying this beauty is an equally important good grooming program.

Because of its specific objecttives, this is no ordinary grooming program. The trick is to visualize yourself on your wedding day, and then systematically begin perfecting those areas that your wedding attire will highlight.

TONES IMPORTANT

For example, your dress will probably be white, blush pink, or a pale, pale pastel—light tones that emphasize one's skin and quickly show up complexion flaws. So experiment with the make-up that you will wear on the big day — delicate, never harsh, colors, are best for a bride — and lavish special care on your complexion and your bathing.

No matter how busy you are with bridal showers, furnishing your new apartment, and shopping, be sure to make time for a soak in warm-to-hot soapsuds every day. Besides making your skin clean and vital, your bath will help relax the tired look and lines that excitement and late hours produce.

Your face will naturally be in the spotlight on your wedding day, so supplement your bath with a daily "suds-facial." This will thoroughly remove grime and stale make-up, help-to cleanse away blackheads and protect against blemishes. It also stimulates your complexion. The procedure is a preliminary washing and rinsing to remove surface soil, and next a second application of rich lather to your face and neck.

GLAMOR HEADS

Glamor is going to a girl's head — even her bobby pins are fancy. Some are shaped like tiny golden leaves, other studded with little pearls and rhinestones. Thus if a girl insists on wearing pinned-up hair in public, at least her head will be a cluster of pretty jewelry clips.

Marriage Councilor Gives Advice To Future Brides

By RUTH F. ENGEL
Marriage Counselor

When you start considering marriage to a person you have fallen in love with, take a good look at what has attracted you to each other and how you have spent your dates up to now.

Has your time together been spent on parties, dances, movies? Have the hours alone together been used entirely for love-making? If that is how it has been, then introduce a new aspect into your relationship.

Too many people realize only after years of stormy married life that they had overlooked many factors important to a good life together. What can you do to avoid making the same mistakes?

The first necessity is to become aware of your ideas of the roles of husband and wife. Your expectations of your marriage partner are conditioned by many factors: for example, the culture in which you have grown up, your religion, your parents' marriage.

PARENTAL PATTERN

Many of us feel that our parents' way is the only right one, or on the other hand that their marriage is just the kind we would never want to imitate. What your futre spouse expects you to do may not be what you expect to do at all and the same may be true of him.

Not all of our expectations are fully conscious; therefore, some cannot be recognized without aid. That is why I wish that every couple considering marriage would consult a qualified counselor.

Such a counselor can help them discover and face their separate needs and expectations and discuss openly to what extent these can be met by the chosen partner.

TALK IT OVER

Therefore, discuss questions such as the wife's working or not working; who will handle the money and for what it will be spent.

Talk about whether you plan to have children, how many and when; how you feel towards your respective families and how you expect your spouse to act towards them; your feeling toward religion and other topics close to your heart.

As important as sexual attraction is to a good marriage, it is often mistaken for a love strong enough to last a lifetime. Even the greatest sexual passion simmers down in daily life together, and if common interests and common goals are lacking, you will wake up to boredom.

Movies, television, popular songs give us a lopsided picture of what love is all about. Nobody lives happily ever after without a steady day-to-day effort in which both partners have to participate.

I would like to close these remarks on so large and important a question by saying that the marital partner to look for is one who makes YOU feel willing to compromise and to put up with whatever realistic differences and shortcomings emerge in your relationship.

You expect to be accepted as you are, with all your smaller and greater imperfections. Are you prepared to accept all those of your partner?

Dr. Warns Excess Sun Ages Skin

The sun is a double-edged sword. On one hand, it warms; on the other, it wounds. The sun's rays actually speed the aging process of the skin.

Doctor John M. Knox, associate professor of medicine, Baylor University, puts it in no uncertain terms in a magazine article, "The onset of skin degeneration is independent of age, being determined simply by the cumulative amount of injury from ultra-violet light. The visible cutaneous changes usually interpreted as aging are apparently due largely, if not entirely, to sunlight."

The magazine offers four steps that afford good, sensible, sun protection and, at the same time, offer the possibility of a sensational tan, judiciously acquired.

1. Tan in small, small doses. The more fair your skin, the smaller each dose.
2. Stay out of the sun, if you can, between the hours of ten and two, when the sun is high in the sky.
3. Protect your hair and eyes — the former with a sun shade hat or a light scarf; the latter with sun-goggles.
4. Always shield every inch of uncovered skin with a sun preparation that absorbs most of the burning, but not the tanning rays.

SPICY

CHICAGO (UPI) — Herbs and spices can enhance the low-sodium diet, says University of Illinois nutritionist Harriet Barto.

Try allspice with ground meats, stews, tomatoes and peaches. Use basil with eggs, fish, lamb, ground meats, liver, stews and soups. A touch of dill makes fish, sauces, soups, salads taste better.

Ginger adds to the flavor of chicken and fruits. Try dry mustard with ground meats, salads and sauces, sage with meats, stews and green beans. Savory, thyme and lemon also are versatile spices.

MISS BARBARA ANN HAMMOND

Couple Lists June Vows In Jonesboro Church

Mr. and Mrs. Moore Hammond of Jonesboro, announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Ann to Alton Ray Johnson, son of Mrs. Gyp Johnson and the late Mr. Johnson of Bastrop.

Miss Hammond, a graduate of Jonesboro-Hodge high school, received a bachelor of arts degree from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. She is presently a Speech-English teacher at Bastrop high school.

Mr. Johnson was graduated from Bastrop high school, and received a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. He is presently employed as project engineer with International Paper Company in Bastrop.

The couple will be married Saturday, June 15 at 7 p.m. in Jonesboro Methodist Church with Rev. Joseph Edwin Fogle of Shreveport officiating.

Miss Dorothy Jean Hammond of Jonesboro, will serve as maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids chosen are Miss Lynn Wheatley of New Orleans; Mrs. Carolyn Strayhon of Shreveport and Miss Patsy Humphreys of West Monroe, cousin of the bride-elect.

Serving as best man will be Ensign Hilton Benard Johnson, Pensacola, Fla., brother of the future bridegroom. Groomsmen-ushers will be Sherwood White of Bastrop; Lt. John Storment of Wichita, Kans., and Tommy Muse of Magnolia, Ark.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mrs. Arthur E. Hammond of Conway, Ark., and the late Mr. Hammond and of Mrs. J. J. Takewell of Swartz and the late Mr. Takewell. Mr. Johnson is the grandson of the late Mrs. Willie Crawford and Mr. Weston of Mangham and Mrs. Mattie Johnson of Bastrop.

SPRING FOR COLOR

This is the spring for color, according to fashion experts. Brighter color is found in accessories than ever before, largely due to new dye processes which makes color practical in accessory leathers and fabrics. Spring favorites are clear yellows, peach carols and turquoises.

THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Relax Now, Retire Later In A Vacation House

According to one estimate Americans are building vacation houses at the rate of about 85,000 a year, and it's easy to see why.

First of all a family retreat in some watery or wooded recess, at your disposal whenever you want to use it, is ideal either for planned vacations or spur-of-the-moment weekend trips.

Secondly, if the house is more than just a rustic fishing shack it can serve as a retirement home.

House of the Week readers get their choice of two such homes today, designs J-72 and J-73. A study plan of both homes comes with an order for either.

Design J-72 is the product of architect Rudolph A. Matern; a summer cottage for a family with children that provides room for guests. Design J-73, by architect Herman H. York, is a cabin designed for either the mountains or seashore. Both are all weather homes.

ROOMY J-72

This is a three-bedroom cottage but its high-pitched roof allows room in a partial attic for a fourth bedroom. The bedrooms are not large, but adequate; the living facilities are designed for year-round comfort.

A large deck, part of it covered, provides excellent outdoor living. A service door leads from the deck directly to a shower so there's no sand-tracking through the house. A door separates the shower from the rest of the bathroom.

The cottage contains 980 square feet on the first floor and an extra 210 square feet is available for the attic expansion. Architect Matern will send a 35 mm. color slide of the cottage free to all who write him. His address is on the study plan.

EXPANDABLE J-73

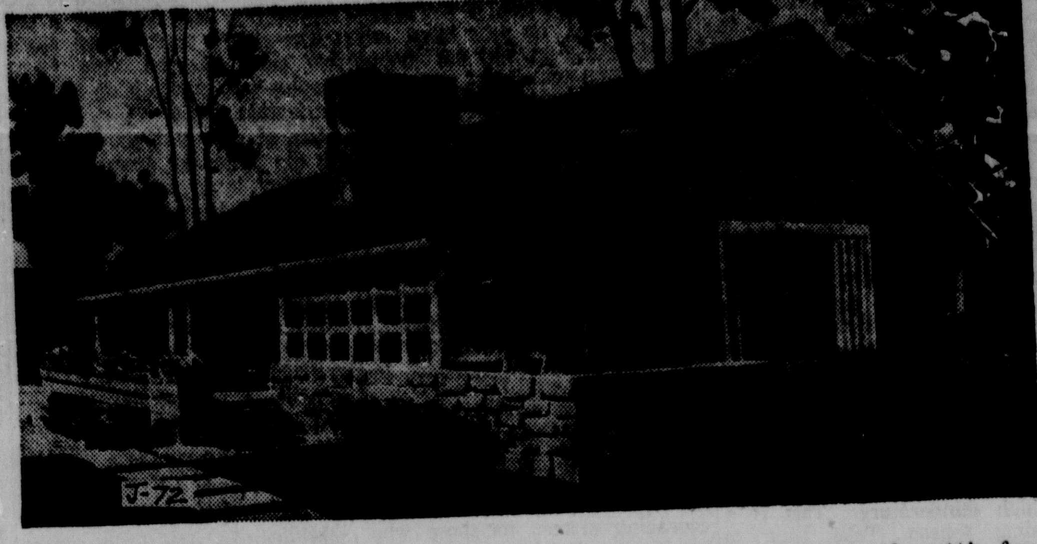
The basic living, kitchen and bath unit of this house can be built first and the two bedrooms added later, expanding the dimensions to 24' by 28' for a total living area of 672 square feet.

This doesn't include the dining deck, lounging deck or screened porch — all areas of as much summertime living as the interior the house. The screened porch, with three exposures, actually is larger than the living room and probably will be used more.

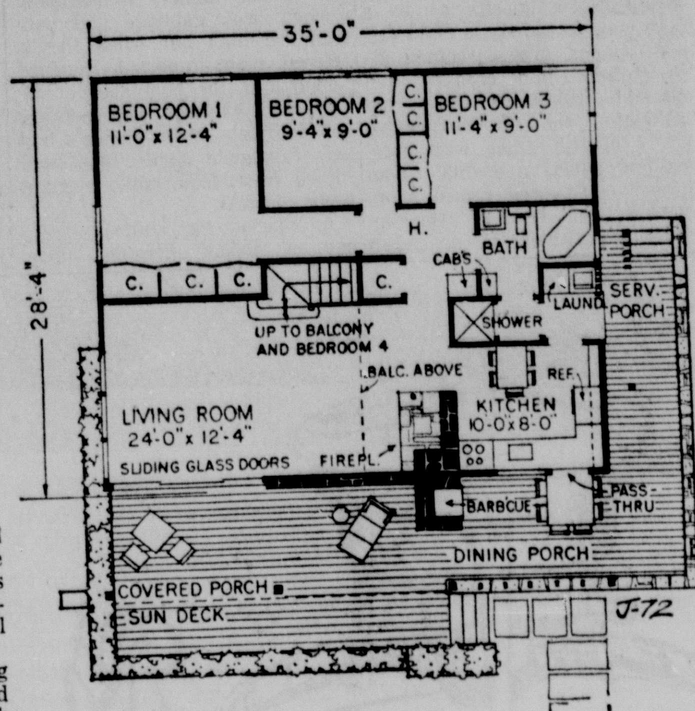
York's cottage has an outdoor shower plus an outdoor entry to the bathroom. Note how all the plumbing is in one place for economical construction.

The simplicity of this design lends itself to a do-it-yourself project, though most owners probably would want a professional builder to do the framing. All lumber lengths are standard and all parts are of stock design, readily available.

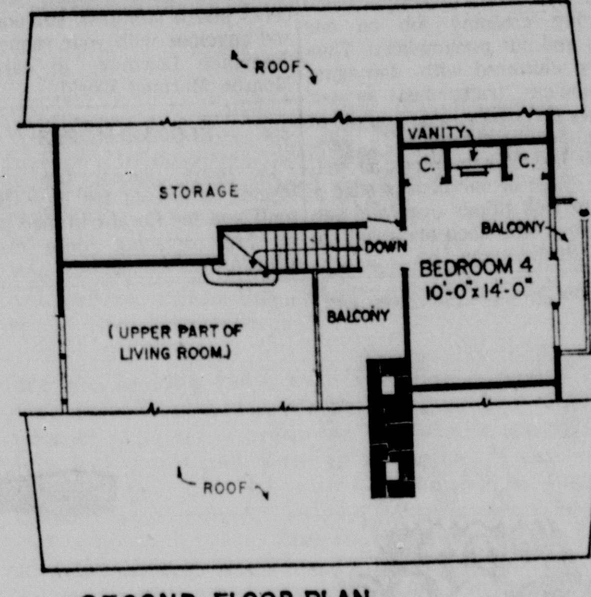
A full study plan on this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing the HOUSE OF THE WEEK c-o of the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover costs of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan J-72 and J-73.



DESIGN J-72: This three-bedroom cottage has expansion space in the attic for a fourth bedroom. Part of the outdoor deck is covered, for all weather relaxing.

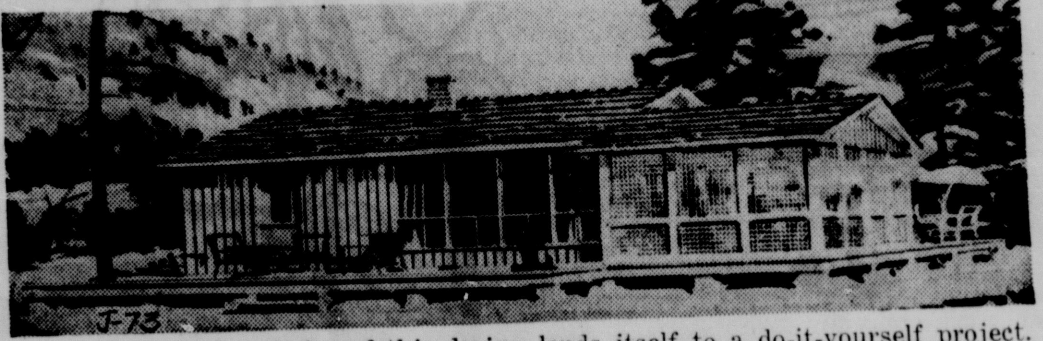


FIRST FLOOR PLAN

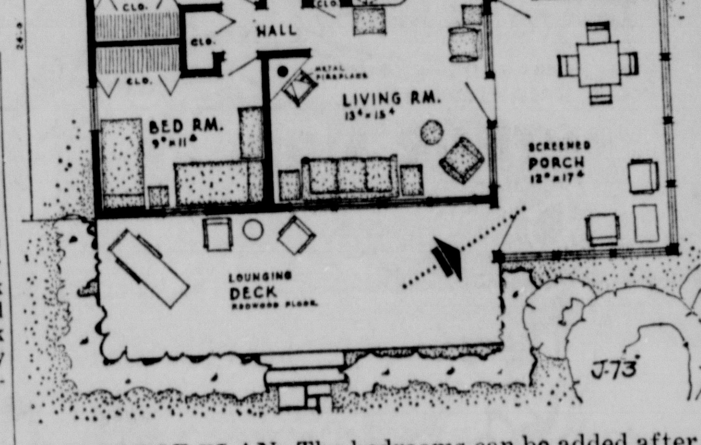


SECOND FLOOR PLAN

J-72 FLOOR PLAN: The cottage contains 980 square feet on the first floor and an extra 210 square feet in the attic. Note the door from the sun deck to the shower.



DESIGN J-73: Simplicity of this design lends itself to a do-it-yourself project. There are two large sun decks plus a covered screened porch which is larger than the living room.



J-73 FLOOR PLAN: The bedrooms can be added after this cabin is occupied, expanding the size to 24' by 28' with a total of 672 square feet of interior living

Secretary Did Wedding Buying On Lunch Hours

Without ruffling a curl of her striking black hair, Liz Connors, New York secretary, did all her wedding buying during lunch hours, and in that precious half hour after work before the stores closed.

With calm competence, she accomplished one purchase at a time, beginning six months before her wedding. Clothes for her wedding and trousseau and furnishings for the apartment were bought piece by piece.

"I tried on three wedding dresses, and bought the third. That took three lunch hours. One day after work I bought a rug, another time a lamp, then two dresses."

Liz was aided in her shopping by fiance Bill Collins, who is assistant buyer for a ready-to-wear chain. Both spent lunch hours looking over clothing and furnishings in the chain's wholesale division.

But she nearly ran out of money, a few weeks before the wedding, when she bought herself a going-away suit of lavender linen, plus gifts for the bridesmaids.

The forehanded young couple spent Saturdays fixing up their apartment, painting woodwork and getting the furniture moved in. From a thousand dollar check given them by Bill's parents, they bought living room furniture, including a TV set.

CLOSED BOOK

Harmonious accord on wedding plans was jarred once, however, when Bill said a flat no to wearing a cutaway. "He wanted to wear a white jacket. I was sure etiquette called for cutaways at an afternoon reception. But just looking this up in a book opened more wounds. So we closed the book. White jackets won."

Not content with handling her own shopping, Liz brought in fabric samples of the bridesmaids' dresses and ordered matching shoes — in lavender — for her bridal party.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Spring is a rebirth. Flowers burst from the seemingly dead earth and butterflies cast off the drabness of their dull cacoons. Trees which have been etched in black against the winter sky suddenly appear in the lovely greens and pinks of this season.

The sunshine is as subtle as love. The air is washed fresh by spring showers and the gales of March turn into whispers of breezes.

Nature is discarding the austerity and bitterness and suffering of winter. She is redoing herself with color and beauty, with softness and warmth. This season can also be a rebirth for each one of us if we take advantage of it.

HEALING SEASON

This is a wonderful interim between cold and the searing heat of high temperatures. This is a healing season. Take time to stretch in the gentle sunlight, to wander and work in the garden, to walk with the beauty of spring as a backdrop. Why not slow down and get outdoors more?

Spring is also a fine time to do a spring cleaning job on our minds and our personalities. They become cluttered with damaging and useless traits just as our closets do with old, outdated motheaten objects. It is a good idea to dust off our minds as well as the walls of our houses once a year, to look things over and see what we should keep and what we should throw away.

Do you have pieces of bitterness, envy, self-pity, or old grudges cluttering up your mind and happiness? If so, why not discard them! Why not air out your mind with a fresh viewpoint. Negative attitudes accumulate before we realize it!

LOSE WEIGHT

Since this is the season when women long most to be lovely, I bring you my 9-Day Diet at this time. This diet allows you to lose five to 10 pounds in nine days. I will print the menus each day for the following day, beginning tomorrow.

Thousands of women have lost weight rapidly and pleasantly with this diet. It is extremely popular with those who have only a few pounds to lose and an encouraging starter for those who have more. Watch for it tomorrow!

If you would like to have the entire 9-Day Reducing Diet in a convenient little booklet, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman, in care of Monroe Morning World.

FLORAL MUFFS

In some places, the mixed blooms in season for their floral muff and the floral-trimmed parasol are replacing more classic attendant's bouquets.

Informal Entertaining Ideas For Budget-Minded Brides

Brides who look forward to giving parties need to know a few tricks of the trade. Here are a few cues gathered from young couples with entertaining but budget - wise ways.

One of the most popular ways for the bride and groom to have company is to ask two to five couples to supper. The amount of dinnerware and flatware garnered as wedding gifts dictates the number.

Gone is yesterday's formal little dinner. Today it's the informal supper and invitations leave no doubt about the menu. "Come over Saturday night for paprika chicken or my assembly-line tamales or Italian spaghetti . . ." is the way a bride is likely to issue a bid.

A casserole is still a favorite main dish for the little supper but a bride also can pick up interesting alternates from young marriages in various sections of the country.

CHOWDER SUPPER

From Massachusetts comes a great way to satisfy a Saturday night supper group: homemade fish chowder, pilot crackers and rolls, old - fashioned coleslaw and Washington pie. An inexpensive variety of fish along with potatoes and onions and milk make the well - flavored robust soup.

And a salad bowl of everyday lettuce is positively elegant when it gets a topping of crumbled Roquefort cheese (a small wedge) and paper - thin red onion rings. The Washington pie is true blue — sponge - cake layers (from the supermarket) sandwiches with red jelly and topped with confectioners sugar.

From New York comes a Sunday night supper menu. It's mainstay is baked beans mixed with ground beef (browned first in a little fat), onion, and tomato and seasoned with mustard, curry powder, brown steak sauce and a suspicion of grated Parmesan cheese. A half pound of the beef is all that's needed for two large cans of the beans.

Finger - food salad — carrot, celery and broccoli stalks sticks. Accompanying this with a shaker of seasoning salt for the dressing. Red apples, gingersnaps and coffee make an appropriate and flavorful ending.

BOILED DINNERS

Surprise, California brides have been known to serve New England boiled dinners to company. Corned beef, cabbage and potatoes are high hat when they're offered with imported mustard. Sliced thin, the beef goes a long way and cabbage and potatoes are definitely on any bride's budget. Pineapple shells filled with mixed fresh fruit make a glamorous dessert.

In Florida the outdoor barbecue or indoor fireside supper reigns. An inexpensive cut of beef is given a tenderizing marinade, then skewered alternately with squares of green pepper, wedges of tomato and onion. Partner to the meat is a pilaf made from rice (brown or white) or cracked wheat. Dessert might be a special ambrosia - orange and grapefruit sections plus strawberries topped with snowy coconut.

MORNING COFFEES

Southern brides, like their mothers, enjoy giving "morning coffees" on weekdays and over the weekend too. Hot strong coffee is the rule here plus sandwiches and coffee cake.

Brides everywhere enjoy entertaining at brunch. One suggestion is waffles along with bacon or little sausage links and maple syrup. Anything may be added to the waffle batter from canned whole - kernel corn to pecans.

Some gregarious young couples go in for weekend potluck lunches and progressive suppers. "Bring what's in the house," is the rule for the potluck meal and the menu is likely to produce some interesting combinations and lots of fun.

Progressive suppers had their heyday in the '20s and were likely to be on the formal side. Nowadays they usually are limited to three courses — an appetizer or soup, a casserole and perhaps salad, and dessert and coffee-just right for three couples.

Stores Can Help Bride In Gift Choices

Brides can do their friends and family a real favor by indicating what they really want as wedding gifts. Generous givers go through much uncertainty and unnecessary trouble to choose wedding gifts. Often the gift is sent with fear it may not be "right." Did three other people send a beverage set? How many clocks will she receive? Such worries take the pleasure away from giving.

• It pays to register your wants with stores. And let your family and friends know which items you really want. People are accustomed to this procedure for accessory home furnishings. It's the polite and diplomatic way to answer queries about what you want.

You'll find stores and departments just as willing to cooperate with you. When you and your bridegroom have seen "just the gifts" you want, refer friends to the store that displays it. Tell them the name of the salesman. Give them the brand name, or style or the name of the group you'd like, such as silver or china patterns.

If you think the girls may have a shower for you, be sure they know what you have chosen. You'll save yourself the trouble and embarrassment of returning duplicate gifts.

Basic Needs Suggested For Trousseau Wardrobe

Planning your trousseau? Try this check list for a basic wardrobe that should last through two summers and winters.

It may be a combination of new purchases (this would probably include your going away suit, nightwear, dressy dresses and some accessories) with what you already have.

Fill in where needed. And remember that long-term investments are your coats, suits, dressy gowns, shoes and bag They're well worth extra mon spent on them.

2 suits—1 casual, 1 dressy

4 daytime dresses—2 summer, 2 winter

3 party dresses—1 summer, 1 winter, 1 year-round.

6 blouses or shirts—2 each for suit, 2 for sports

4 sweaters

2 skirts or 1 skirt and 1 ber wear

3 handbags—1 summer, 1 winter, 1 evening

6 pairs of gloves

3 bras, 2 girdles

6 slips—2 tailored, 2 fancy, 2 dark

8 sleepwear—4 winter, 4 summer

muda shorts or slacks

Furniture Styles Mix For Interest

If your furniture is "traditional," don't scrap it; you can still have the contemporary touch.

While "contemporary" is a term applied to furniture with clean, simples lines, it also can be a principle of room planning that can be applied to many styles of furniture.

If the refurbishing budget is tight, it's acceptable to mix styles — contemporary and traditional, for example — so long as room planning follows good decorating practices.

The key to contemporary planning is function: plan your furnishings and their placement according to use. Eliminate the unnecessary.

No matter what style of furniture is used, a contemporary room should look uncluttered. Don't mistake the elaborate for beauty. Furnishings should be scaled to the size of the room and their usage; small period chairs won't withstand rugged day-to-day use, for example.

Floors should be surfaced with materials that blend with any decor. A dining area floor surfaced in warm shades of ceramic tile is suitable for almost any style of furniture.

New England Heritage Trail Is History Of Americana

Four centuries of American life are less than an hour's drive apart on New England's highway of Americana — Heritage Trail.

Visitors to this highway tour of New England's history, culture, recreation and scenery can span the centuries in minutes. For example, the re-created Pilgrim village of 1627 at Plymouth, Massachusetts, is less than an hour's drive from the modern theatres and nightclubs of downtown Boston.

The historic Battle Green at Lexington and Concord, sacred plots of ground where American freedom was born, are only a short drive from the beaches and the summer stock theaters of Cape Cod.

New England is a compact place and this newly-drawn highway trail through the region takes the visitor to more than 1,000 places of outstanding interest. These range from the picturesque narrow streets of Boston's Beacon Hill to majestic and unspoiled mountain lakes which stretch almost as far as the eye can see. By the way, not one brick can be changed on a Beacon Hill home without the approval of a special architectural commission.

Heritage Trail was drawn up last year by a group of New England travel and history experts. The entire main trail can be traveled in about ten days and it takes the visitor to every state and every major scenic and recreational area. It winds through the fields and villages which seem to leap from a Currier and Ives print.

Heritage Trail brouchures are available at most state information booths, or can be obtained by writing to the Heritage Trail Foundation, 131 Clarendon Street, Boston 16, Massachusetts.

A vacation along New England's Heritage Trail is a happy way of becoming acquainted with the world of minutemen and witches, of pilgrims, pirates and Indians. There is history in every shadow along the Trail.

But this latest travel idea does not concentrate on the past alone. It takes in every modern recreational activity from fishing to water skiing. It brings the visitor to country fairs, art shows, music festivals, college campuses, summer theaters and clambakes. It's a happy blend of history and fun.

In one morning the vacationer can visit Bunker Hill, Paul Revere's house, the U. S. Frigate Constitution, the Boston Massacre Scene, Faneuil Hall and the sites of the battles of Concord and Lexington.

For lunch you can stop at Longfellow's Wayside Inn at Sudbury, Massachusetts, and eat in the very room where Longfellow wrote many of his poems. The Inn is the oldest in the United States.

Heritage Trail carries you along the storied Main coast with its rocks, pines, sandy beaches and quaint ports. At Bar Harbor you will see the nearest thing we have in this country to the fiords of Norway. The Trail takes the visitor across Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont for the most spectacular of New England's mountain and lake scenery.

Some of the lakes encountered are famous as recreational areas: Sebago, Rangeley, Winnipesaukee, Sunapee, Champlain. The White Mountain trip includes New Hampshire's famous "Old Man of the Mountains."

The highest mountain in the northeast, Mount Washington, is nearby. Mt. Washington is 6,284 feet high and there is a cog railway and an auto road to the top.

Vermont's Green Mountains and tiny villages represent a way of life which has all but disappeared in other sections of the country. Some of Vermont's attractions include the world's largest granite quarries at Barre, the Marble Museum at Proctor, Smuggler's Notch at Stowe, and Shelburne Museum at Shelburne. Shelburne Museum has an old paddle wheel steamer which once plied Lake Champlain and a superb collection of old buildings and handicraft displays brought together over the past 40 years.

The Trail runs down the spectacular Green Mountain range to Bennington, scene of the Revolutionary War Battle and site of the 306-foot high Bennington Battle Monument.

The Trail enters Massachusetts for a visit to Greenfield and Old Deerfield Village, scene of bloody Indian massacres in 1675 and 1704. The main street is still lined with the original houses. There are doors to be seen with the marks of Indian tomahawks on them.

Heritage Trail then travels through the valleys and crests of the Berkshire Hills and into the Litchfield Hills of Connecticut, famed for some of New England's most beautiful village greens. It hits Long Island Sound next and travels back through Connecticut to Pioneer Valley in Massachusetts, to the restored village green of Storrowton in Springfield and on to Sturbridge Village.

Sturbridge is a re-created town of Colonial and early Federal days. It stores, buildings, tavern, school, covered bridge, church and industrial buildings were gathered from all over New England.

Returning to Connecticut, the Trail traverses the lakes region of the state and brings the visitor to Mystic Seaport where the last of the wooden whaling vessels, the Charles W. Morgan, is tied up. Mystic Seaport, a re-created old New England port of the days of "Moby Dick", has nearly 50 ships and many old buildings available for inspection.

The Trail runs next to Westerly Rhode Island and Narragansett Bay. The Bay boasts some of the finest fishing, sailing and bathing to be found anywhere.

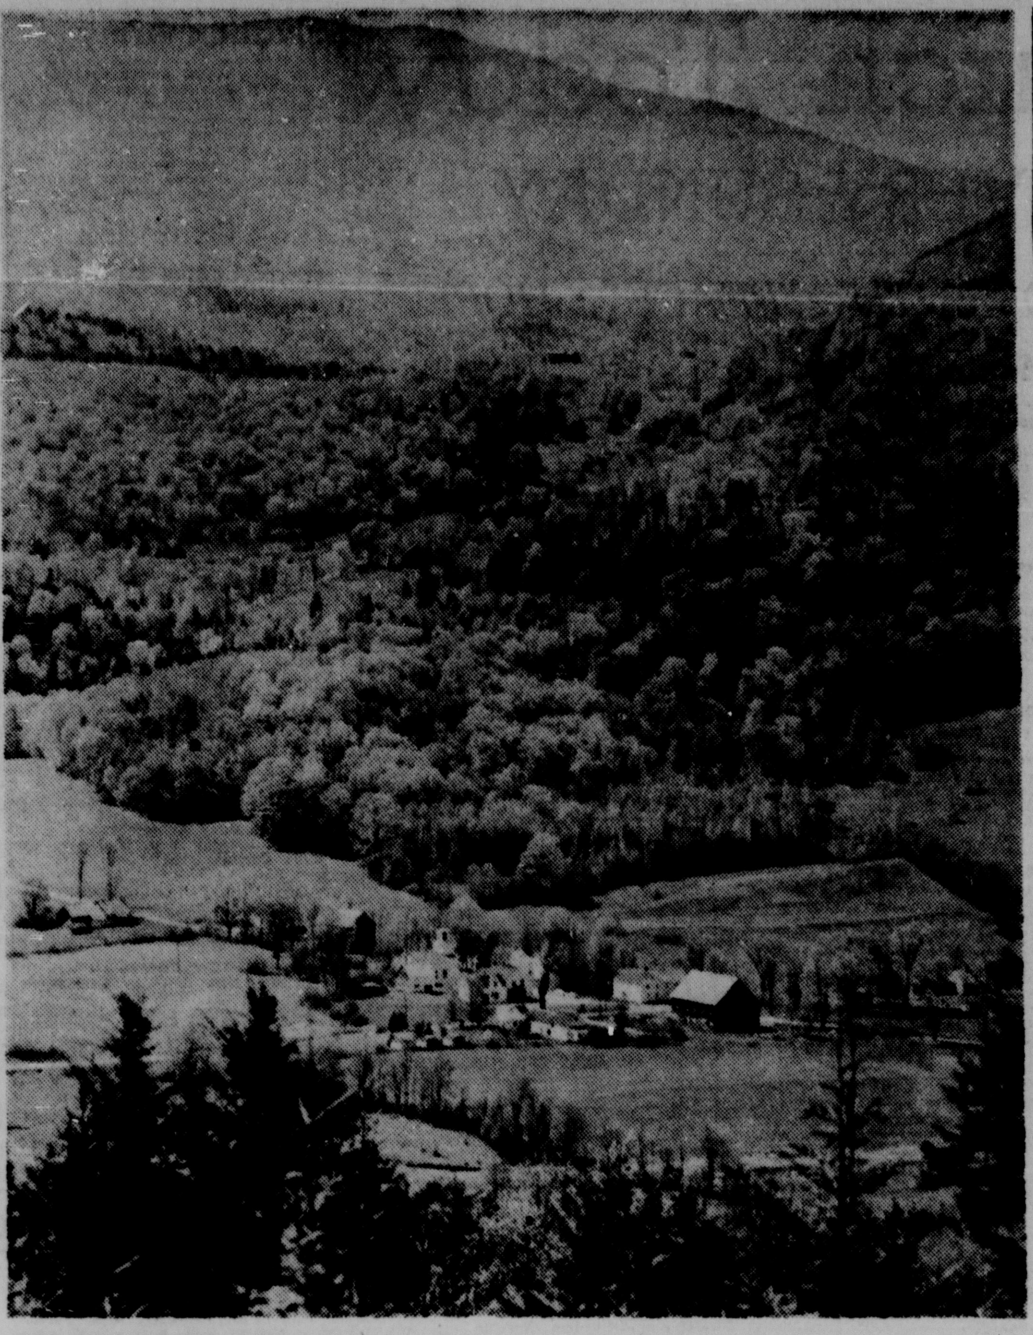
Next, it takes the visitor to historic Providence, to nearby Pawtucket, and then on to Newport, home of the Music Festival and the famed Newport mansion, including the former summer home of Cornelius Vanderbilt, called "The Breakers."

The Trail when winds along the south shore of Cape Cod to Provincetown, the first stopping place of the Pilgrims and a stopping place for latter day Pilgrims who bring along paint and brushes. The Trail returns along the northern shore of the Cape and heads for Plymouth, Massachusetts.

In Plymouth you can see the homes just as they looked when the Pilgrims lived in them more than 300 years ago. The Fort-Meeting House has also been restored, and the Mayflower II is anchored in Plymouth Harbor. The outer harbor looks the same today as it did when the Pilgrims landed.

Heritage Trail even offers an ocean cruise for the land-bound. New England's waters are island-dotted and ferries serve the larger ones. There are ferries to Block Island, Rhode Island, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket off the Massachusetts coast, to Provincetown on Cape Cod and to many of the islands off the Maine coast.

New Englanders hope the day will come when no American will consider his knowledge of his own country and its beginnings complete until he has traveled their "Heritage Trail."



THE NEW ENGLAND Heritage Train abounds with places of historical interest. One such place is the quaint town of Plymouth, Vermont — birth place of President Calvin Coolidge.

Negro Is Struck By Auto, Killed

BALDWIN, La. (AP) — A 75-year-old Negro, Edward J. Washington, was killed early Saturday when hit by a car while walking along the Glenco-Baldwein Highway.

Coroner G. P. Musso said Washington, of Glenco, was hit by a car driven by Ray Rodriguez, also of Glenco, at about 1 a.m. It was ruled an avoidable accident.

THIS IS THE recently organized bell choir of the First Methodist Church of Monroe, which will appear at a Methodist musicians workshop in Lake Providence this month.

Church Sets Study Meet Of Musicians

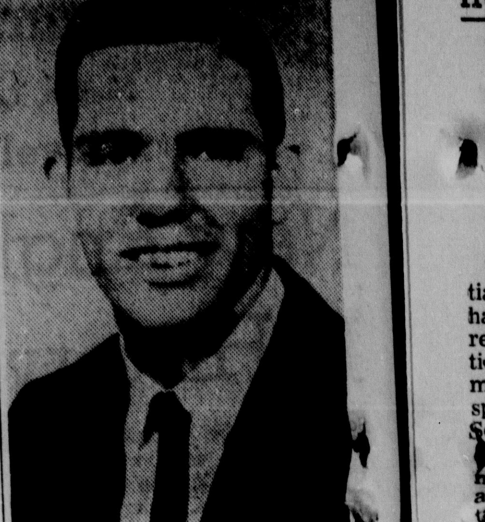
The Monroe District annual workshop for Methodist musicians will be held in Lake Providence. Saturday, May 18. Registration will start at 9 a.m.

The workshop will be open to all Methodist church musicians. A. E. Tellinghuisen of Louisiana Tech will hold a class on choral technique and repetoire. Mrs. Louise Davis of Memorial Methodist Church will be instructor for junior choir work, and Lamarr Robertson of Lake Charles Methodist Church will be instructor on youth choirs. He will also discuss notes and techniques for organizing and directing a bell choir.

TECHNICALITIES

Henry Freeman will instruct on technicalities and registration of organs, with Mrs. Dorothy Zeagler of the First Methodist Church of Monroe, conducting a class on repetoire.

One of the classes added will be on hand bell choirs, with the newly organized bell choir of First Methodist Church of Monroe giving a special program during this session.



L. E. TRAXLER JR., a student at Louisiana College, Pineville, will speak at 10 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. services today at Mount Vernon Baptist Church in West Monroe, it was announced by the pastor, the Rev. Cecil Gregory.

OF DEACONESS MOVEMENT

Group Observes An Anniversary

The 75th anniversary of the deaconess movement in The Methodist Church is being observed this year throughout the United States.

Organized in 1888, the deaconness movement now comprises some 400 women who are engaged in full-time church work among the poor, the sick and the needy. They include rural workers, community center directors, librarians, welfare officers and nurses. Some of them will be honored for 50 or more years of service.

EMPHASIS

Observances marking the movement's diamond anniversary will also emphasize the recruitment of new deaconesses. A national goal of 75 new deaconesses has been set for this year — one new recruit for each year of the deaconess movement.

The modern deaconess movement began in Kaiserwerth, Germany, under the direction of Pastor Theodore Fliedner of the Lutheran Church, who in 1836 opened the first Deaconess House.

Deaconess work in The Methodist Church had its origin in Bremen, Germany, in 1870. However, the first deaconess was employed in 1868 in the seminary at Frankfort-on-the-Main by the Rev. Louis Nippert, who was serving at the time as dean of the school.

The movement took root in American Methodism officially in 1888 in the branch known as the Methodist Episcopal Church, under the leadership of Lucy Rider Meyer and Jane Bancroft.

ADVOCATED

Sometime during the 1860s Bishop Matthew Simpson became acquainted with deaconess work in Germany. He advocated the founding of deaconess institutions in the United States, much after the German models. In 1872 Susan M. Fry wrote in the Ladies Repository: "When will the women of American awake to a sense of their responsibilities? And what great soul, filled with love to God and man, shall open the way and prepare the means whereby we may be enabled to compete successfully with our sisters of Rome, not only as general charity women, but educators and succorers of the unfortunate."

In 1887, the Chicago Preachers Meeting massed a memorial urging the General Conference of 1888 to establish deaconess work in the church. The General Conference approved the memorials, and deaconess work was made official in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

AUTHORIZATION

It was not until 1902, however, that the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, authorized the office of deaconess. In the Methodist Protestant Church, the Deaconess Board was organized in 1908.

By the turn of the century, deaconess work was not only well established in the United States, but was also founded under the supervision of The Methodist Church in Germany, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, the Philippines, Mexico and India.

Deaconess work is an inclusive term, taking in many responsibilities. The Discipline of The Methodist Church defines a deaconess as "a woman who has been led by the Holy Spirit to devote herself to Christlike service under the direction of the church. This office entitles a women to serve The Methodist Church through any of its agencies in any capacity not requiring full clergy rights."

A deaconess may be a supply pastor, a director of Christian education, a parish worker, an assistant to the minister, or she may serve in some other capacity in the local church. She may be a housemother, a dietitian, a case worker, or a secretary in a Methodist home for children. She may be assigned to church and community work in rural areas or urban areas. Her work is as extensive and as inclusive as the outreach of The Methodist Church.

To become a deaconess a young woman must have, as a minimum, a bachelor of arts degree from a recognized college, and adequate professional preparation on the graduate level for the special field in which she wishes to serve. Most of the deaconesses are trained at National College in Kansas City, Missouri, or at Scarritt College for Christan Workers in Nashville, Tennessee. Others are trained in approved seminaries.

J. McDonald To Speak At Local Church

A Monroe attorney and church lay leader, Jesse D. McDonald, will speak at 11 a.m. services today at Memorial Presbyterian Church in West Monroe.

His appearance there will be in connection with the "Law Day U. S. A." program of the Bar Association. He will speak on "Religion, Law and Communism." He will be introduced by Bailey Grant, Ouachita Parish sheriff, and a member of Memorial Church.

SESSION CLERK

McDonald is clerk of the Session of Covenant Presbyterian Church, a ruling elder, and teaches a young adult Bible class. He is immediate past president of the Fourth Judicial District Bar Association, and a graduate of Louisiana State University Law School.

Leon Hammonds, a retired businessman, will be guest organist at the morning service.

Today at 7 p.m. there will be a song service and Larry Wade, a member of Memorial Church and a student at Northeast State College, will speak in the absence of Dr. Hugh Bradshaw, minister, who will be in Texas.

Rev. E. D. Mercer Is Guest Pastor

Edgewood Baptist Church, West Monroe, will hear sermons at 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. today by the Rev. Earl D. Mercer, public relations director for the Louisiana Baptist Children's home here.

He will preach in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Don Wainwright, who will be en route to attend sessions of the Southern Baptist Convention in Kansas City, Missouri.

REV. W. E. SPENCER

Bethel Church Revival Slated During The Week

Bethel Baptist Church, West Monroe, will hold revival services from Monday through the following Sunday in the recently completed building at 300 Washington St.

Rev. W. E. Spencer, pastor of Kelly Memorial Baptist Church in Shreveport, and former pastor of Mount Vernon Baptist Church, West Monroe, will be the evangelist.

Services will be held at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. daily. A nursery will be provided. Music will be under the direction of Tuck Roberts of West Monroe.

Rev. Lionell Crowell, is pastor of the church.

Area Baptists Will Attend Special Meets

Five related meetings scheduled Monday through Friday in Kansas City, Mo. will be attended by many northeast Louisiana Baptists.

Four of the meetings will be held simultaneously Monday and Tuesday prior to the opening of sessions of the Southern Baptist Convention. The earlier conclaves are those of the Woman's Missionary Union, the pastors' conference, the religious education association, and the church music conference.

The Rev. T. Earl Ogg, pastor of local College Place Baptist Church for the past decade, will preach on the Monday morning program of the pastors' conference. The Rev. James W. Carraway, former Monroe pastor who is known as "The Singing Engineer," will be soloist twice on Tuesday's program.

ON COMMITTEE

The Rev. Luther B. Hall, pastor of Farmerville First Baptist Church and president of the Louisiana Baptist Convention, is a member of a special committee which will report to the SBC Thursday morning on its study of a 1925 statement on the Baptist faith and message. This report is one of the top items on the business agenda this year.

A successor to the Rev. H. H. Hobbs, former Alexandria pastor, now of Oklahoma City, Okla., will be chosen as convention president.

The convention will consider a budget of $19,248,500 for 1964, about a half - million dollars less than the current one.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

Do you believe that the Devil is a person or is he an evil influence? L.M.

I believe that the Devil is a person and that he is constantly exerting an evil influence. Some years ago Prof. Emile Cialliet, then a professor at Princeton Theological Seminary, said: "The neatest trick Satan has ever performed is to make so many people think he does not exist." If we do not know the enemy, or think that he does not exist, how impossible to stand against him. The Devil is the personification of evil and we see the result of his work in the lives of men everywhere. The front pages of every newspaper tell of Satan's work. The Bible tells us: Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." The wonderful thing is that Christ came into the world to overcome the power of the devil. Those who put their trust in Him can, in his strength, wage a victorious warfare. The Bible also tells us, "Resist the devil, and he will flee from you". When our Lord was tempted in the wilderness each of the three times he silenced the Devil by use of Scripture. The Word of God is spoken of as the Sword of the Spirit. That is why Satan hates the Bible so much, he cannot stand against it. Phillips translates Ephesians 6:13 in this way: "For our fight is not against any physical enemy; it is against organizations and powers that are spiritual. We are up against the unseen power that controls this dark world, and spiritual agents from the very headquarters of evil." Only by Christ's help can we overcome him.

IN HOUSE SUBCOMMITTEE

Document Would Restrict Viet Nam War Coverage

WASHINGTON (AP)—A potentially explosive document in the hands of a House subcommittee is reported to lay down administration guidelines for restricting the movements of American correspondents covering the warfare in South Viet Nam.

Sources familiar with the document, a message to the American ambassador in Saigon, said it contains two main points on how to deal with U.S. newsmen trying to cover the shadowy rice paddy war:

1. Keep American reporters away from areas where fighting is being done entirely or almost entirely by U.S. troops.

2. Keep American reporters away from any area which will show the extent of President Ngo Dinh Diem's failure to attract the full allegiance of the South Vietnamese people.

Pledged to secrecy, the House subcommittee on Foreign Operations and Government Information plans to hold closed hearings on the directive later this month.

At issue: Is the document properly classified as a confidential military secret or is it being covered up because it might embarrass the Kennedy administration's relationship with the authoritarian Diem regime?

The document, signed by Secretary of State Dean Rusk, is more than a year old. But it is still in effect.

In the cable jargon of the State Department, when communicating to field stations, it is labeled "Message to AmEmbassy Saigon 1006."

The House subcommittee, conducting a wide-ranging inquiry into censorship and charges of news management, already has heard in public session Asst. Secretary of Defense Arthur Sylvester and his State Department counterpart, Robert Manning. Both are in charge of public information for their departments.

They may be called back in closed session to testify about "Saigon 1006."

An official description of the South Viet Nam news situation prepared by subcommittee staff members mentions that a "confidential State Department message to the American ambassador in Saigon stated that 'more flexibility at the local level' was needed in dealing with U.S. newsmen covering the Viet Nam operations."

But sources familiar with the document say it goes far beyond such general language.

Two members of the subcommittee have confirmed they know of the existence of the message. Both say they have not actually seen it, but have been briefed on its contents, which seem certain to add fuel to Republican outcries against alleged news management.

A June 30, 1962, letter from Sylvester to Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., the Subcommittee chairman, describes the order in general terms, calling it a "basic directive for U.S. reporters, issued Feb. 20, 1962." The letter says it is a joint State-Defense-USIA message to the American ambassador.

Among other things, Sylvester told Moss "There is no censorship of press dispatches or other news material." This would not be inconsistent with the content of the order, which reportedly concerns the physical placement and travel of American reporters, rather than censorship of their written dispatches.

Sylvester's letter also observes "It appears that in general, the South Viet Nam government has been more reasonable in its attitude toward and requirements of American news reporters." This is not further explained.

The subcommittee staff memo on the South Viet Nam situation mentions two instances of outright lying to U.S. reporters.

Only one is described. This was the case of a news conference a year ago by two U.S. sergeants who where captured, held for three weeks by the Communists, and released.

The memo says the sergeants denied on official instructions that they had brought back Communist propaganda leaflets. But it was later conceded that they had brought out such a leaflet saying the Communists had released the to return to the United States and their families.

This incident was reported at the time.

Financial Aids Conference Set At NLSC

The vice president of the new Southwest Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators and the regional representatives of the federal department of health, education and welfare will be the main speakers at Northeast Louisiana State College's Financial Aids Conference here Tuesday.

Robert L. Boggs, S. J., vice president of the Southwest Association, formed last fall, and dean of students at Loyola University of the South, will speak on the association at a 9:15 a.m. session and Dr. Howard M. Kreitzer of the health, education and welfare department will discuss the National Defense Student Loan program at 1:30 p.m.

Representatives from McNeese, Louisiana Tech, Northwestern, Southwestern, Southeastern, Nicholls State, Loyola, Centenary, Louisiana College, St. Mary's Dominican, Tulane and LSU are expected to attend the conference, according to James O. Lancaster, director of scholarships placement and alumni affairs at Northeast and conference director.

The conference will begin with registration at 9:00 Tuesday morning in the College Union Building. After Boggs' talk at 9:15, a round table discussion on warrants, legislative fee exemptions, honor fee exemptions, academic scholarships, short - term loans, student employment, etc., is scheduled at 10:00.

A discussion period is also set after Kreitzer's talk Tuesday afternoon.

Meetings Slated Over Weekend At Local Church

The Welcome Home Church of God, 131 Arrant Road, West Monroe, will hold weekend sessions starting Friday and continuing through Sunday, May 12, it was announced by the pastor, the Rev. Doyle Whitesel.

Dick Reinholtz, of Houston, Texas, director of the Youth for Christ International in the Texas and Louisiana area, will be featured speaker. Services will be held 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 11 a.m. Sunday.

New York Gov. Rockefeller, Recent Divorcee Wed In Private Ceremony

NEW YORK (AP) – Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller married newly divorced Margaretta (Happy) Murphy on Saturday in a private ceremony on the walled and fenced Rockefeller estate in suburban Westchester County.

Rumors of the romance between the 54-year-old Republican governor and the 36-year-old blonde social registerite who once worked on his staff had excited national attention for weeks.

Several Republican national committeemen advised him publicly last week that marriage would hurt him with the voters. But the newly elected state party chairman in New York, Fred A. Young, remarked: "If it's a solid marriage, what's wrong with it?"

Rockefeller and the former Mrs. Murphy exchanged vows before a Congregationalist minister at the home of Rockefeller's brother, Laurance. The governor is a Baptist. His bride, christened an Episcopalian, has been attending the Union Church of the Rev. Marshall L. Smith, who performed the marriage.

Only immediate members of the bride's and bridegroom's families attended the ceremony, according to the announcement issued three hours after the noon wedding.

The announcement did not specify whether the guests included any of Rockefeller's four grown children or his bride's four, who range in age from 3 to 12.

The governor's former wife of 31 years, Mary Todhunter Clark Rockefeller, maintains a residence on the vast Rockefeller estate at Pocantico Hills, 25 miles north of Manhattan, where the marriage took place.

The new Mrs. Rockefeller's ex-husband, Dr. James S. Murphy, 41, a medical researcher for the Rockefeller Institute, lives in New York City. But he and his former wife also had homes near the Rockefeller estate and near the governor's vacation home at Seal Harbor, Maine.

Moving in the same social circles, the Rockefellers and the Murphys had been close for years. In 1958, Mrs. Murphy campaigned with Rockefeller as a volunteer aide in his first bid for governor. Later she became a paid member of his Manhattan staff.

"Smart set" gossip first joined the names of Rockefeller and Mrs. Murphy when the governor announced the breakup of his marriage in November 1961. Mrs. Rockefeller went to Reno, Nev., for the divorce, which she obtained March 16, 1962 on grounds of mental anguish.

After Mrs. Murphy divorced the doctor on similar grounds at Sun Valley, Idaho, on April 1, the gossip became public. But Rockefeller, always smiling, repeatedly refused to comment on the speculation which preceded Saturday's wedding announcement.

"The bride wore a pale blue dress of silk shantung, of straight line with a small bow at the neck," the announcement said. "She wore natural color shoes and white gloves, and carried a bouquet of spring flowers.

The honeymoon ranch, called Monte Sacro, is situated about 20 miles from Valencia, an interior city 100 miles southwest of the Venezuelan capital of Caracas. It was not learned how long they will stay there.

"On their return," the announcement said, "the couple will make their home in the executive mansion in Albany and at the governor's home in Pocantico Hills."

The former Margaretta Fitler, the new Mrs. Rockefeller, picked up the nickname "Happy" from her classmates at the elite Shiley's School of Bryn Mawr, Pa., her native city.

Her mother is Mrs. George E. Bartol Jr. of Wynnewood, Pa., and her father was the late William W. Fitler Jr. Among her ancestors were Jonathan Dickinson, founder and first president of Princeton University; Gen. George Gordon Meade who commanded the Union forces at the Battle of Gettysburg, and Edwin H. Fitler, former mayor of Philadelphia, who founded the family ropemaking business.

The governor, heir to the Rockefeller millions, is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr. His maternal grandparents were Sen. And Mrs. Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island.

Rockefeller and his former wife had five children, but one, Michael, 23, was lost on a primitive art expedition in New Guinea just at the time his parents announced the end of their marriage. The other Rockefeller children are Rodman C., Steven C., Mrs. Robert L. Pierson and Mrs. William L. Strawbridge Jr.

The Murphys' four children, now staying with their father, are James B., 12; Margaretta Harrison, 10; Carol Slater, 7; and Malinda Fitler, 3.

USING BEN'S BROOMS

NEW YORK (AP)—The Broom Research Council estimates that more than 50 million corn brooms are sold each year or about one a household. Benjamin Franklin is credited with being the father of the corn broom industry.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR MOTHERS:

On the bad days when your children have to stay in the house, and they're tired of all their toys and are "getting-in-your-hair" . . . try giving each of them a bar of soap and a dull knife. Any regular table knife is good for this. Mind you, I did not say the paring knife!

Place a newspaper on your kitchen table and let your child "carve." There is no telling what he will come out with . . . but you will at least keep him occupied and it will calm your nerves.

The soap will not be wasted. When he is through "messing," put it in one of those old plastic bottles and add some water and let it soak. This soap can later be used for many things for mother herself.

I find that bars of colored soap hold a child's interest. Baby soap is much softer and easier to carve and it does not break as easily. If you buy the large bar, you can break it into two pieces and have another piece for the next rainy day!

Heloise

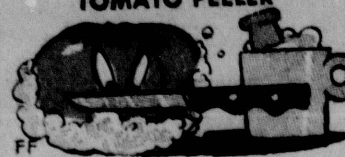
DEAR HELOISE:

For those who have a blender, if they will put all the ingredients for their spaghetti sauce through the blender and cook it for only one-half hour, it will taste like it was simmered for hours.

I also put all my ingredients for a meat loaf in my blender (most important is the salt and pepper), stir into the meat, and presto, its finished. Your seasonings are always well distributed. And . . . ditto for potato-salad mixture.

Ivy

TOMATO PEELER



I got this hint from my mother-in-law, so the credit goes to her.

When peeling tomatoes, run a paring knife over the whole tomato with a shaving motion, not cutting the skin. You will know how firm to press as the tomato turns a deeper shade in color.

Gertrude Lay

DEAR HELOISE:

I ruined about five pairs of rubber gloves because they stuck together. It finally dawned on me that if I put talcum powder on my hands before putting on my gloves, it not only kept the gloves from sticking, but it made them go on easier!

DEAR HELOISE:

Being an outdoor woman I have a few hints to pass along.

Plastic yardage (storm window type) placed UNDER a sleeping bag stops the ground dampness from coming through.

When going hunting or fishing, I spray several coats of water repellent on the legs of my bluejeans. This is also good for children's pants, as it keeps their legs dry on hikes.

If there is more than one person trolling from a boat, use different-colored lines. In case the lines get tangled, it is much easier to untangle them!

To keep the trolling spinner the right distance from the boat, I mark my line by running it through my lips! The lipstick does not wash off in the water, and when the red mark comes up on the reel . . . I know the amount of line is right for the best fishing.

Outdoor Woman

DEAR HELOISE:

I find when washing gloves and children's mittens, that they will dry much quicker if I put a ROUND tight clothespin in each finger and thumb after I wash them. I then hang them up by the cuff pinned together on a clothes hanger.

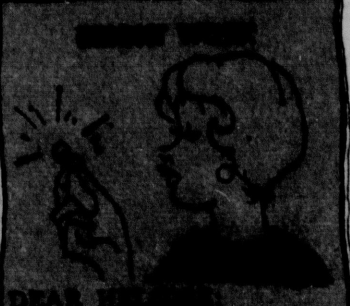
Mrs. Jansen

DEAR HELOISE:

The first of each month I go through my address book and cards . . . I address and seal all birthday, anniversary cards and so forth. But I do not put on the stamp . . . yet . . .

Where the stamp goes . . . I write the DATE of the birthday or anniversary so that I will not forget to mail them on their proper date. When the stamp is applied to the envelope, it will hide your reminder!

Mrs. E. Bustion



DEAR HELOISE:

I shine silver cuff links with tooth paste when I am out of polish. It is very good.

Mrs. Fred E. Gifford

DEAR HELOISE:

I wonder how many readers ever get a salad thumb? You know . . . those little slice marks you get when you are cutting the vegetables used in a salad! Try as I might, I can't get used to a cutting board.

My solution: Adhesive tape around my thumb.

Phyllis Hamamaker

DEAR HELOISE:

If you have children in your home who watch TV and you would like to save your favorite toss pillows (and also your peace o' mind) try my way:

Most of us have old chenille bedspreads with some use still in them. I make covers from the good parts for all my toss pillows. I make them so they will slip on and off easily.

These washable covers protect the pretty pillows, and the youngsters can put them on the floor to sit on, or play train, or even take a sea voyage!

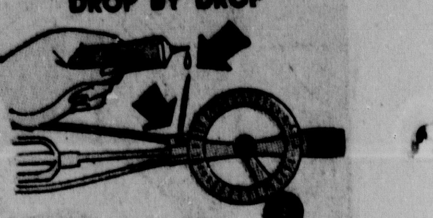
Mother

* * *

I can sure tell you have kids! Just like mine. Bless you.

Heloise

DROP BY DROP



DEAR HELOISE:

When I oil the hard-to-reach little places . . . I insert a toothpick into the spot being oiled. Then I drop the oil on the tip of the toothpick and the oil will run neatly down into the little hole! Try it. It actually works every time. No spills either.

Reader

DEAR HELOISE:

When I line pans with foil, I turn the pan upside down, fold the foil around the corners of the pans and shape it to the bottom of the pan.

Then remove it . . . turn the pan over, and the foil fits right into the pan.

Groom Also Has Share In Wedding Expenses

By tradition and practice the wedding is supposed to be the bride's show. But often the groom doesn't get enough credit for his share in the setting.

Just consider what would be missing without the items the man pays for:

— The bride wouldn't have an engagement or wedding ring. The man pays for both. He gets one break — if there's a double ring ceremony the bride buys his ring for him.

— There wouldn't be many flowers. Formal etiquette decrees (though local custom varies) that the groom buy the bride's bouquet, corsages for the two mothers and boutonnieres for men in the wedding party.

— Bride and ushers would not get gifts.

— The clergyman who performs the ceremony would lose a contribution.

— There would be no wedding trip.

Let's look at what these expenses add up to: Diamond engagement rings range from around $50 for a tiny stone set in yellow gold to $900 for a perfect one - carat stone. Of course bigger stones cost more depending on number of carats and quality of the stone.

The bride's wedding ring, usually a plain, untooled goldband, can cost as little as $10. Set with 10 or 12 tiny diamonds it might run up to $200. The groom's wedding ring is larger and wider than the bride's and costs about wice as much.

The bridal bouquet can run from $15 to $25 while corsages for mothers start at $5. (The bride supplies bouquets for her attendants). Usher boutonnieres cost $1 each.

Jewelry or other similar lasting object is the usual choice for the groom's gift to his bride. This could be a pearl necklace, a locket or a plain stone on a chain which could be worn with the wedding gown. It's generally a $25 item.

Neckties, cigarette lighters or men's jewelry are customarily gifts for the best man and ushers. Average price is $5 to $10 each.

The clergyman's fee generally depends on the size of the wedding. For a small ceremony $5 or $10 is considered enough while it may run up to $50 for a larger affair.

The average wedding trip, according, to one survey lasts two weeks, is by automobile, and costs about $400. Package trips are also popular to New York City, Miami Beach, southern California, Nassau and Bermuda.

So don't write the groom off as an incidental item. He's a vital part of the wedding formalities.

Invitations Hold Prime Importance

Whether you're planning a small informal wedding with only two weeks in which to make arrangements, or are having a large ceremony and a country club reception, the delicate matter of deciding on the guest list is of first inportance.

Fortunately, the invitation serves dual purposes. For distant relatives and friends who could not possibly attend, it becomes an announcement of your forthcoming marriage.

It also can be used selectively, for you may have a church full of guests for your wedding and invite only a fraction of them to the reception.

The larger the wedding, the sooner you must decide on the guest list, for engraved invitations in the traditional third - person style, are prerequisite. These should be ordered at least one month prior to the ceremony.

Those guests whom you wish to attend the reception should receive an engraved card saying, for example, "Reception, immediately following the ceremony, Oak Knobb Country Club, Midvale, R.S.V.P."

If the wedding is to be informal a note written by the bride or her mother is sufficient. There is no accepted form for such invations: in fact, the notes should be as personal as the relationship with the guest to be.

For the very small wedding with few guests, it is customary to send out no invitations at all, but following the ceremony to mail an announcement card.

BY CANDLELIGHT

If there is to be a special candle lighting service, this should be rehearsed first. Usually the tapers are lighted by a staff member of the church about half an hour before the ceremony.

THIS BLUE and gold imported brocade makes this Jacques Heim costume ideal for your honeymoon, particularly if you plan to travel in the cooler climates. The dress has an all-tucked chiffon bodice, spaghetti straps.

Dunk Your Diamond For Sparkle

The sparkle of your diamond engagement ring should be as bright as the sparkle of your smile and both will be on display all during your wedding reception.

So, before you transfer your engagement ring from the left hand to the right for the wedding ceremony give it a good bath.

Or you can use a liquid or granular detergent, preparing hot suds in a cup or bowl. Add a tablespoon of ammonia, if the water is hard. While the ring is in the bath, brush gently with an eyebrow brush. Clean back and front of the ring mounting and under and over the diamonds. Don't scrub; it might loosen stones. Prongs, deep settings and engraved designs should be brushed gently.

Either rinse in a bowl of hot water or transfer the jewelry to a tea strainer and rinse under hot water from the faucet. Pat dry with a soft, lintless cloth or dip the ring out to dry on tissue paper.

Engagement Diamonds Available In Many 'Cuts'

Courtship often leads to the kindest cut of all — the diamond-shape in an engagement ring. Actually, "cut" refers to the arrangement of facets on a diamond as well as the shape. No matter how small the diamond, the facets must be cut at precise angles which are in symmetry. Modern diamond cutting is based on knowledge of the way a diamond handles light and when a diamond is proportioned correctly the light-rays that enter it are diffused and refracted. The action of light entering the gem from all angles, bouncing around and coming out the top is what creates a diamond's "fire."

The traditional form for engagement diamonds is the round shape which is called the "brilliant." But different shapes of diamonds are rising in popularity. These are called "fancy cuts" by jewelers because they are more difficult to produce and are slightly higher in price. Some of them, such as the pear and the oval, make a diamond look larger than a round-shaped diamond of the same carat weight.

The pear-shape is one of the most historical cuts. Queen Marie Antoinette is said to have loved pear-shaped diamonds and the biggest diamond in the world — the 530-carat Cullinan I in the British sceptre — is a pear-shape. Fashion experts say a ring with a pear-shaped stone should be worn with the point of the pear upwards on the finger.

The oval shape is an old diamond cut, too. One of the most romantic of the famous diamonds of the world, the 51-carat Eugenie, is an oval. Once owned by Catherine the Great, this shimmering stone was purchased by Napoleon III as a wedding gift for his bride, the Empress Eugenie.

Besides the oval and the pear, there are three other fancy-cuts which are leading choices for engagement rings today.

A marquise diamond is made in an oval shape wtih a graceful point at both ends. Originally called the "navette," or little boat, it was rechristened after the Marquise de Pompadour, the good friend of Louis XV, who wore a ring in this shape.

An emerald-cut has square contours and is so called because the style was first a favorite for colored gems, especially emeralds. The classic simplicty and clear, lucid beauty of this cut have wide appeal.

Heart-shaped diamonds shine with particular sentimentality, but they are rare and pose special problems for the cutter. About 75 per cent of the rough stone must be ground away to get this plump and lovely cut, though only 50 per cent of a rough stone is lost when a diamond is cut in a round shape. The hearts cut for engagement diamonds usually run from one to five carats.

Too Many Parties For Bride Can Be Very Bothersome

The flurry of excitement that always precedes a wedding brings with it all manner of advance party giving for the bride-to-be.

College friends plan a shower luncheon. Office co-workers are anxious to entertain. Friends of the family extend dinner invitations. And as the wedding date approaches, the bride must decide how to entertain her bridesmaids and what to do for the out-of-town relatives who arrive early for the ceremony.

A word of warning to those whose datebooks are getting crowded: In spite of your friends' sincerity and desire to entertain you, you don't have to accept all invitations. The immediate problems of trousseau buying, finding and furnishing an apartment, writing invitations and closing the details of the reception menu will be enough to keep you in a whirl before the wedding.

If you feel there's just too much going on, suggest to your friends that they entertain for you after the wedding. A gift-giving luncheon given for you after you are married is perfectably acceptable.

That way, you can concentrate on your own party for your bridesmaids, which may be a luncheon or even a tea a week or more prior to the ceremony.

If your wedding is sufficiently formal to require a rehearsal the evening before, it is customary for the bride to entertain the wedding party at dinner. It may simplify matters to have this meal planned at an inn or club, because of the hectic atmosphere prevailing at home. Or a friend of your parents may offer to entertain.

If yours is an informal wedding, you need not entertain the wedding party, but may, if you wish, have a simple buffet for out-of-towners who are arriving at different hours during the day before the wedding.

BRIDE'S CAKE

The bride's cake is the elaborately decorated tiered cake used as the centerpiece for the bridal table. A separate wedding cake either light or dark is cut into small pieces and given to guests in small boxes to take home.

Wedding Ceremony Has Historical Background

Bits and pieces of bygone days live again in the beauty of our modern marriage services. Even primitive tribes dignify marriage as a ceremony marked by both solemnity and celebration. Among the early Hebrews, Greeks and Romans, the bride's father performed the wedding ceremony.

Rise of the early Christian church added the priest's blessing to the ritual. And in time the church took on an increasingly important role, with all marriages performed by the clergy.

There are different points of emphasis in the wedding rites of various faiths. If you are planning your own wedding, or a wedding guest, the church ceremony will take on added interest if you know what the ritual signifies.

The Protestant wedding ceremony is probably the most familiar in this country. But there are a number of variations according to denominations and one of the most striking is that of the Friends or Quaker.

NO MUSIC

In this, the bride and groom make their vows to each other after a period of silence and without the assistance of a clergyman. Orthodox Friends omit music with a goal of strict simplicity.

In most church ceremonies, the bride is "given away" by her father, recalling ancient times when the bride was "purchased" by her groom.

However, in the Orthodox Friends ceremony, the bride and groom walk together in the processional, as was done in the early days in this country; her father does not "give her away."

A vital part of the Friends' marriage is the "certificate." This document is signed by the bride and groom after they have married themselves and then by guests who witnessed the ceremony.

Many Protestant services are patterned on the Episcopal marriage ceremony, which includes a bethrothal service and the marriage ceremony itself. These include the exchange of vows and blessing of rings.

Some years ago there was much discussion over the bride's promise to "love, honor and obey." Now the controverisal "obey" is replaced by "cherish" in many churches.

The Roman Catholic wedding ceremony itself is not greatly different from the Protestant. But it is often followed by the impressive ritual of the Nuptial Mass, in which special prayers are said for the bride and groom. They join the priest at the altar at various times during the Mass for this benediction.

The ancient Jewish marriage ceremony reflects that faith's 5,000-year history with many symbolic touches. A conspicious feature is the rectangular canopy, or chupah, under which the bride and groom stand. The canopy symbolizes the couple's new home.

At the rabbi's side is a small table with a decanter of wine and glasses. After the wine has been drunk, the wine glass is broken or ground under the groom's heel, recalling the sorrow of the Jewish people at their eviction from Jerusalem.

An essential part of the ceremony are the "seven blessings," usually given in Hebrew. The rabbi also gives a personal address to the bride and groom.

In some Conservative and Orthodox Jewish rites, the groom's father walks with his son in the procession while the bride's father escorts his daughter. The two mothers also take part in the procession, walking together. And the men wear hats or some form of head covering.

The Eastern Orthodox Church has one of the most colorful of all modern wedding ceremonies. Oriental in feeling, it takes place at a flower bedecked table in front of the sanctuary and near the center of the church.

Wine in a cup is blessed and the bride and groom drink from it, symbolizing their unity and sharing of life's joys and sorrows. The priest binds the couple's hands together with a handkerchief, leads them three times around the table and blesses them. Then they are declared man and wife.

CHOOSING UP

'LADY OF THE LEEK'

Sara Miller Cutting, executive directoress, said the organization's avowed purpose is to combat "the lack of recognition and respect" which the group feels is holding back widespread use of the leek.

"Let's bring this versatile vegtable the status it deserves," she said. "Sincere leekman will have the satisfaction of knowing that they're helping to spread the fame of the leek — helping the leek to take root, as it were."

Summer Tan Is Hardship For Photographs

WANTAGH, L.I. (AP) — Proud as you may be of that perfect tan you've acquired, it's likely to be a detriment when you have your summer wedding pictures taken.

"A sunburned bride is murder to photograph," says Michael Stanley, who has photographed hundreds of brides in his studio adjoining his wife's bridal shop.

"There must be balance in total makeup," he comments, "because over-emphasizing eyes or lips or skin detracts from the whole effectiveness of the picture."

The wedding photographs Stanley usually makes are three-quarter length, with the bride-to-be in a sitting position. Such a picture he says, will always be attractive, since style changes in the gown's skirt are not detectable.

Because his photographic customers have been coming to his wife's shop from four to six months prior to the wedding, Stanley finds the girls usually quite relaxed when they pose.

Curls Conform To Style Of Wedding Veil

Chances are you will wear your hair differently on your wedding day, no matter how pleased you are with your usual hair styles. That's the one day when you wear your curls to conform to your bridal veil.

The veil is styled to conform to the line of your dress, not your hair or your face. And while you might ordinarily arrange those tresses to be flattering to the features of your face, this time they must be coiffed to go along with the veil's design.

Do you intend to wear a coronet? Then perhaps the hair stylist will feel that a high chignon is best for this important day. Or will your veil fall back from a flower ring at the top of your head? A center part waving over the sides may be better. Veils that are bouffant do not always take bouffant hairdos for much depends on where the veil is to be worn atop the head.

Sterling Is Lasting Gift

One reason most brides want sterling silver flatware is that they know its beauty will grace their tables for a lifetime. This, too, is why so many parents give their about-to-be-married daughters the traditional wedding gift of sterling. They know it will never go out of style, and is one of the most lasting gifts they can give.

Naturally, the lucky bride who starts her marired life with sterling will want to take good care of it. And this is easier than it might sound. For, according to the Sterling Silversmiths of America, the best possible way to care for sterling is to use and enjoy it every day.

Unlike many beautiful treasures, which are meant to be seen rather than used, sterling thrives on the busy life. The tiny lines and infintesimal scratches that might at first worry the bride, accumulate through the years to give sterling the lovely, mellow surface known as "patina." A rich patina on solid silver actually makes it more durable than any finish that could be applied by machine.

Sterling flatware can, of course, be washed in an automatic dishwasher. Whether automatically or by hand, sterling should be washed immediately after each meal in hot soapy water and rinsed in clear, very hot water. As most homemakers know, all metals—even stainless finishes — may "spot" if not dried immediately. One of the nicest things about solid silver is that these water spots will wipe away with a touch of a soft cloth.

What about tarnish? It's no problem at all, if sterling flatware is used regularly. When you use your sterling frequently, tarnish never has a chance to start! There are some foods, such as eggs, salt, and mayonnaise, which will temporarily discolor sterling. A sponge and some silver polish kept near the sink make it easy to remove these stains during dishwashing.

Polishing silver occasionally can be a very rewarding task, and can add to its beauty. Use a reliable silver polish. Chemical dips or aluminum-and-soda solutions remove the subtle shadows of oxidation that are important in some patterns, and leave the silver with an unnatural whitish color. In polishing, use a soft, clean cloth, and always rub each piece lengthwise — not in circles. After polishing, wash and dry as usual.

If it becomes necessary to store your sterling, keep it in a chest or box lined with tarnish-preventive cloth. This cloth is also made up into cases which may be used to wrap individual pieces or place settings. But don't fasten the cases with a rubber band. Rubber will tarnish silver.

The simple rule for caring for sterling is this: Use it, but don't abuse it. "Sterling" is solid silver all the way through — there is nothing to wear out, or off. So following the easy rules for proper care will assure you of the ilfetime of pelasure that sterling was meant to provide.

BRIDE WHO COULDN'T CHEW

CANTON, Pa. (AP)—Priscilla Metzger decided to go ahead with her wedding plans after she suffered a broken jaw, several loosened teeth and a lacerated lip in an auto accident 10 days before the ceremony.

"You'll have to eat my portion of the cake. I can't open my mouth that wide."

NOW is forever

Lila says - - -

"Twenty years of professional experience in the photography of brides have proven one inescapable fact . . . that parents treasure a superior photographic record of their children more than any worldly possession. Inevitably those who adopt a cheap substitute for the sake of economy, are heartsick in later years, when the cost becomes a less important factor. Almost always, they would pay any amount to go back and recapture the early years in the portraiture."

Convenience Foods Great Boon For Brides

When today's bride dons her fancy apron, enters her streamlined kitchen and prepares dinner, whatever she prepares for the man in her life is bound to be a huge success. You may never have boiled an egg before this new experience of being a housewife, but your cooking can measure up to the women who have known their way around the kitchen for years.

Why? Convenience foods.

The novice now can serve whole dinners of fried chicken, turkey, ham 'n' yams, salisbury steak, with five or six different types of fruit pies by merely popping these frozen foods into the oven. No need to cry over underdone meats or soggy pie crusts. You can spend more time to rosebud the radishes or to arrange the table setting than you do at the range.

When you have a few meat dishes prepared from scratch that you can place in a "foolproof" category, there's a world of canned goods from which to select vegetables or a fruit dessert. Asparagus any time of the year, shellie beans — a masterpiece of blending when canned, but tough to make if you're a new cook — any type of corn, and so on.

These convenience foods are so taken for granted today that there doesn't seem a time when women were slaves to the kitchen.

But perhaps the father of convenience foods as we know them today was a green grocer. Many an evening he may have watched his wife soak beans overnight for his favorite Sunday supper, pork and beans. On Sunday, she would bake the dish in a bean pot in the oven of her coal stove. After constant stirring, and eight hours later, it arrived at the table. Wonderful, but what a job!

He used his wife's recipe and experimented with the new-fangled "tin - canisters" — our first cans. A former tinsmith, he made his own cans by hand and at first could only turn out five a day. In the back room of his grocery store, he finally captured all the goodness of his favorite pork and bean recipe and the first cans of pork and beans made their appearance in 1861.

From the initial output of five hand - made cans a day, 1,000 cans per minute go gaily marching down the assembly line today due to high - speed production facilities. The fact that 8 out of every 10 cans now produced and used for food products would indicate that women are taking advantage of the convenience food the industry has to offer.

One Should Try To Avoid Wedding Gift Duplication

What fun to get wedding presents! But the delight wears thin when the wrappings disclose the seventh toaster and the 10th pair of silver candelabra. There is one foolproof way of avoiding such duplications: have everyone give checks or cash. But this coldly practical solution takes much of the fun out of giving.

However, for young couples who will be setting up housekeeping at an Army or Navy base, or starting out on a college campus, money is most welcome.

On the other hand, gift buying these days can be a pleasant revelation to those who think of wedding presents only in terms of the classic crystal, china and silver.

There is a host of new products that combine beauty with utility, satisfying the desire to give something that's pretty as well as practical.

CUSTOM GIFTS

The trick is to tailor your gift to the newlyweds' own taste. Few working wives appreciate elaborate silver that requires time consuming polish-work.

The great majority of brides still prefers a touch of beauty in gifts — "something I wouldn't buy for myself but want to own." This means avoiding the silly, the commonplace, the oddball that are sometimes offered in shops as wedding presents.

But there are a number of offbeat but highly practical items to consider. Let's look at some:

$10 OR LESS

Spice rack with selection of spices
Clamp type bedlamp
Doormat
Indoor or outdoor clothes drying rack
Set of adjustable bookshelves
Ironing board, pad and cover
Imprinted stationery
Enameled iron kitchenware
Set of demitasse cups and saucers
Assortment of electric light bulbs (might even include Christmas tree lights)
Toss pillows
Kitchen utility table
Picnic hamper or stadium thermos in case
Portable coffeemaker set
Kitchen or travel clock

$20 OR LESS

Charcoal grill
Lawn chair
Wall or door mirror
Kitchen tools on rack
Barbeque set — long handled tongs, fork, etc.
Kitchen canisters
Electric fan
Stainless steel serving dishes
Set of snack tables
Card table
Strongbox or home filing case
Bed pillows
Stepladder stool
Bathroom hamper set
Utility cart for outdoor hauling
Wooden bench for seat or coffee table
Espresso coffeemaker
Folding picnic table

OVER $20

Electric broiler or rotisserie
Rocking chair
Adjustable lamp pole or hanging lamp
Movie camera
Portable radio
Tea wagon
Fireplace tools
Flood blender

There's also the great range of electric appliances; toaster, steam iron, mixer, frypan, coffeemaker; always welcome linens, towels, sheets, pillowcases, placemats; and of course, the bride's chosen crystal, china and silver patterns.

Lighting Can Enhance Scene Of Wedding

Something often overlooked at a wedding is the lighting of the church. Lighting is important, as it should add to the decorations that have been planned. Indirect light is one of the softest types of lighting and it creates no hard shadows. This is close to moonlight if it is not too bright. Your lighting should not overpower the candles but should compliment and support them. The prettiest lighting is the indirect but all churches do not have this type lighting.

Many of the newer style churches with the peak type ceilings have indirect lights. The next to this is to leave on some lights in the rear of the sanctuary.

There should be enough light coming from back of the people attending the wedding to allow them to see the dresses and the flowers and remember just how beautiful the decorations are. When lighting an area at this low level flashes from flash bulbs are hard on the eyes, and they are disturbing to the ceremony. If you wish no flashes during your wedding ceremony, engage a professional photograher who knows how to make beautiful photographs of the wedding using the light available in the church. Also you should instruct the ushers to ask any people with flash cameras not to flash any during the ceremony. If your church has dimmers on the auditorium lights then you can have any intensity of lighting you wish. Plan your lighting it will enhance the beauty of your wedding.

GUEST BOOK

Many brides like to purchase a guest book for her wedding, which is usually bound in gold or silver moire.

BRIDAL PARTIES — One of the most exciting roles played by a bride-to-be is that of honoree at showers and prenuptial festivities. Here, Miss Tywannia White, who will become the bride of Richard Burgoyne on May 18, opens packages at a shower given by Mrs. Joseph A. Ford Jr., at right, while the honoree's mother, Mrs. A. W. White looks on.

Furniture Planning Advisable

Many a groom gets cold feet when he remembers he must furnish that little honeymoon cottage, too. Home furnishing call for a sizable outlay of money and it is a good idea for the prospective bride and groom to discuss the subject right after the engagement.

Just how much should you set aside for furnishings? There are no hard and fast rules, but suggestions and data from the money-management expert of the American Bankers Association may prove helpful.

They suggest a good rule of thumb is to allow no more than one - quarter of the value of the home for furnishings and equipment. A $10,000 house therefore, should be equipped with no more than $2,500 furnishings, preferable a good deal less.

Newlywed Advised On Decor

By BETTY PEPIS

I am a newlywed living in a furnished apartment but will soon move into an unfurnished place. I know what I want but not how to achieve it. For the living room I'd like an island motif using sea colors and primitivelike decorations. We have a large white and a small black fish net, a small harpoon and two carved goddesses, also two aquariums. Will Danish modern fit in? I'd like a striking room. Would you suggest one black wall for white fish net, or have record covers of island scenes, or a wall of bamboo? I'd appreciate your help. It will make the difference between disheartening confusion and excited direction.

A: May I dissuade you from having a living room that is too novel? This is all right in a den but the living room should have a more formal, slightly impersonal aspect because it is where you will entertain guests who may not appreciate your fondness for things of the sea. A little bit is fine but I do recommend restraint. Danish modern is suitable. What do you think of this scheme as a compromise: sand color for the rug, sea foam green for walls and draperies. Cover the sofa in sand or sea foam and two chairs in a true blue-green. All your accessories suit room with exception of the fish net, which is difficult to work with.

Q: The rug in our living room is a cinnamon brown. Draperies are off-white, sofa is off-white with a narrow brown strip and there are two persimmon chairs. What color for walls?

Q: My new contemporary bedroom furniture is white with a gold trim. I would like to know what color to paint walls and color for bedspread and draperies. I want pillow shams and extra pillows for bed. I have an oriental rug I bought in the Far East; the background is deep red. I have very pale pink or blue in mind.

A: There is so much beauty in a good oriental rug, it deserves to be enhanced. What about a scheme of only white and deep red, particularly since the furniture is trimmed in gold? Have walls, draperies and bedspread in white with a deep red box-pleated dust ruffle. Use brass lamps. Have one or two prominent objects in modern ruby red glass and have several shades of deep red for toss pillows.

IDEAL FOR A traveling costume for the honeymoon bound bride is this Jr. Scene suit by Glenhaven. Made of Charter's seersucker of Celanese Arnel triacetate and cotton, it will take you sightseeing to your heart's content without fear of creasing, crumpling or warm weather wilt.

REHEARSAL PROCEDURE

The wedding rehearsal is usually held in church the night before the wedding, but it may be a day or so earlier. The usual Protestant ceremony will require not more than an hour rehearsal. For longer services or where some of the members of the wedding party need instructions about procedures in a faith that is not their own, the rehearsal may last longer.

Here's How To Cut Cake At Wedding

For that friend of the bride who is asked to assist with reception courtesies on her wedding day, here is advice on the best way to cut a round, 3-tiered wedding cake.

Proceed from the bottom layer, up. To ease serving: With tip of knife, make a circular cut around the complete base of second layer, cutting through bottom layer. Cut vertically (from the circular cut outward) and remove servings (in modified wedge shape) from cake.

Next, cut the second layer in the same manner as bottom layer — making a circular cut at the base of the top layer and cutting the slices vertically. When pieces from the second layer have been served, return to the bottom layer and proceed, in original manner, to cut the now-exposed portion of this lay The remaining center of the tiers are cut into wedges, cutting one layer at a time.

Versatile Knits Belong In Trousseau For Bride

There's a whole, wide rainbow-hued world of knits waiting for you, the bride-to-be. They're indispensable for your honeymoon car trip. They're mainstays of your life as a working girl. And they are so pretty and some of the weaves are so sparkling that they're perfect for an evening out.

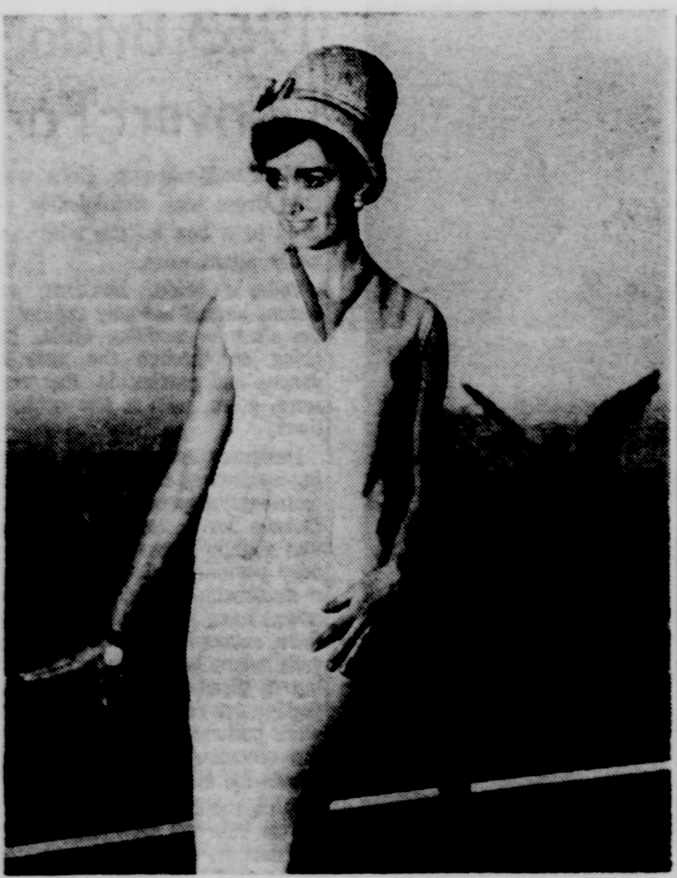
When they first made their appearance into the fashion world, they cut no swath color-wise. Early knits were available only in beige and gray.

Now look at them. They're splashed with bright flowers. They glitter with gold as metallic threads are woven in with rayon and wool. An addition of the proper amount of mohair to wool makes a fuzzy, country-time knit. And when synthetic yarn is used, it means that pleats stay in place and wrinkles refuse to appear even in the worst weather.

Likewise there's no best-favored style among the knits. The three-pieces are strong favorites because they're so trimly tailored, and can be mix-matched with other separates. But the knit is also a popular A-line shift, a figure-hugging sheath, and is sleeveless for dressy occasions, has a straight, flaring or pleated skirt; in short, can do anything in style.

Best of all, some knits are so lightweight that they're wearable in all temperatures except the tropical. So whether you're a June or an October bride, you'll live in knits.



THE LAST WORD in airiness for summer brides is this two piece pace-setter with flightweight comfort in mind. This carefree double knit of Celanese Arnel triacetate and linen combines a look as delicate as Dresden with wiltfree wearability. The patch- pocketed V-necked, very hip length overblouse tops a slim shaft of skirt to from an enticing ensemble.

Statistics Are Younger

Brides, today, aren't just beautiful — they're younger.

The Census Bureau says the median age at which a woman marries is now 20 years and 2½ months. Back in 1890, the median age was 22 years.

Naturally the bridegrooms are younger too. The median age at which a man marries is 22 years and 4 months, compared with 26 years and 5 months a half century ago.

Median is the middle line between two equal units. The Census Bureau figures that half the people getting married are younger than the median age and the other half are older.

Serve Supper In Comfort

At a wedding supper, if possible, have plenty of space around the buffet table so guests can help themselves easily.

Then for comfort's sake, put up small tables — borrowed card tables are fine — set each with four places. Besides silverware and napkins, each talbe should have both a salt and pepper set and a cream and sugar set.

Small centerpieces for tables are fun and it's pleasant to have tables lighted by candles.

Differences Should Be Faced Before Wedding

Can you tell in advance how a marriage will work out? It's possible. It's also probable that even knowing that all the elements of failure are present, a couple will still go ahead, their faith unshaken in the saying that love conquers all.

But marriage counselors feel that facing possible differences before the wedding gives a couple a better chance at avoiding later conflict.

Some counselors work with a marriage prediction chart for prospective partners. These are interpreted on the principle that the more a couple has in common, the greater their chances of a happy marriage.

WIDE BACKGROUNDS

There is another school of thought that a man and woman with wide variations in background, interests and abilities still can make a go of marriage if one provides what the other lacks.

In either case, it is knowing what to expect and willingness to solve the problem — if necessary by seeking professional help — that spells the difference between a good and bad relationship.

Keeping this in mind, here are some questions to ask yourself about choosing a prospective partner, and on being a good one yourself:

1. Why do you want to marry? Just to get married: To get away from home? Or do you feel a need to share love and companionship and to have a home and family?

2. Why do you want to marry this particular person? Because of what he can do for you? Or because you love him as he is and want to share your life with him?

3. Are you old enough emotionally to marry? Are you capable of mature love and its sacrifices?

RESPONSIBILITIES

4. Is your prospective partner ready to accept the responsibilities of marriage?

5. Are either of you very dependent on your families?

6. Do both families approve of the marriage? If not, have you worked out a method of dealing with in-law frictions?

7. If your religious beliefs are different, have you talked them over and reached a mutual understanding of the other's viewpoint?

8. Have you agreed on the religious training of children?

9. What is your own attitude toward men? Do you feel a need to assert your superiority? Or are you genuinely helpless?

10. Are either of you so exceptionally close to your own mother or father as to create a strain between you?

11. Have you worked out in detail how you'll manage money? Who will be in charge of the check book?

12. Do you know the costs that will face you, not just for food and shelter but for entertainment, transportation and personal care?

13. Do you have enough money in the bank, or can you save it soon, for emergencies?

14. Is your joint income enough to live on without outside support?

15. Is either of you giving up school for marriage?

16. Is there a firm agreement on how long you'll work?

17. Are you willing to accept drastic changes if his job requires them?

18. Can you accept his criticism without resentment?

19. Does he consider your suggestions with respect?

20. If there is any aspect of your relationship that causes you uneasiness, can you talk it over together?

Long Gown Is Big Desire Of Most Brides

"No wedding is informal enough to warrant wearing a short dress, if the bride in her heart really wants a long gown," says bridal shop owner Heather Stanley.

"If she says she wants a short gown, I ask her why. Most girls really want a long gown. If she does want a long gown and someone has tried to talk her into wearing a short one, I try to talk her into it again.

Mrs. Stanley, whose gowns range from $50 to $350, says most of her customers spend around $125. And, she adds, for those trying to save money, long gowns as well as short can be found under $100.

Her shop, in Wantagh, Long Island, is next door to the photo studio of her husband, Michael, who specializes in bridal photography. Many of Mrs. Stanley's bride's step next door after their final fitting, to have formal pre-bridal portraits taken.

"The main thing we both feel," Mrs. Stanley says, "is that each girl should be treated individually.

"I only work by appointment. I only have one girl in the shop at the time. I can give them advice on everything they want to ask me, from bridal gowns to ceremonies. They enjoy this more than anything. Every one becomes a personal friend.

"The calmer and quieter and less upset a girl can be, the happier she'll be. She should enjoy this time tremendously.

"I've been hovering around brides since 1939 when I went to work making bridal bouquets in a florist's shop," Mrs. Stanley says. "I even made my own bouquet on the day of my wedding and made the bridesmaids' bouquets."

BANANA KNITS

Lightweight Woolens Need Of June Bride

Feather light woolens can be an indispensable part of the June bride's wardrobe, for new weaving methods mean American wool is no longer a cold - weather fabric.

Even the informal wedding gown may be a wool so light that it feels like gossamer.

Lightweight wool suits, whether costume variety or country-geared, are nearly four seasonal. In colder weather, they can go forth under a solid color or tweed-mixture top-coat. Alone, they're useful spring and fall.

Tailored and party sheaths are available in solid colors, with matching or contrasting jackets. Owners of these sheaths can get a lot of mileage out of this costume, for the sheath is dressy enough for party wear, minus its jacket. Substitute an embroidered sweater for the jacket, and the sheath has yet another look.

Sports clothes need not be either bulky or violent in pattern. Wool fabrics can take on the crispness of linen or the sheen of silk, depending on the manufacturer's weave.

Such a trousseau, carefully chosen, can be a blessing to the owner for years to come.

CHOOSING UP

Your Wedding Photographs

Select your professional photographer with as much care as, you do your dressmaker. Select a professional with wide experience. Your wedding photographs can't be retaken. Your photographs will be cherished for the rest of your life, so be sure to choose a good professional. Movies and slides are fine but they don't have readiness to be enjoyed as the album of black and white or color photographs. Make your appointment as far ahead as possible . . . as soon as you know the date. The professional photographers are booked far ahead. Select a professional photographer who will be at ease among your friends yet who will never be intrusive. Select a professional photographer whose skill and training help him know instinctively when and where to take a picture. Floral Theme Effective

Choosing a floral theme for the wedding which is repeated in the flower arrangements at the home reception can be done with artistry, even if the bride-to-be is managing her wedding on a budget.

By selecting flowers that are plentiful and in season, or blooms that are available year-round, cost can be held down.

Members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association recommend that one or two favorite blooms be repeated in all decorations, bouquets and corsages.

Girls in New York prefer tailored floral arrangements and lean to gladioli or glamellias. On the West Coast, orchids are favorites because they are plentiful in the area.

While home weddings are not common in Washington D.C., since the city is filled with career girls who go home to be married, those who are married in the capital prefer all-white floral decorations.

In the summer in the South, the daisy is favored, and gardenias combined with ivy are popular. In the fall, feathered chrysanthemums make up the bridal bouquet as well as the house decorations.

In some southern communities, friends and neighbors gather all the blossoms for a week from their gardens and give them to the bride who is planning a home wedding.

1963 Bridal Gown Can Convert For Later Use

Time was when a girl's wedding dress was nostalgically retired to a box in the attic and never again worn.

Today's bride, however, envisions herself not only radiant at the altar in wedding white, but going on through the year to dances and parties in the very same gown, with a few subtractions.

Designers cooperate by dreaming up dresses that can shed their trains and dispense with their lace jackets for a social existence. The slightly flaring sheath is a very popular choice, since it has a detachable train. Other long gowns have low, square-cut necklines, covered up for the wedding with bolero lace jackets, and ending in three-quarter sleeves. The jackets are reversible, and can be worn buttoned down the back for the ceremony and turned frontwards for other occasions.

Even the ballerina-length gown for an informal wedding is likely to boast its own jacket and later on be used as a cocktail dress.

The shimmer of yards of gleaming white fabric is effective enough for many young brides. If there is adornment, it is subtle. Quiet insets of lace and tiny pearls may be scattered down the skirt, and the jacket may pick up the design. One very young-looking gown has tiny bows of the same fabric sewed on one seam from waist to hem.

If the gown has no train of its own it is likely to dip and flare in the back, but with less fullness of fabric than in the past.

FAST ANSWER

Your cupboard holds the swer to quick summer casserole. In a greased shallo baking dish, arrange 1 (12 oun can of lunch meat, sliced, 1 (pound) can of cut green be drained and 1 (1 pound) can o yams, drained.

Top with mixture of 2 tablespoons of melted butter or margarine and 1-3 cup each of sweet pickle liquid, firmly-packed brown sugar and sliced sweet gherkins. Bake 30 minutes in preheated 350-degree oven. Serves 4.

.. FAVOR MIXED BLOOMS

Southern brides favor mixe blooms in season for their spring weddings. Mimosa, peach bl soms, tulips and daffodils are frequently used on the reception table.

Traditional Rules Now Tempered In Practicality

Today's brides and grooms are finding it necessary to temper the traditional rules of etiquette with practicality. In less hectic times, the bride began to make her plans at least three months befor the wedding day.

She was able to move serenely from ordering invitations to finding a place for the reception to trying on wedding gowns without any last-minute flurry. She had time to be entertained at showers, and time to fete her bridal party.

Not so today.

"Sandra told me this morning she wants to marry Bob two weeks from Saturday," says one mother, "because his company is sending him to North Carolina for sales orientation, and she wants to be with him."

"Dick wires he has three weeks' leave before his regiment goes overseas, so we're planning an informal wedding for Janie on the 9th," says another.

Without time for formal, third-person invitations, the bride's mother settles for informal notes or even phone calls.

The ceremony is at 11 a.m. or 3 p.m. simply because the church and the minister are available.

The bridal party's size is determined by the availability of friends who can participate on short notice.

Guests may not have time to shop for that perfect piece of silver, and may find themselves sending the present later to the couple at their new address.

So plans for semiformal or formal weddings, complete with ushers in cutaways or full dress, are scrapped. The bride usually wants to wear a long, white gown, even though etiquette formerly frowned on it for weddings prior to 4 p.m.

The groom is more than likely to wear his best blue suit, and the ushers may include the groom's 12-year-old brother.

Receptions are realistic, too. A buffet meal at noon, following an 11 o'clock wedding, may be most sensible if the couple is to leave soon after by car for a long trip to a new place of employment.

Supermarket Is 1st Stop After The Honeymoon

Let's hope that your husband has a stout pair of arms for push-cart pushing and that the wedding trip hasn't depleted your exchequer too much. For one of the first jobs after the honeymoon is your inaugural trip to the supermarket as a new family.

If you're lucky, a pantry shower has given you a start on some of the things you need. In any case, here's a basic shopping list to get you started on filling your bare cupboard:

Flour, sugar, salt, pepper, bread, crackers, paper towels, foil, plastic food wrap or wax paper, toilet tissue and bar soap.

Soap powder, scouring powder, sponges, butter, milk, eggs, vinegar, cooking oil or shortening, frozen or canned fruit juice, onion flakes and coffee or tea.

Potatoes, onions, toothpaste or powder, salad dressing and garlic powder.

Brides Should Plan Wedding Photos Early

Good wedding photos aren't hard to come by, if the bride-to-be schedules not only her wedding portrait, but the candid shots she may want taken during wedding and reception.

Many so-called candids are really planned shots, to avoid omission and error when the photographer is trying to work in the midst of a mass of seething — and unknown — guests.

Besides advanced briefing on the desired pictures, it's also helpful to have a friend on the spot at the photographer's elbow to untangle the various subjects.

LIST OF SHOTS

The 10 most important candids at a wedding are:

1. Bride in dressing room with attendants.
2. Bride going down aisle on father's arm.
3. Bride coming up aisle on husband's arm.
4. Bride, bridegroom and all attendants.
5. Bride and groom and her family.
6. Bride and groom and his family.
7. Receiving line.
8. Bride and groom cutting cake.
9. Tossing bouquet.
10. Bride and groom leaving reception amid shower of rice.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS

1. Bride's mother and bride before ceremony.
2. Scene from back of church during ceremony.
3. Bride and her attendants.
4. Bridegroom and his attendants.
5. Important relatives as they go through receiving line.
6. Hostesses with important guests signing guest book.
7. Bride dancing with groom.
8. Bride kissing her mother goodby in dressing room.
9. Bride saying goodby to bridegroom's parents.
10. Bride and groom in getaway car.

The bride's formal photograph may be taken in a studio or at the bridal salon. In either case, certain make up suggestions will insure that even under the bright lights, the bride looks her best.

DECIDING ON THE SIZE and decoration for the wedding cake to serve reception guests appears to be a dilemna for Miss Ann Hobgood, as she admires this tiered confection. Miss Hobgood is the bride-elect of Robert Nelson McMullen, whose wedding will be solemnized July 19 in the First Baptist Church, Monroe.

Kitchens Take Livable Trend

The kitchen seems to be returning to its early American role as the family center, newlyweds discover as they plan future homes.

For some time designers concentrated on making kitchens more efficient. Now the trend is toward making them more livable — but of course, with no sacrifice of efficiency.

The reason is that, instead of just using the kitchen to plan and prepare food now the trend is to enlarge the kitchen for family get - togethers. This expansion may be a breakfast nook or a dinette. But it is not a formal dining room set apart from the kitchen.

The result is greater informality and convenience. The trend has also inspired architects to design kitchens that are more attractive, decorative and dual-purpose . It's not enough to have equipment that's easy to get to; it must also be easy on the eye.

Thus, today's kitchen - family room must have surfacings that suggest quality. One of the most popular is tile. It has the aura of luxury; it can fit into any design or decor. It's available in a wide variety of colors and above all, is long lasting and easy to maintain.

Select Shoes For Comfort

Today's gay tying of old shoes to the bridal couple's car finds its origin in the ritual of casting a shoe after the bride to signify her father's transfer of authority to her new husband.

But the modern bride is less concerned with the symbolism of old shoes than she is with what new shoes she should be wearing.

Traditionally, her shoes are white or ivory to match her gown. If she wears a delicately tinted blue or pink dress, the shoes are dyed to match.

Practicality in material of the shoes need not be a consideration, this one time, but the bride's shoes must be comfortable if she is to feel and look her best.

The National Shoe Institute says that since the lowered heel has become high fashion, no bride has to teeter down the aisle on spike heels. However, she can wear the very high heels if she wants to and is accustomed to them. By the same token, she can wear entirely flat heels.

Whether the gown be street length, ballerina length or sweeping the floor is not the criterion of proper heel height, the institute says; Choose heel height instead by the height of the bride, her height in comparison with the groom and the shoes which feel most comfortable on her feet.

FORMAL WEDDING gown and veil on a mannequin catches the eye of bride-elect, Miss Susan Kay Stewart, while shopping for her trousseau. Miss Stewart will become the bride of Joseph Echard Wheeler Jr. on June 14 in Jesus the Good Shepherd Catholic Church, Monroe.

Brides, Attendants Have Wide Choice Of Fabrics

There's a wonderful look of luxury in gowns for spring brides: lace, silk organza and lace tulle are the fabrics that lead in the parade down the aisle. Other brides will be accompanied by the sweet harmony of rustling taffetas, beautifully crisp and princess lovely.

Adding to the look of luxury for spring brides is the elegance of fabulous trims. There are re-embroidered Alencon and Chantilly laces, sequins, seed pearls, and glittering bugle beads for that "shining hour."

Bridesmaids choosing gowns for the spring and summer wedding will find a fabulous collection of versatile frocks that are beautifully right for the wedding and fit most-smartly into the wardrobe for other important occasions.

RICE, OLD SHOES

In the Orient rice means, "May you always have a full pantry" and a red slipper thrown on the roof of a house indicates that a honeymoon is in progress. Among early Hebrews a man gave his sandal as evidence of good faith in exchange of property. Casting a shoe after the bride signifies her father's transfer of authority to her new husband.

Groom's Suit Dictated By Bride's Costume

When the music is the Wedding March the bride calls the tune. Only when she has chosen her own wedding costume and the hour for the ceremony does the bridegroom know what to wear.

Simplest of all marriage ceremonies is the informal daytime service in town or country. For this the bride wears a suit or street dress which dictates that the groom wear a navy blue, charcoal or gray suit, with white shirt, conservative tie and black shoes.

A country garden wedding offers the groom a choice of white suit with white shoes or navy blue or black blazer with white trousers dark or white shoes.

For the formal wedding correct attire becomes definitive and mandatory. Moreover, with only the slightest variations of cravat and boutonniere, all the male members of the wedding must be garbed identically.

For instance, formal evening weddings — the most formal of all timed for about 6 p.m. — finds the bride in a long fancy gown and veil. Thus the bridegroom is in full evening kit — white tie and tails, matching trousers, starched bosom shirt, wing collar, white evening vest, black socks, black patent leather oxfords or pumps, white gloves and a shiny topper or dull grosgrain opera hat.

For the semi-formal evening wedding, the tuxedo takes the place of the tail coat, or in summer the white dinner jacket. Black bow tie, of course, pleated white shirt with either a white evening vest or a cummerbund. The white bow tie is never worn with tuxedo.

Weddings before 6 p.m. demand from the groom so-called morning kit, formal or informal.

The formal daytime wedding, with the bride in wedding gown and long train, prescribes for the groom the cutaway coat in black or oxford gray, striped black and gray trousers, single or double-breasted vest to match the cutaway, pleated or starched bosom shirt with separate starched wing collar. The cravat may be either preferred ascot or the familair four - in - hand, in small black and white checked silk or gray moire. Gray gloves and topper complete the outfit.

Hats Add Much To Trousseau

One of the smartest ways for any bride to make her trousseau seem far larger is to stretch it by means of a hat wardrobe.

Classically simple, well-cut clothes act as perfect foils for pretty summer hats. Some of these in packable, crushable straw or fabric, can be carried in a single small hatbox or even in the corner of a suitcase.

Ideally, the bride's hat box should contain a sun hat to wear with sport clothes. It will also serve to protect her face from too much sun. Then, she should have a hat to wear with casual cottons for sightseeing. A third hat should complement her dressier clothes for cocktails.

Flowers Have Long History In Weddings

A kissing knot of croten leaves and rosemary was hung over the happy couple in Elizabethan England, and an old Swedish custom was to put chives and garlic in the bride's bouquet to keep the dwarfs from bothering her on her wedding day.

Roses and marigolds decorated the Roman bride's home, and, to this day, many Grecian brides are festooned with vines and in some places in Europe an ear of corn is placed in the wedding bouquet.

Flowers have also played roles in courtship. Before marriage a gift of flowers is supposed to stem from the Roman custom of paying homage to the goddess of love.

It is believed the earliest wedding bouquets symbolized the rod of life, and those carrying them were assured of large and splendid families. Girls who caught the bridal flowers were picking up this symbol of life and would be the next to carry on the tradition.

Today's florists have at their command many varieties and colors of flowers that can be made up in a number of "styled bouquets" to go with the particular type of dress worn — whether it is a plain suit or the most formal wedding gown.

Always keeping in mind that the highlight of any girl's life is her wedding day the florist will do his best to help make it a memorable occasion to have and remember on through the years.

Flowers are the most important part of any wedding. Imagine going to a big church wedding with no flowers or decorations. Try to picture all the bridesmaids and the bride entering without a single flower.

For any bride-to-be, her florist can assist her in choosing the proper flowers for both her wedding and those used for decoration.

CHOOSING WEDDING RINGS for the big day of their lives are Miss Sandra Elizabeth Stancil and her fiance, Ronald V. Haile Jr., whose wedding has been announced for June 22. The couple will exchange wedding vows in the First Baptist Church, West Monroe.

Some Tips On How To Iron

Tips to the bride on ironing: Sprinkle clothes with warm water, which penetrates more quickly.

After sprinkling do not roll clothes up in a ball and roll more wrinkles in — fold them instead and place in a plastic bag.

Keep your ironing board cover clean by frequent washing so that no stain will come off it.

If ironing for a long time stand on a soft mat to make the work easier on your feet.

When ironing large articles such as curtains, spread an old sheet on the floor around the ironing board.

After each ironing, see that the bottom of iron is clean and free from starch so it will be ready for the next job. Just put a little dampened soda on a soft cloth and rub the iron, then wipe off with another dampened cloth. Never clean bottom of iron with steel wool.

New Ideas Compiled For Bridal Shower

How about being hostess at a shower where the guest bring cleaning aids? The gifts can be sponges, window cleaner, scouring powders, wax , soap, dustcloths — anything that a person uses in cleaning a house.

Let two girls about 12 years old be dressed as maids to present the gifts. One could have a mop in her hands. The other could have a scrub pail filled with smaller gifts.

RECIPE SHOWER

Then there is the shower at which each guest brings her favorite recipe, along with the utensil in which the recipe is to be cooked. The decoration for this type shower can be a good size evergreen tree, draped with aprons which of course are brought also by the guests and given to the bride-to-be. The hostess fastens the recipes in a notebook binder before giving them to the honoree.

DESK SHOWER

No one gives a desk shower, but why not? The guests could bring stationery, pens, paper clips, cellophane tape and mailing labels of different kinds, such as "Handle with Care" and "Fragile."

You, as hostess could provide either a metal or china stamp holder, a life time gift. All gifts should be presented in a large waste paper basket.

Long ago, in many sections, it was the custom to give a newly married couple a "pounding." This was simply a pantry shower. Each guest took a pound of groceries — a pound of salt, a pound of soda, a pound of beans and so on — until the pantry was stocked. Today it would be appropriate to include canned goods and such. Present these gifts in a grocery cart.

Laundry is going to be one of the bride's greatest problems in the early days of her marriage so a laundry shower would be in order.

Wedding Customs Have Ancient Origin

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

The only fashions of today which would be recognizable to a woman of past centuries are bridal fashions. Even the wearing of white as the bridal color goes back to the 12th Century, when Anne of Brittany broke medieval tradition by wearing white instead of red for her marriage to France's Louis II.

The use of the veil is even older, being found in all countries as far back as records take us. In the days when marriage was a matter of family compact, and property was more important than the bride herself, the veil was really thick. Only after the ceremony did the groom get so much as a glimpse of her face.

The very word "wedding" comes from the Anglo - Saxon "wed," meaning the money or cattle the groom brought to the contract. The bride, of course, had her dowry, of money, property and a chest full of linens and fine clothes, which she and her mother had worked on since the bride's childhood. From this custom we still have today's hope chest.

The blue garter a modern bride wears is a relic of an old medieval custom in France, when brides threw their garters as omens of luck. The bouquet was finally substituted, but brides still wear the garter, even though few know why. (At a recent wedding the bride revived the garter custom, throwing her "something blue" to the ushers after lofting her bouquet to the bridesmaids.)

Among Saracen brides, the orange bloosom was a sign of fruitfulness, and from them the custom passed to Europe. Swiss brides often wear both a wreath and a pigtail of orange blossoms. The ring comes to us from ancient Egypt, and is the oldest known bridal tradition.

Marriage customs in America have come from many countries, although in the rough early years many a bride stood before the frontier parson in the Sunday-go-to meetin' dress which was all she had for dress-up.

Thus it was not until George Washington's adopted daughter, Nelly Custis, pinned a long sheer scarf to her wedding coiffure that the wedding veil came to America. The French influence in the early days of our nationhood brought in other customs such as white dresses and bouquet throwing.

But Switzerland gave us the tradition of the wedding handkerchief, which was supposed to insure against a tearful marriage. Like the organdies and embroideries which still make some of our loveliest wedding gowns, the Swiss handkerchief is still carried at wedding ceremonies.

TRADITION RULES bridal fashions, as in this classic gown by Christos of Galina. Swiss sheer is shaped into a bell skirt and lightly fitted bodice, embroidered in floral motifs by Naef. The detachable train wings into fullness with a cascade of ribbon. The veil, by Lori, is Swiss illusion, and into the bouquet tucks the Swiss lace handkerchief traditional for brides.

Brides Advised On Etiquette For Thank-Yous

Jerlyn Madison, consultant, suggests this true-or-false quiz on writing form for brides — or, better still, brides-to-be.

1. It is correct to wait until after the wedding to send thank-you notes for gifts.

False. So far as is possible, write your thanks as soon as gifts arrive. Those arriving too late to answer before the wedding should be acknowledged promptly on return from the wedding trip.

2. It's correct to use a printed "informal" for thank-you notes.

True. There is no objection to printed notes, but small conventional note-size paper is preferred. White, cream or gray paper is always in good taste, and ink is available in several colors to add a distinctive touch.

3. Some social mail may be typewritten.

4. A personal note must be dated in the upper right-hand corner.

5. It's correct to abbreviate words like street, avenue, boulevard.

False. These words should be spelled out.

Good handwriting, as well as good manners in letter writing, enhances your thank-you notes.

Finally, the real test of a thank-you note for a wedding gift is its sincerity. References to the gift should be made, Miss Madison said. For instance, the following would be considered appropriate: "Dear Joan: Jim and I love the casserole you sent, and we want you to come over as soon as we are at home to share dinner from it."

THERE GOES THE BRIDE

Perhaps the most important single detail in wedding preparations is the selection of the best PHOTOGRAPHER. After a bride's brief day of Glory, only good Professional Photographs can recall her radiant enchantment and precious delight. Let us keep your Joy forever.
